

Special senate meet; Davis talks on funds

With regal pomp and circumstance, the ASB Senate held its first special session of the year last week. The highlights of the meeting were a speech by ASB Executive Vice President Dave Davis and the rare presence of TV, radio and newspaper reporters who came to hear him. They, and others in attendance, seemed to go away disappointed.

Davis' speech concerned a problem in procedure for his office that cropped up early last semester.

It seems that individual requests for ASB money were being processed without waiting for a signature of the ASB government. The money was already budgeted by the ASB, but each transaction needed approval.

"I think that it's clear... that the procedures, rules and regulations governing... the administration, management and expenditures of ASB funds by the FCC Administration are null and void," Davis said at the meeting.

Davis said he and other ASB officers tried for several months to correct the problem, but got nowhere with the administration until they discovered a section of the California Education Code which seemed to support their position.

Finally, on Feb. 2, 1976, the procedure was changed so that the check requests would be handled daily by the ASB prior to administrative handling.

The special meeting was called to discuss the problem of a backlog of over $40,000 worth of check requests that Davis refuses to sign because of his interpretation of the education code.

When Davis was asked whether a legal opinion had been obtained, he said a volunteer lawyer had "suggested" that whoever signed the requests would be liable for the funds.

For the first 20 minutes of the meeting Davis told the senators about the initial problems that had been resolved. He stated several times that the FCC Administration's regulations for handling ASB funds were null and void. He then would correct himself, saying that after Feb. 2 the regulations had been changed.

He then said that he refused to sign the "after-the-fact" requests and expressed a fear that the ASB would be dissolved because of the unbalanced audit books.

Doug Peterson, ASB adviser, broke in at this point to say that the ASB wouldn't be dissolved because of the unsigned requests.

This statement was verified after the meeting by Richard Cleland, dean of special services. Cleland stated that the unsigned requests would be noted in the official audit report, but otherwise nothing would be done.

"I think that Davis is just trying to make a name for himself by blowing this thing out of proportion with a witch hunt," he said. "Inviting those city journalists was nothing more than a grandstand play."

No stories about the meeting appeared in the city news media.

ASB ponders pay for senior senators

The Student Senate is considering a proposal to allow Senators to be paid for work done for the ASB.

Executive Vice President Dave Davis introduced a motion "that the nine senior senators be allowed to be paid for work done for the ASB Senate under ASB Work Study Program..." A senior senator is a senator that has served at least one previous semester on the Senate.

Davis said this would provide incentive for the senators to do the work assigned them. He said it is unfair to expect the senior senators to work for free. The motion was referred Tuesday to the Constitutional Revision Committee.

ASB President Richard Mata made a preliminary report on a study on a proposal to keep the Learning Resources Center open on Saturdays. He said it "would be beneficial and advantageous to day as well as night students." The final decision will be made at the district level.

Mike Kennedy was appointed to the Senate by Mata. The Senate has approved the appointment. Mata also notified the Senate that he has appointed a press secretary, Marcus Barile.

Legislative Vice President Dave Schroeder appointed Larry Wiemiller to the office of parliamentarian. The Senate approved this appointment also.

The Senate also passed a motion awarding former Senator Penny Scott an honorary life membership card. Honorary life membership cards are awarded by the Senate to past ASB members who have served the ASB beyond what had been expected of them.

The Senate granted the theater arts department a $3,500 loan to finance a planned summer production of "Oklahoma."

A motion to give the women's track team $1,500 to buy new uniforms failed.

Executive VP Davis appointed a committee to work with Dr. Clyde C. Mc Cully, FCC President, to revise and rewrite policies.

The Senate voted to set aside $475 as a retainer fee for a lawyer to advise the Senate on legal matters.

The Senate also voted to hire a secretary to keep the ASB Office open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Applications for this position are available in SC-205.

Fresno City College forensics competitors walked off with top honors at the Butte College tournament last weekend. Competing against schools from California and Oregon, FCC placed sixth in overall ratings, with Larry Wiemiller taking three awards.

