Editors Thank All For Their Support

On behalf of the editorial and reportorial staff, and all persons connected with the Rampage, we would like to thank the student body and administration for the support and criticism we have received during the past year.

There were times when it seemed as if we might not make it through the year; but on reflection it can be said that the hard times were what made it such a pleasure to be connected with the Rampage.

The Rampage was commended by many people, and for this we are most grateful. We are happy to know that we pleased so many.

The Rampage also was criticised by many, and for this we are also most grateful. We on the staff have encouraged criticism, as we feel this is the quickest and most expedient way to get in touch with what the readers want. We hope that we have answered at least some of the well-meant criticism.

To next year's co-editors, Gary Cooke and Mary Gulke, we would like to extend our hearty congratulations on being chosen for such a responsible position. We sincerely hope that they will enjoy as much as we have the wonderful relations with so many people.

To the Rampage adviser Philip D. Smith, may we take this moment to express particular gratitude to him for all he has done for the staff and the school. We strongly feel the Rampage wouldn't be what it is without him.

To Ernie Benck, our typographer, we also send our heartiest thanks for all the wonderful help he has given us during the season as far as the actual setting up of the paper is concerned. Most people don't know what this involves, but we who do agree that Ernie is tops in his field and we are glad to be associated with him.

'Lowland Sea' Gets Very Good Review

By DIANE NIXON

The musical production, "Lowland Sea," which was presented by the FCC choir last Thursday and Friday evenings, made the audience feel as though they were actual residents of Scarlet Town.

The "Lowland Sea" is a love story which tells of a young man, Johnny Dee, who sails away on the Scarlet Sail; and of his return to Dorrie Davis, the girl who promised to wait and marry him upon his return.

Janet Alexander gave a superb performance as Dorrie Davis in Thursday evening's performance. William Gardner who portrayed the lead part of Johnny Dee, the hero who sailed away, was aided greatly by Miss Alexander's fine performance.

Dorrie Davis's real tears were genuine proof that Miss Alexander really lived the part she was portraying.

The writer did not see the Friday evening performance so cannot comment on the lead performers which were double cast.

Lee Gilliland who played the part of Nathaniel, a widower, was excellent in his role of father to three charming daughters; and in his proposal of marriage to Dorrie Davis. The daughters were played by Mary Brosmer, Joan Alexander, and Helen Rohrbough.

The talented Gary Sexton, an FCC alumni, once again displayed his versatile talents of acting, singing, and dancing in planning the choreography for the production.

Captain Jesse, the commander of the Scarlet Sail and the other crew members gave good performances as a really adventure-some crew.

The choir members proved that they are not only singers, but also actors and dancers. The chorus, which sat in the orchestra pit, provided strong support to the leading characters.

The writer has attended all the musical productions presented at FCC in the past two years and believes a round of applause is due C. Lowell Spencer, the choir director, who has put in many long hours and hard work.

Students May Enter Writing Competition

College students are offered the opportunity to compete in a writing contest. A $500 award will be given to the best writer. The contest will run from May 1, 1960 to Sept. 30, 1961.

The contest rules states entries may be in the form of any literary material including stories, poems, plays, essays, etc.

The manuscript must be written in English, typewritten on one side of 8½x11 inch white paper and double spaced. Each manuscript should be submitted separately.

Poets should submit a body of work, preferably consisting of six or more poems.

The winner of the award will be chosen by authors whose work is accepted for publication in New Campus Writing No. 4. Other entries accepted for publication will be given honorable mention.

Roving Reporter

Students Combine Work, School, Pleasure For Vacation Plans

By MARY GULKE

The roving reporter roamed the campus this week in search of a student who would be spending a perfect summer. Six students were picked at random to answer this question of, "How are you going to spend the summer?"

It seems that most of them had the same idea in mind: work, school and pleasure.

Jack Stewart, general education major, "As soon as school is out I'm going to Las Vegas, where I hope to get a job. If nothing is available, I'll come back to Fresno and work as a salesman. I don't know if I will return to FCC in the fall or go to Fresno State."

What's New

Old Memories, New Fears Come With Semester's End

By ANDREW FEDERICO

"What's new? How is the world treating you?" That's the way the song goes, and as Frank Sinatra sings it, it is difficult to tell whether he wants to know what is new today or what was new yesterday.

