Trouble with Rally for Ratcliffe

by Walter Moore

Over $135,000 in expenses, two extensions on their contract, and a worried campaign, has sent the Janotta Company, the professional fund raiser for Ratcliffe Stadium, to the showers.

Janotta's contract with FCC expires at the end of October and Dr. Clyde McCully, FCC president, said, "The administration will not request or recommend that their contract be renewed by the board of trustees."

McCully feels that Janotta has been effective in putting together a campaign which can now be taken over by the school without employing a professional fund raiser.

"We will continue the campaign and renovate Ratcliffe so that it will be a fine facility available to the community as well as Fresno City College," said McCully.

Janotta came to FCC with a good track record. They recently raised $1.25 million for the Fresno Arts Center, and were effective in raising $1.75 million for San Joaquin Memorial High School.

In the Ratcliffe campaign, the fund raiser has collected $201,876.08 since August of 1982. In excess of $138,000.00 has gone for expenses, $91,106.22 is listed as outstanding pledges, and $97,000.00 expected from three rock concerts. The Ratcliffe goal is $950,000.

David Creighton, president of the State Center Community College board of trustees, said, "The board is disappointed with the high administrative costs of the campaign, but there has been some useful professional work done."

Creighton also said, "Ratcliffe is like an old car that you keep pumping money into, hoping that you are doing the right thing to protect your investment."

McCully feels that the Ratcliffe campaign has suffered because of a weak economy, competition from other community projects, a lack of alumni organizations and negative criticism from people and groups on and off the campus. He will be offering several options to the board of trustees at the November meeting.

According to JoAnne Lippart of Janotta Company, the professional fundraising organization will not ask for the re-newal of their contract at it's termination date the end of October.

Lippart said she feels that Rally for Ratcliffe is ready to be taken over by individuals or organizations on campus.

"We have laid the groundwork for someone else to continue with," said Lippart.

Campus awakened to the challenge of existing in a handicapped world

By Denise Bartlett

Last Wednesday, October 12 was the date for the second annual Handicapped Awareness Day sponsored by the Fresno City College Enabler Program, and the Associated Student Body.

Businesses and service organizations which serve the handicapped set up booths in the Free Speech area where the event was held, and showed their wares to the curious observers who participated in the days activities.

At 10:30 a.m., the day kicked off with the lively Jazzercise troupe led by Christie May, along with 10 other women from her exercise classes.

"I was really encouraged by the handicapped students at FCC," said May. "Several students with cerebral palsy expressed interest in the Jazzercise program after seeing us perform."

According to Art Martinez of the Enabler Program, at least 22 booths were present at H.A.D. with goods and services from throughout the Fresno area aimed at serving the disabled student.

One of those booths was manned by Danny Delgado, part owner of Mobility Engineering Company of Fresno. Delgado demonstrated a Jaguar which had been modified to accomodate a handicapped driver.

Mobility Engineering also installs drop floors, lifts, modified seats, and other devices needed for handicapped drivers and passengers.

The Friendship Center for the Blind was also on hand to demonstrate some of the devices needed by the visually impaired and blind individuals. Special watches, braille recorders, checkbook aids and other aids were shown there.

Some of the other booths included the Central California Blood Bank, California Association for the Physical Handicapped, and Therapeutic Services among many others.

Delta Epsilon Chi was on hand serving complimentary sodas, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes gave away snow cones. MEChA had been scheduled to provide popcorn, but due to technical difficulties was unable to do so.

Mayor Dan Whitehurst was on hand to speak at the opening ceremonies along with FCC President Clyde McCully.

"It's so easy for us to lose sight of the difficulty of someone on crutches or in a wheelchair to get around," said Whitehurst. "I'm glad to see the students at FCC putting on such an event."

McCully cited his pride in seeing a tradition of service and cooperation toward the handicapped student carried on with the continuation of H.A.D.

After the official ceremonies were completed, Whitehurst answered the questions of several MEChA members who were concerned about a key to the city which had been given to a musical group sponsored by a beer company with questionable hiring policies.