Due to a computational error, however, the Forensics squad may even have taken fifth ratings overall, instead of the previously noted sixth.

Wiemiller, in his first year at FCC, placed in three separate speech contests: first place in Lincoln-Douglas debate, second in Persuasive Speaking, and third in Impromptu Speaking. Wiemiller had done similarly well at a previous tournament.

Of the other two squad members in attendance, Mark Little placed third in After Dinner Speaking, and was a finalist in Expository Speaking. Joyce Shimizu, in her second tournament of the year, placed as a finalist in Oral Interpretation, while missing finals of Expository by a fraction of a point.

Forensics coach Tony Kocolas commented, "It's incredibly phenomenal that a squad so small could do so well." He said that of the 16 schools there, FCC was tied for smallest squad (three members), while the largest was Cosumnes River College with 27 members. Out of more than 300 competitors, FCC forensics students did proportionately better than any other college.

FCC sent only three people to this tournament, but coach Kocolas plans on taking a full squad to the Santa Rosa Invitational March 5-7, considered the largest tournament of the year. The squad expects to take some top honors.

According to Kocolas, space is available for more students, if any would like to attend and compete while learning about forensics. For more information, see Kocolas in SM-203 no later than March 1.

ALAN BATES & GENEVIEVE BUJOLD

KING OF HEARTS

In an isolated surreal pocket of World War I, the British send Alan Bates into a highly unlikely, tiny French town to discover a bomb. The townspeople have fled and the inmates of the local asylum have taken their place. The resulting interaction gives us some of the most enchanting sequences on film. When the reality of the retreating armies breaks the bubble and the inmates have returned to the asylum, we can really share Bates' confusion about which people are really insane. In our opinion, KING OF HEARTS is a rare treat; funny and sad at the same time.

SILENCE IS DEADLY.

When someone drinks too much and then drives, it's the silence that kills. Your silence. It kills your friends, your relatives, and people you don't even know. But they're all people you could save. If you knew what to say, maybe you'd be less quiet. Maybe fewer people would die. What you should say is, "I'll drive you home." Or, "Let me call a cab." Or, "Sleep on my couch tonight."

Don't hesitate because your friend may have been drinking only beer. Beer and wine can be just as intoxicating as mixed drinks. And don't think that black coffee will make him sober. Black coffee never made anyone sober. Maybe it would keep him awake long enough to have an accident. But that's about all. The best way to prevent a drunk from becoming a dead drunk is to stop him from driving. Speak up. Don't let silence be the last sound he hears.

TEACHER POLL

How do you keep students awake?

John Castine, English: "I don't do anything. I just let them sleep. This semester I have a boy in my class that obviously works late at night and has trouble staying awake. But I figure he needs the rest so I let him sleep."

Gonzalo Estrada, English: "Generally speaking, I don't. However, I insist that the class look at me before I say anything to them."