I guess, though, that it doesn't make any real difference because yesterday never really seems too far away. It doesn't seem, for example, that the school year is ending. I woke up this morning and went to class, and the instructor said that there were only two more weeks before finals. What happened to March and April?

Well, the only thing left is for one to try to figure out what he's going to do during the summer. Myself, I'm going to sit around and watch things fall apart, then I'm going to stay there to watch as they rebuild themselves again. I'm going to listen to the grass grow and maybe even go up to Candlestick Park and watch the Giants play. It's going to be a fine summer.

I should be working as a copy boy at a local newspaper. I'll count the times that Charles Hurley, the city editor, pushes his glasses up once they have slipped down his nose from keeping his head down while reading copy. Maybe I'll even keep up with the times that Omar Crane, a sports writer, puts his pipe into his mouth. I doubt that, though.

But one thing still worries me about this job. Zig, a buddy who had once been a copy boy himself, once told me that when he was working as one, there was this reporter who used to call Zig from across the room just to roll the paper on the typewriter for him. Zig used to say that the reporter would get a big bang out of this.

So far I can't say that I've had this experience. But, then, as anyone will tell you, anything can happen in a newspaper office.

One thing that'll be missing this summer is the smiling faces of the women who work in the cafeteria and book store. I never could figure out how they could keep on smiling when I know their feet don't feel like it. I guess they just get used to it after awhile.

Anyway, it's been a great year, one filled with as many things as can be pushed into a year and things which went in, over and around all of the other things which were going in an opposite direction.

But every once in awhile things would slow down so that strangers could meet, and as they did, one of them would say, "What do you know?" The other one would then shrug his shoulders.

Well, I wonder what'll be new next year?

Old Boarding House Faces Destruction

The old Bulldog Kennel — a two story stucco walled building at 2308 College Avenue — will soon be crumbled to oblivion.

This building was a thriving privately operated boarding house for old Fresno State College students in the decades before World War II. Originally the building was called Vassar Hall but as the men students took over they changed it to Cardinal Hall.

Finally this building became a salute to Fresno State College in the 1930's, perhaps because of the emerging power of the FSC football team of that year.

Later, after World War II, this building was used as an office by the Veterans' Administration to process students attending school under the GI bill. After the Veterans' Administration moved out of this building, the student council considered operating the building again as a men's dormitory, but decided it would take too much money to make repairs so the building could be used for a dormitory.

The building later was used as a college office annex until the early 1950's. There still are souvenirs of the last uses of this building such as remnants of old leaflets which were left from the campus religious council.

The tearing down of this building, the Bulldog Kennel, may come as a nostalgic wrench to Fresno State College alumni.

This building was inherited by the Fresno City Unified School District when it bought the campus three years ago for the city college. After buying the campus the school district tried to interest buyers in buying the building, but were unsuccessful. Now the district has agreed to pay an excavation corporation to destroy the building.

There are no definite plans for constructing any new buildings on this site, but the school district will retain the land in case any new college building proposals arise.

From boarding house to office building, the structure has meant home to countless students and faculty alike.

Laurice Jibelian, "I will be working at a local drug store this summer. I'm graduating from FCC in June and plan to go to Fresno State and take general business next semester."

Arsen Avedikian, engineering major, "I think I will go to summer school this summer at Fresno State." In answer to whether or not he plans on returning to FCC in the fall, Avedikian said, "No, I will not be going here next semester; I graduate in June."

Holly Hobbler, lab technician major, said she would spend part of the summer "giving neighborhood children swimming lessons in the family pool. I might go to Chicago during the latter part of the summer, but will return in time to resume my studies here at FCC when the fall semester begins."

Bruce Howison, English major, "I'm going to take a six weeks course in Literature at Fresno State this summer. Later in the summer, I plan on touring the mid-western states."

Helen Rohrbough, education major, "I'll be going to summer school at Fresno State for six weeks. Afterwards, I will be taking care of three little girls at Lake Tahoe and having a ball until the end of August."

School Magazine Goes On Sale Soon

Fresno City College's first literary magazine, Potpourri, will go on sale this week, according to Larry Adams, editor. The price of the magazine will be 25 cents and it will be sold in the foyer of the Student Center by students of the Creative Writing class, English 15.

Potpourri will have 24 pages of stories, articles, poems and plays, written by students of FCC. There are 25 literary works in all.