Dr. McCully and Whitehurst then seated themselves in wheel chairs and took a guided tour of the campus with Dave Morrison who is a handicapped student. Morrison led the two up and down some of the Candidates running for positions on the State Center Community College Board of Trustees will be introduced in a forum sponsored by the Associated Student Body and the Political Science department of Fresno City College today from 12:00 noon until 2:00 p.m.

The event will be held in the Free Speech area located in front of the Cafeteria. All students, faculty, administrators, and staff are urged to attend.

Anyone wishing to pose a question to the candidates is welcome to do so, but interrogators are requested to keep their questions brief, and to stick to issues concerning the SCCC board.

According to Daniel Betancur, FCC student trustee, and Master of Ceremonies for the forum, a good turnout by the candidates is expected.

Let's do it ourselves

The fund raising project to renovate Ratcliffe Stadium which started with a big bang last September, 1982, is now about to bow out with a whimper.

The contract with Janotta Company, the firm handling the fund raising effort, will expire at the end of this month. Not only has Janotta failed to raise the goal of $950,000, but the firm ended up with two-thirds of the actual cash received.

According to figures supplied by the Rally for Ratcliffe office, hard cash now actually in hand totals $201,876.08. Of that amount, $97,977 was income from the three rock concerts which was initiated by Fresno City College officials and Associated Students Body officers.

Janotta initiated activities--Fathers Day Runs, Jogathons, volley ball tournaments, individual donations and other activities--netted only $103,899.08. And the firm has claimed, as of August 31, $138,513.23 in professional fees and campaign costs! Thus FCC ended up with only $63,362.85 for the stadium renovation, much less than Janotta got in fees and costs.

This is an expensive way of learning a lesson. We can only hope that the renovation of Ratcliffe Stadium will not be totally abandoned because of this expensive faux pas.

School officials and student officers had proved, by coming out with the rock concerts brain storm, that fund raising could be successfully launched without enlisting the services of professional public relations firms. We have learned our lesson, and we know we can do the fund raising ourselves. LET'S DO IT!

The first of two blood drives to be held at Fresno City College during the 1983-84 school year will take place next Tuesday and Wednesday, October 25 and 26. It will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day in the Student Center, north of the Bookstore.

The drive is co-sponsored by the Central California Blood Bank and the Fresno City College health service. The blood donated during the drive helps to replenish the health service blood bank.

If you plan to donate blood, make sure you eat a balanced breakfast that morning. Medications, such as aspirin, cannot be taken in the 24-hour period before the blood donation. Giving blood is fairly simple, usually taking 10 to 15 minutes to complete.

Your blood donation will insure that you or a member of your family will be able to receive blood when needed. This service is effective for one year from the day of the donation.

There is also a competition between groups on campus during the drive. The club or organization that donates the most pints of blood during the two-day period will have its name engraved on a plaque in the Student Senate office. The Rampage was the winner in the Spring contest, and we hope to capture that title again during this drive.

Show your school spirit. Donate blood for your favorite campus organization, and help insure that someone in need will be able to receive that much needed liquid of life. . . blood.

Bits-n-Pieces

Waiting for the stork

by Denise Bartlett

Well, for the first time now, I am about to become an aunt. By the way I've been feeling about it, you'd think I was the one about to have a baby, instead of my sister.

Every time my phone rings, I rush to answer it thinking, "is it a boy or a girl." When it turns out being a friend, or a salesman trying to get me to buy a vacuum cleaner, I get pretty resentful -- Why couldn't it be a "stork call."

I'm reminded of the nervous father, anxiously pacing the halls of the waiting room, awaiting news of his wife and child. These guys have been known to do some pretty funny things sometimes.

Every time a doctor or nurse appears in the lobby, the poor fellow rushes off to bulldog them for any tidbit of information.

Then there's the guy who decides to participate in the miracle of birth, standing beside his wife through her ordeal.