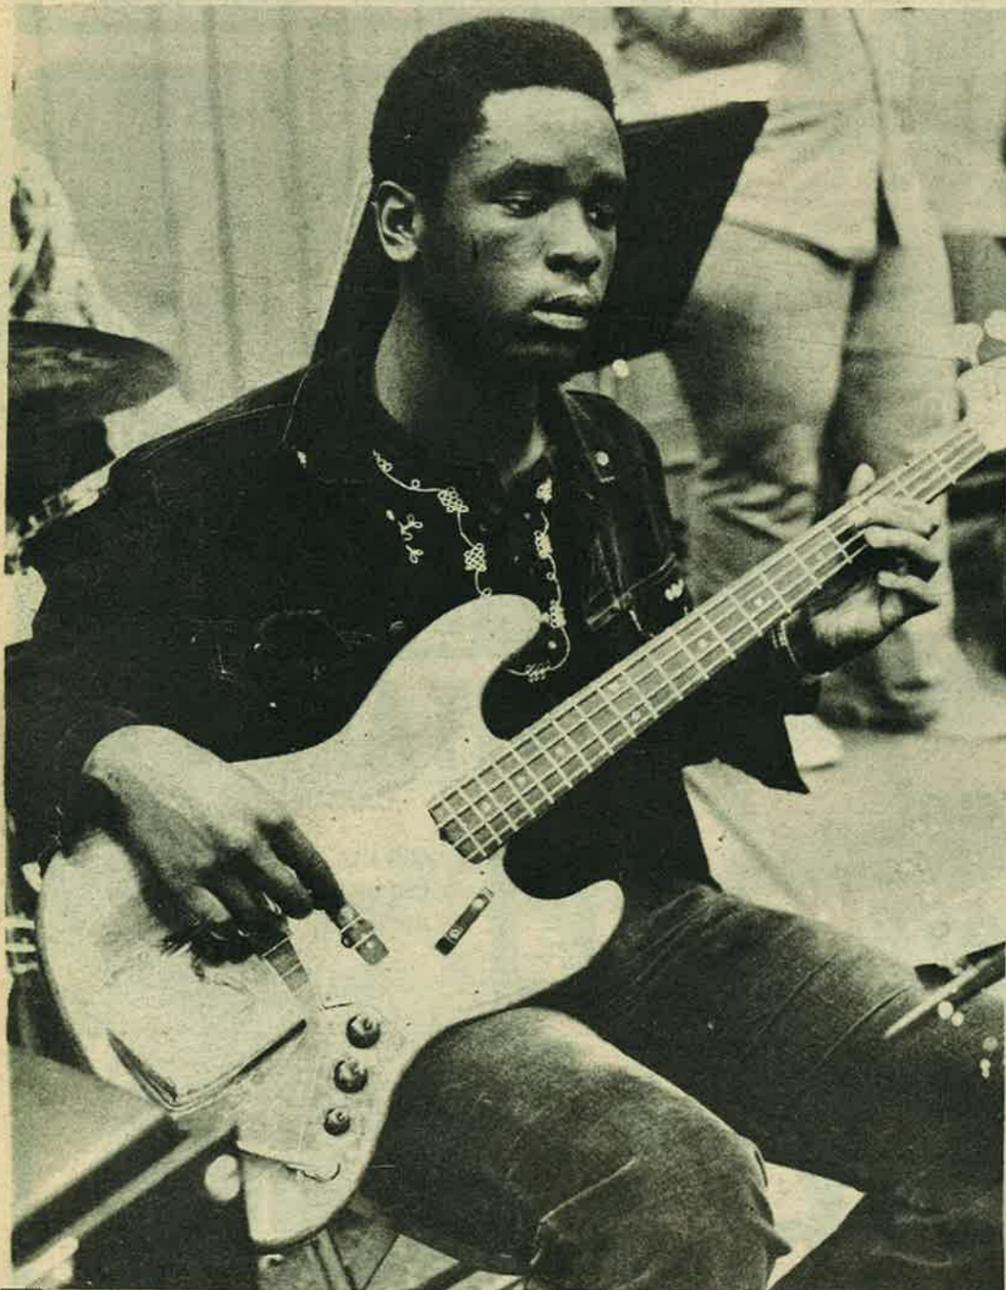

Dr. Sidney Harriet, English: "I've never had that problem in the past. However, when I notice that a student is drifting off, I call his name and ask his opinion on the topic at hand."