The magazine is dedicated in memoriam of the late Dean Emeritus James Malloch, who strongly supported the idea of the magazine until his death.

Club News

6 Students Pledge Delta Psi Omega

By JOHN CRIDER

Clyde Sumpter, club sponsor, said the new pledges who participated in the spring production of Antigone are eligible for membership in the Delta Psi Omega.

Sumpter said the pledges who are eligible for membership are: Dana Arslan, Timothy Brooks, John Topalian, Beverly Phelps, Dezie Woods and Philip Wulf.

The pledges will be initiated during the June 11 meeting. The meeting will be held at Barbara Anderson's house in Madera.

The Delta Psi Omega had a picnic at Millerton Lake last Saturday. It was a regular monthly meeting for the club. Sumpter said that the members who went had a good time eating and swimming.

Forensics Club

Franz A. Weinschenk, Forensics club sponsor, said that any student who might be interested in becoming a member of the Forensics club should contact him in his office, Room 120 in McLane Hall.

The club won't have another meeting until the fall semester.

Alpha Gamma Sigma

The Alpha Gamma Sigma has a new $25 scholarship fund. Charles Overs, scholarship chairman of AGS, said this is the first time AGS has ever supported a fund in itself.

The scholarship will be presented during the spring semester of 1961. Overs said it will be available for AGS members.

Don Ozier, Fresno city school consultant, will be AGS's new sponsor starting in the fall semester.

Dr. Paul Pastor, present sponsor, is leaving FCC this semester to teach at Orange County State College in Fullerton.

Dr. Pastor introduced Ozier to the AGS members.

Ten AGS members were awarded gold pins during the installation luncheon last Thursday.

The students receiving pins were Shirley Pacheco, Naomi Hobbs, Mable Lethem, Gesele Boroyan, Florence Harper, Tamra Koerner, Lladona Miller, Diane Nixon, Deanna Haw and Phyllis Williamson.

Charles Overs presented the pins. He said that in order for students to receive gold pins they must be a member of AGS for three semesters.

Three Seniors Receive Blosser Memorial Awards

Leroy Harris and Albert Uriarte, Roosevelt High School seniors, and John D. Peterson of Fresno High School have been named the recipients of the Blosser Memorial Scholarships.

Archie Bradshaw, the dean of students, said this is the fourth year this money has been available. The scholarship is unique in that it is the only one at FCC which recognizes physical education.

To be eligible for this award a student must be a PE major or an outstanding athlete. Bradshaw said the student must also have better than average grades.

Harris excels in the game of baseball; Uriarte in basketball. Peterson is a track man.

Debate Club Schedules 3 Tourneys

Three tournaments have been tentatively scheduled for next semester's forensic students.

Franz Weinschenk, speech instructor and debate coach, said students interested in forensic activities will have ample opportunity to compete with other schools. The first tourney will be the Northern California Forensic Association Tourney at College of Pacific, Oct. 28 and 29.

In November students will be able to participate in the Fresno Invitational. The third tournament of the semester will be the Western Alternate in Bakersfield, Dec. 2 and 3. Aside from the tournaments, Weinschenk said several practice debates will be held with various schools in the valley area.

Guest Speaker

Arthur J. K. DePew will give a speech today at 1 PM in the Administration building, Room 215.

Robert J. Shaver, creative writing teacher, said any students who might be interested in creative writing would enjoy hearing him talk.

DePew is well known in the Fresno area as a writer and poet. He has been nine years editor of an American Legion Federal Post paper and is a member of the California Writers.

White Reviews School Year

With the closing of this school year, it is a pleasure to look back and review the many accomplishments of our college. The completion of our excellent Technical-Vocational buildings has made it possible to enjoy a united campus and has provided top instructional facilities for our students and faculty. Additional improvements have been planned for next year so that we may continue to provide good facilities and enrich our curricular offerings.

The many fine student activities during the year have been outstanding. Members of the student council have generously given of their time and leadership, and their accomplishments have been greatly appreciated by the faculty and the administration.

The entire faculty and the administrative staff join me in expressing our best wishes to all students for a profitable, safe, and enjoyable summer vacation.

41 Students Honored At Awards Assembly

Forty-one students were given awards at the Phi Beta Lambda sponsored Business Awards Assembly Tuesday in the FCC auditorium. The awards were presented by FCC President Stuart M. White.