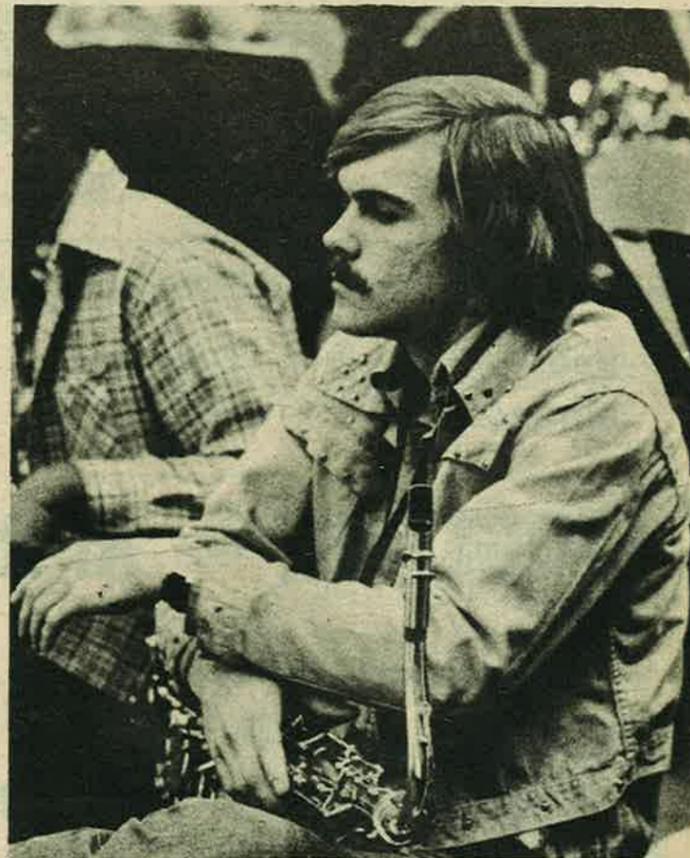

Carmen Elgorriaga, Spanish: "I entertain them and terrorize them. A teacher is probably the best entertainer in town. Sometimes I will sing and yell at them."

Allen Beck, Anthropology: "Basically speaking, I let them sleep. However, I try and throw in a little funny now and then. I also use examples that relate to real life."

THINK POSITIVE

Getting along with others

By Roger Zamora

One of the variables involved, which is the easiest way to educate or cultivate someone's dislikes, is to consistently compete with him.

And also, were you aware that you don't have to prove, all the time, that you're as good as or better than the next guy to get along with him?

These are just some of the ways some British psychologists have developed to help us get along better with others.

Further still; don't think people dislike you because they're constantly criticizing you. Instead, recognize that most people are too busy with their own problems to develop strong feelings against you, unless you are overtly disagreeable.

Don't think you are the only one who deserves consideration.

Don't try to please everyone; instead, develop your own opinions and interests, remembering that not everyone appreciates a copy cat.

Don't think you have to stand out in a crowd to be liked. People like other people who have qualities that can be shared. And finally, one last repetition of that tried-and-true standby: Be a good listener. It's good advice.

FCC will host jazz festival

Highlighted by a concert featuring jazz pianist Roland Haynes, the FCC jazz band, and the winning high school and college jazz bands, the Fresno Jazz Band Festival will get underway Friday and Saturday in the Theatre.

FCC music instructor and festival director Gil Rodriguez has scheduled the festival to begin at 1 p.m. Friday. Performances by junior high school bands from Kingsburg, Tulare, Chowchilla, Clovis, Dinuba, and Fresno will lead off.

Competition will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday with performances by high school bands from Atwater, Tulare, Merced, Clovis, Kingsburg, Fresno, Modesto, and Richmond. College bands slated to compete are COS, Monterey Peninsula, Dixie College of Utah, Reedley, Chaffey College of Alta Loma, Long Beach City, and Fresno State University.

The festival concludes Saturday with an evening concert at 8 p.m. The concert not only features the winning high school and jazz bands, the FCC jazz band, but also a performance by Haynes, an accomplished jazz pianist who has toured Europe with Dizzy Gillespie and Duke Ellington. He has performed in the U.S. with Dionne Warwick and Ella Fitzgerald.

Haynes has also played many colleges and universities. Performances at the University of Puget Sound and the University of Washington were sellouts. Haynes was born in the British West Indies and studied at the Conservatory of Music in Paris after giving up a career in chemistry.

Tickets are free, one per person, with ASB card, for the competition on Friday and Saturday. Tickets for the Saturday night concert are $2 for students and $3 general public. Tickets can be obtained at the ticket office and theatre box office.

Candidate Hernandez

Aid adviser seeks Sanger council seat

Josh Hernandez

Campaigning on a platform of equal representation, FCC financial aid counselor Josh Hernandez is vying with eight other candidates for a vacant seat on the Sanger City Council to be filled by election March 2.

"I feel the average citizen is not represented on the current council. Being made up primarily of businessmen, the council doesn't represent a clear crosscut of the Sanger population," stated Hernandez.

Hernandez has been a financial aid counselor for the past 3½ years. Before coming to FCC he served as an administrative assistant to Perry Powers, Sanger city manager. Living in Sanger since he was 14, Hernandez feels his previous experience with the Sanger city government has given him a better understanding of problems facing Sanger.

Hernandez noted that the city council meets only two times a month, leaving plenty of time for his FCC position. However, Hernandez noted that he plans to devote as much time as necessary to his council job.

"I do some campaigning every day, but this hasn't been what you'd call an arduous campaign," said Hernandez. Coming in runnerup two years ago in the same election, Hernandez feels his past campaign experience will help him this time around.

"If elected, I want to go on record as saying that my door will always be open to my constituents," stated Hernandez.

"Government is, in the final analysis, a business operated for the taxpayers benefit. It should, and must, operate with the same efficiency and high quality of services expected of any other business. I agree with the pay-as-you-go philosophy.

"I have always been a community-involved person in such things as school improvement, recreational and youth activities and charitable functions. I hope to continue to serve the Sanger community in any way I can."

Stancil ineligible, but no forfeits

By Mitch Huerta

Superstition or coincidence, Friday the 13th was unlucky for the Ram basketball team.

On that day, head coach Chuck Stark received a notice declaring starting forward Marvin Stancil scholastically ineligible for the remainder of the season.

"Immediately, I felt sorry for him and the team. Later, I worried about the forfeits," recalls Stark.

Stancil, who was a definite factor in the Rams title bid, was depressed and disheartened, and rightly so.

From almost being dropped in the first two weeks, he had developed himself into one of the most entertaining players ever to wear a Ram uniform. In his last three contests, he was averaging over 20 points and 10 rebounds. He was starting to come around.

Stancil, a freshman from Jefferson High School in Los Angeles, did not receive a deficiency notice from his geography teacher. Therefore, he assumed he was passing, and would pass his four-unit class.

He finished his first semester in college with eight total units (four below the 12 minimum placed on all athletes), and doubt in his mind.

The press and cameras frequently visited the campus about him. I heard "via the bench" that he was upset and bothered by them.

However, not all was lost.

One week later, the conference commissioners met in Modesto to decide whether FCC would have to forfeit three spring semester victories in which Stancil participated.

Our representatives were Dean of Students Merle Martin and Athletic Director Hans Wiedenhofer. Martin and Wiedenhofer presented the defense for FCC: 1.) our computerized grade system was late, and 2.) we played by the rules.

The commission, by a majority vote, decided not to penalize the Rams for playing an ineligible player unknowingly.

I must commend the commission on the outcome. They had every right to vote against FCC, but instead "voted on the situation rather than the rule."

How was Stancil feeling now?

"He was elated and felt good for the team. Naturally, he would feel sole responsibility for the forfeits, but the team did not place any blame on him," commented Stark.

The Rams, in their quest for their first conference title in six years, were officially 9-2, instead of a possible 6-5.

"It was a bit lift," stated Jay Pack, who replaced the vacancy left by Stancil. "He was a big help. Sure, it's gonna hurt some, but we're a good ball club. He could leap out of the gym (Marv told me on a good day he could jump and his wrist would be against the top of the box on the backboard)."

Guard Robert Wright, who happens to room with Eddie Adams and Stancil, said, "We don't have the intimidation inside as much, and we miss his offensive rebounding. It hurt us, but we're all working even harder."

Stancil, who still practices with this buddies, has tentative plans to come back next year.

He has gone through an ordeal most people can only imagine happening to them. It is unfortunate that it happened to him and at this time.

Whether the Rams make the state championships or not, you will find him there eating his popcorn and thinking to himself, "Man, I would have blocked that shot. Ha ha ha. The ball would be in the fourth row of the stands. Shoot, man! I'd stuff that ball."