Dr. McKee Fisk, head of the business division at Fresno State College, spoke to the assembly about career opportunities in the business field.

Bank of America Business Award winners Tamra Lee Koerner and Don N. Walker were presented with certificates and souvenir pictures of their check receiving ceremony which took place in San Francisco last month.

Barbara Sharp received the National Office Management Association award of $100 awarded to a business student who has completed one year at FCC and has demonstrated his or her ability to make good in the major field chosen and who will be returning to complete the second year's work.

The Underwood Corporation certificate for outstanding business education student went to Leland Roy Wolley who has maintained a 3.6 grade average while carrying a full-time (40 hour week) job while doing his college work.

Top Typist

Ann Shiraga received the Underwood Corporation typing pin for outstanding typist. Miss Shiraga has been enrolled in typing the past two semesters and has not been absent a single time. She qualified for the competent typist certificate with an average rate for five minutes of 85 words.

Ram Will Also Have Coeditors

Eddie Wax and Gary Oberti will head the staff of next year's Ram as coeditors.

Wax is the editor of this year's yearbook, and Oberti is the business manager.

Arthur Margosian, Ram adviser, also announced these tentative appointments: John Rea, sports editor; Nadine Randall, art editor, and Rex Wangberg and Mike Cardon, staff photographers. All are returning students.

Margosian said more appointments will be made later.

He said all students interested in working on next year's Ram are invited to see him in his office, Room 213 of the Student Center.

Coeds May Enter Beauty Contest

FCC coeds are invited to participate in the Fresno Diamond Jubilee contest to be held Aug. 17 to Oct. 3 as a preliminary feature of the Fresno Diamond Jubilee celebration Oct. 27-29.

Michael Lally, jubilee chairman for the Fresno Junior Chamber of Commerce, said contestants must be between 16 and 24 years of age, and unmarried.

The contest is open to all qualified girls from the Fresno County area.

The winner will be proclaimed Miss Diamond Jubilee. She will receive a free trip to Hawaii as a major prize and among other awards and honors a chaperon of her choice will make the trip with her.

Entry blanks and rules for the Miss Diamond Jubilee contest may be obtained by writing the Fresno Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mono and H Sts., Fresno.

Edwards Will Lead FCC At State Meet

By JOHNNY NOBLE

A four-man track and field team, composed of Harry Edwards, discus; Chet Rooters, shot put; Gene Johnson, high jump, and Fernie Montanez, 880 yard run, will represent Fresno City College at the California State Junior College meet Saturday in Modesto.

The Ram team placed fourth in team standings at the Northern California Meet in Salinas Saturday. College of the Sequoias placed first, San Francisco City College second, and San Jose City College third.

The Ram giant, Harry Edwards, set a new Northern California Division Junior College discus record of 161 feet 2 inches. Although this throw was not his best registered of the year, it was 2 feet 3 1/2 inches better than the old record held by Rink Babka in 1955 when he was attending Menlo College. Edwards holds the national record of 171 feet 8 1/2 inches, set at the West Coast Relays May 14. Edwards is expected to better this mark Saturday.

Chet Rooters, FCC shot put ace, will face stiff competition Saturday. Although he is not a favorite in this event, he should be ranking in the top three entrants. He took a first place at the meet in Salinas with a throw of 50 feet 1 1/2 inches.

Gene Johnson with a best jump of 6 feet 4 inches, is not expected to capture his usual first place honor, but he should be among the top four in the state.

Fernie Montanez, the fourth of the FCC entrants, has credited to his record a time of 1:56.7 seconds in the 880 yard run. Montanez qualified for the state meet with a fourth place

Fresno City College Sports On Review

By LARRY ADAMS

The academic year, 1959-60, was a year of firsts for the school's athletic department. Some of the firsts were on the losing side but the ones that will be remembered are on the winning side. Win or lose the many teams that represented Fresno City College during the year did an excellent job.

Team-wise the baseball team is the standout. Two weeks ago they captured the first Central California Junior College Athletic Association crown in the history of the school.

Football Team Finishes Strong

The first game of the season was against Fullerton, and the two teams battled to a 6-6 tie. After that the Rams suffered two defeats, one to Sockton, 34-18, and the other to College of the Sequoias in the league debut, 20-12. They finally got in the win column by defeating the Taft Cougars in a league tilt, 32-12, but the following week dropped a 32-0 contest to San Jose City College.