And knowing Marvin Stancil, he probably would.

McCully helps dedicate LDS religion institute

"Across the street we teach philosophy. Here you teach religion. Philosophy cannot hope to encompass all that religion does, for religion answers the questions philosophy asks."

This was among the remarks made by FCC President Clyde C. McCully Sunday at dedication ceremonies of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Institute of Religion. The Institute building had been beset with construction problems, a fact which many of the speakers mentioned, including McCully sympathetic because of similar problems encountered at FCC.

The gist of McCully's remarks and those of other speakers' remarks was the good the Institute would perform for the college which it served. This was the theme of Michael Smurthwaite, director of the Institute, who said its purpose was to "balance secular knowledge with the teachings of the Church," but at the same time encourage learning by Mormons at FCC. In addition, said Smurthwaite, the Institute would provide a "Wholesome atmosphere for students to meet, mingle and marry."

Oliver K. Welton, FCC campus priesthood leader, acknowledged the Institute's role as a gathering place but said its main purpose was education, for Mormons believe that "Education is the glory of God and man." Welton commented on the traditional educational excellence of the state of Utah, where the Mormon Church is headquartered.

The Institute of Religion is at 1631 N. Van Ness, across from the campus.

Rams stuff Cosumnes, await Sacramento City

BULLETIN--Last night, the Ram basketball team crushed Cosumnes River 90-75, to stay tied for first place with Delta.

* * *

Behind steady Eddie Adams' 35 points, the Rams basketball team bounced Reedley College 92-80 last Friday to maintain their share of the Valley Conference lead with San Joaquin Delta.

Adams, who played most of the game with a broken capped tooth, smoothly sank 13 of 20 from the floor, and was perfect from the line to reach the 600-point plateau this season.

Adams' courageous and flawless Athlete-of-the-week honors from less play earned him JC the Valley Sportswriters Association Monday.

"In his last six games, Ed has averaged 28 points and 11 rebounds. He's shot 60 per cent from the field and 75 per cent in the charity line. That's unbelievable!" noted head coach Chuck Stark.

Fresno controlled the game from the tip and jumped to a 28-13 advantage when Adams left the game holding his jaw. The Rams played evenly with the Tigers for nine minutes, and led at intermission 45-33.

Reedley scared the Rams in the second half, scoring eight straight points to trail 45-41. At that point, Stark called a time out and disgustingly yelled, "You guys want it or not?"

Just like that, FCC outscored RC by 19 markers and led 87-66.

Jay Pack, filling the size 12 shoes of ineligible Marvin Stancil, netted his college career high of 20 points. Pack received some excellent passes from guards Bill Allen, Harold Dennis and Robert Wright.

Sam Pondexter grabbed 13 rebounds to help give FCC a 38-34 rebounding edge.

Fresno hit 50 per cent from the field (40 of 79), compared to Reedley's 33 of 65.

The win gives Fresno a 10-2 league mark, and drops the Tigers to the exact opposite, 2-10.

The Rams, overall 22-6, finish regular conference play this Saturday night in Sacramento. FCC whipped Sac City at home 83-67 in their last confrontation.

Should FCC and Delta finish conference play tied, a playoff game on a neutral court will decide who represents the VC in the state tournament March 11-13 in Fresno's Selland Arena.

Baseball nine prepares for home opener Saturday

Tuesday afternoon action the Rams were beaten by Hancock 14-7. Ram pitching gave up 11 walks, and there were 11 team errors.

The Ram batters divided their Friday and Saturday afternoon games in the COS tournament.

The Rams, now well into the season, lost Friday to Hancock

3-2, but they beat Laney 5-2. That win over Laney came when first baseman Bob Glazebrook in the eighth inning hit a fly ball that was misjudged, leading to three runs and a victory.

Saturday Glazebrook again put the Rams into a victory slot. Into the last inning against West Hills, the score tied 3-3 and base loaded, Glazebrook drew a walk, which gave the Rams a 4-3 win. Also Saturday, the Rams tied with Bakersfield 4-4 as their tournament time ran out.

The Rams' first home game, against Merced, will be Saturday Feb. 28, at 1 p.m. at John Eules Park.

Matmen seek berths in state competition

Led by Tom Gongora, the FCC wrestling team will compete in the North Central State Qualifying meet tomorrow in Rocklin.

Gongora, the state's No. 1 ranked 142 pounder, puts his undefeated season (27-0) on the line and a berth for the state championships. The top four finishers move on to compete for state medals Friday and Saturday, March 5-6, at West Valley (Saratoga).

"Tommie is definitely in the top three in his weight division. I think he has a better chance than anyone else. He's worked hard for his achievements. He is an excellent individual," remarked Ram coach Al Kiddy.

Kiddy, in his first year from Madera, guided the Rams to a (4-2) third place finish in Valley Conference dual matches. The Cal JC Wrestling Review rated the Fresno matmen No. 10 in the state.

Also competing in Rocklin will be Freddie Daniels at 118 lbs. Daniels compiled a 19-8 record and was unbeatable in VC matches.

Rod Smith will suit up in the 126 weight class.

Brad Arvance and Richard Ramirez, both plagued by injuries, wrestled each other yesterday morning for the right to represent FCC. The winner will wrestle at 134; the loser begins thinking about next year.

Randy Baxter (26-7) and Eugene Royal (20-6) also faced each other yesterday, but the consequences weren't as tragic.

The winner wrestles at 150 lbs.; the loser at 158.

Joe Bracamonte (19-2) looks for his 20th win at his 167 lb. weight bracket. Amos Scott, of Washington Union, wears the red and yellow colors at 177 lbs., and Manuel Gomez (14-4) checks in at 190 lbs.

Spring-eligible candidate Ernie Young grapples with the "big boys" in the heavyweight unlimited division.

If it weren't for injuries, FCC's mat team might have reclaimed its state title won last year. But Kiddy, not looking for excuses, comments, "Injuries really hurt us, especially losing Tony Manning. But, it's just one of those things that happen."

Ping pong tourney will begin Tuesday

Signups for the spring edition of FCC's Intramural table tennis tournament are now being taken on the Intramural board in the Gym foyer.

Competition will be held in singles and doubles for both men and women.

Intramural T-shirts will be awarded to all divisional winners.

Deadline for registration is this Monday, March 1. Tournament play will begin the following day in the foyer area.

Profits should benefit students

What to do with an extra hundred thousand dollars seems hardly a problem. But for the FCC Administration, the accumulating profits from the Bookstore may prove to be the enigma.

Probably less understood is who controls and benefits from Bookstore revenues. The Bookstore operates as a private business with all transactions separate from the State Center Community College District. FCC is responsible for insuring that the store doesn't operate in the red. To accomplish this the Bookstore gears its sales for a profit, which comes to between 20 to 30 thousand dollars annually.

These monies are piled into trust accounts, from which the interest is used to support the scholarship program at City College.

The Bookstore wasn't constructed as a profit-making organization, it's just not supposed to go broke. How do you channel profits from a non-profit educational institution? "We think we've reached a limit where we shouldn't generate any more Bookstore trust accounts, other than those for scholarships," says Richard Cleland, campus business manager. Student rebate programs have been considered but haven't proved practical.

How much can be saved and for what purposes isn't fully understood. "Operating at the pleasure of the district," the Bookstore could be annexed at any time by the district with returns going into the district's general fund. Management of the Cafeteria was taken over by the district in much the same way.

The Bookstore should be leased to and operated by the ASB, whose members (students) provide the business and profits.

Returns from an ASB store are not restricted to just ASB functions and activities under the California Educational Code. Profits from an ASB store should be directly enjoyed by the students, instead of being locked away.

FILM REVIEW

'Cuckoo's Nest' good, but not up to novel or play

By Rod Paul

About four years ago I read the book "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." I immediately respected it as good literature. When I attended the play in San Francisco I felt it did justice to the book. The play was just as emotionally striking and held all the meaning that the novel had. After seeing the film I find it hard to comprehend how somebody could mess up such a potentially good script.