The next game found the Rams battling heads with the eventual league winners, Coalinga. The Rams put up a terrific battle but came out on the short end of an 18-13 game. This marked the first first of the year in sports. It was the first time that Coalinga had ever beaten the Rams in football. Soon Reedley would be added to the list.

Homecoming was spoiled by the weather and a stinging 28-7 defeat in the hands of the Reedley College Tigers. After seven weeks of trying and mostly failing the football team managed to function as a unit in the last two games and beat Porterville, 13-12, and won their final game of the season against the Allan Hancock Bulldogs, 40-38.

Cross-Country and Baseball Too

Mid-way in football season the FCC cross-country, winter league baseball and water polo teams got under way. The cross-country team, led by Jim Hart and Fernie Montanez, finished their regular season with a 5-1 record and placed second in the league meet.

The winter league baseball team placed high in the final standings and provided an excellent indication of the spring baseball team.

The water polo team gained a great deal of valuable experience in meeting a few four-year colleges and junior colleges, although they failed to score a victory.

Basketball and Wrestling

The fall sports bowed out in November and the defending state champion wrestling team looked as though they would repeat the previous year's record.

The Rams won their third league crown and placed third in the state meet. They also added the San Jose Invitational and the Cal Poly Invitational meets to their large win column.

Coach Joe Kelly had a hard time getting his basketball team together but as the season closed out in February they finished in a tie for second place in the league. Two road trips hurt the Rams' win column and the team failed for some weeks to function as a unit.

The crowning moment in the season came when the basketball team held the champion Allan Hancock Bulldogs to a close game for the first 35 minutes but a rally by the league winning Bulldogs set the Rams back. The final season record was 20-11 and 9-3 in league action.

The basketball team also furnished a first when they beat the defending state champion Long Beach City College five; the first time the Rams had beaten a defending state champion.

Spring Sports Take Over

The surprise of the five teams came with the baseball team who won the league crown by defeating College of the Sequoias in a doubleheader.

The Rams wound up with an 18-10 record. They dropped the first game in the state finals to the Oakland City College Thunderbirds, 10-6.

The Rams placed second in track at the league meet and four of the team members will take part in the state tournament in Modesto, Saturday.

Both the tennis and swimming teams came up with too few interested persons to make their season outstanding.

Seemingly second to COS in most spring sports, the golf team which took second place in the league meet, sent a squad to the state tourney and placed in the top ten. Jerry Well led the Rams to their many victories and their close loss to the COS Giants in a league match.

Ram Staff Gets Three New Faces

By RICHARD KRIKAVA

Ellis Carrasco, Morgan E. Shelley, and Dan W. Ozier will join the Fresno City College coaching staff next fall to take the places of Dick Handely, Paul Pastor, and Ray McCarthy.

Carrasco, head football coach at Roosevelt High School, will take Handely's place as assistant football coach. He will handle the backfield chores and assist baseball coach Len Bourdet in baseball.

Carrasco has coached football at San Joaquin Memorial, Edison, Hanford, and Roosevelt high schools. He has a record of 45-14-2 as head football coach at all the schools.

In addition to his coaching work, he will teach Health Education. He received his A.B. degree at Fresno State College.

Shelley will step into the shoes of Pastor and will resume the coaching work in swimming and water polo. He will also teach Health Education. At the present time he is working for the Department of Health and Physical Education for the city school system. He has received B.S. and M.A. degrees from the University of Oregon.

Ozier will replace McCarthy as tennis coach and will leave the Department of Health Services and Guidance to take this position.

Awards Received By Seventy-Two At Sports Feed

Seventy-two Fresno City College athletes received their letter awards at Tuesday night's Spring Banquet. The dinner was held in the Fresno City College cafeteria.

Art Margosian, sports publicity director, presented the Harry Coffee award to team captain Charles Lowe. He also presented an award to Russ O'Leary for the most improved player and another award to Darnell Mikel as the most inspirational player.

Len Bourdet, baseball coach, presented team captain Pete Lango with the most outstanding player award. It was the second year Lango received the award.

Erwin Ginsburg, track mentor, presented speedster Bill Hall with the most outstanding player award in track.

The baseball team lettermen received jackets for their league winning effort.