The movie follows the story line of the book fairly accurately, but skips over the thoughts of Chief Bromden, which gave depth and meaning to the story. The script is shallow, so shallow that the title barely applies to it anymore.

Jack Nicholson stars as a prisoner who declares himself insane in order to escape the toils of the work farm. McMurphy (Nicholson) is taken to a mental institution where most of the story takes place. Nurse Ratched (Louise Fletcher) becomes the antagonist of the film as it appears that she, through her technique of therapy, is causing more harm to the patients than good. The film exposes the conflict between McMurphy and Nurse Ratched, and the relationships established between McMurphy and the patients.

Do not expect to see elaborate costumes, fine hairdos, and beautiful people. This is a mental institution and it is not hard to believe that everyone is pretty crazy. Each patient portrays his character very well. Louise Fletcher is a new actress who portrays Nurse Ratched better than I've ever seen. She plays a sweetly evil woman who never loses her cool. This may be Miss Fletcher's first major role, but it won't be her last.

On the other hand, Nicholson's characterization seemed a bit hollow. Unlike the book and the play, McMurphy is often cold and heartless to the patients. I can not tell whether this is Forman's fault or Nicholson's, whom ever's it is, they blew it. This changes the mood and feeling that the story delivers.

Though most of the meaningful (thematic) dialogue is cut from the film, it seems that Forman tries to expose the theme through visuals. If Nicholson's character comes off insensitive to the other patients, then this is working against the theme. From this aspect of the film I believe it fails.

If the viewer looks at the film as merely entertainment, it is successful. The story line is excellent, and would take quite a bit of work to totally mess it up. The film holds the audience's attention very well. It will take you from moments of laughter to moments of sheer intensity.

This is a good film, a bit disappointing if one is familiar with the story, but a movie that should not be missed.

A.S.B. COLUMN

Non-interference advocated

In regards to the article published in the Feb. 19 issue of the Rampage, and the communique compiled by ASB Vice President Dave Davis to the administration, a few points need clarification.

The State Education Code, specifically Sec. 10703, states, "The (student body) funds shall be expended subject to such procedures as may be established by the student body organization..."

More simply, student body funds shall be disbursed according to procedures set down by the ASB. The old procedures, directly contrary to the code, meant that the treasurer approved expenditures after they were made. This situation has been remedied with the introduction of new procedures in keeping with the Education Code.

The old procedures were flabby and allowed for inconsistencies and "mishandling" of student funds. In example of this point was the fact that requests for ASB funds reached the attention of the ASB treasurer three months AFTER the money was spent. Clearly this represents oversight on the part of the treasurer, however, the point is that requisitions should reach the ASB office when they are received. Besides being contrary to the codes, prior procedures were slow, ineffective, and not conducive to the efficient exercise of student government.

There are people who refuse to accept responsibility or criticism where it is due. Ironically, these same people have asked me to abandon projects aimed at student interests, such as my proposal to offer discount buying to ASB cardholders and the opening of the Library on Saturdays, and allow the Senate to work on its adoption.

What then are they advocating? Perhaps they would prefer me to direct my attentions full time to investigating claims of "mishandling of funds"? Maybe if more effort was paid to carrying out their own tasks, more would be accomplished.

An example of these "mishandling" claims can be seen in the recent "Senate" purchase of a tape recorder. The recorder was needed but was purchased without prior approval of the Senate.

What I'm advocating is a policy of non-interference by overseeing administrators in matters clearly delegated to the executive branch of the student body. I am not advocating a complete schism by any means, but a separation allowing both offices to continue their work undisturbed. The ASB and administration can work together effectively to get the job done, when such an arrangement is warranted. Such an arrangement would facilitate streamlined operation of student government, but at the wrong time administrative meddling could lead to slowing of ASB processes.

If we can work without unwarranted administrative interference, the wheels of progress can proceed to help bring benefit to the students and their elected representatives.