They go through weeks of training, learning breathing methods, timing of contractions and having a working knowledge of everything that happens.

Finally the moment arrives, and "momma" goes into labor.

A friend of mine who is an obstetrics nurse told the story of one such fellow.

"He rushed her to the hospital, all of the time coaching her breathing and timing the contractions. Everything was going just fine," said my nursing friend. "That is until the moment of delivery. It was just too much for the guy. . . he passed out in the delivery room and cracked his head open. We released his wife the next day, but had to keep him nearly a week with a fractured skull."

I remember some of the things my parents told me about where babies come from before they were ready to talk about the birds and the bees.

For years, I was convinced that babies were hidden under cabbage leaves. (To this day, I can't tolerate sauerkraut!)

Other parents have told kids that babies are delivered by the stork. Just imagine the skies crowded with flapping birds during a baby boom!

At this writing, my sister is still waiting, and over a week late.

I'm doing ok though, but I've decided on one thing. . . I think I'll raise cocker spaniels. . .

Sun Stone on display in the library

By Donna Reese

The dedication ceremony for the Sun Stone Calendar (known to most people as the Aztec calendar) to Fresno City College was held last Wednesday, October 12, in the Library Conference Room.

The Sun Stone was donated to FCC by the La Raza faculty and staff. It will be on permanent display in the Circulation Room of the Library where it will serve as an esthetic and educational resource for the college community.

The ceremony began with introductions made by Celia Maldonado, president of the La Raza Faculty Association, who was overwhelmed by the response of the people. (Throughout the ceremony it was standing room only.)

The official unveiling of the Sun Stone was made by Robert Arroyo, dean of Community Services and the acceptance was made by Dr. Clyde McCully, President of FCC.

Dr. McCully said "It (the Sun Stone) will be a significance to the college."

Dr. Cecilo Orozco, professor at California University of Fresno, gave a short presentation on the history of the Sun Stone.

During his presentation Dr. Orozco said the original Sun Stone was carved in 1470. It was lost in the early 1500's as a result of the Spanish Conquest and was rediscovered on December 17, 1790 in the Central Plaza of Mexico City. It is now on public display in Mexico's Museum of Anthropology and History.

Robert Arroyo answers questions at the Sun Stone dedication as FCC President Dr. Clyde C. McCully gazes on.

According to Dr. Orozco, the Sun Stone tells the history of the migrations of the ancient native Americans from the Ice Lands of the far north to Tenochtitlan (Mexico City) during the course of many millennia. The Sun Stone represents a composite of cultures and cultural developments including values from the Maya, the Tarascans, the Toletecs, the Olmecs, Teotihuacans, the Nahuatl and the Aztecs.

The Sun Stone was created by artist David Villasenor from a hand-carved mold. The stone is made of fiberglass and is a 44-inch scale version of the original Sun Stone.

Villasenor has also created a full scale model of the Sun Stone that weighs 600 pounds and is 12 feet in diameter. It is on permanent display at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

ramps on campus and also provided them with an opportunity to negotiate a restroom door.

The days activities continued with the City Singers vocal group performing several numbers, and concluded with the music of Kenny Hall and the Long Hall String Band.

According to Martinez, the entire day went well. "The day was a success all the way," said Martinez. "We're already looking forward to the 1984 event."

Handicapped Awareness Day T-shirts are still available in the bookstore at $6.50 for mens, and $7.50 for womens shirts.

Small crowd, big Beat at 'Star'

Paul Collins

by Dan Immel

To dance or not to dance. This is the question the owners of Warnor's Star Palace have been grappling with for quite sometime.

At last weekend's dance party in the Star Palace featuring The Beat and Eddie and The Tide the audience of about 200 seemed to have a hard time deciding between the confines of the tables or the freedom of the dance floor.

The show probably could have been a greater success on any other night except Sunday.

Perhaps Sunday itself could have been quite an influence on the below average turnout.

It wasn't the owner's fault nor could the blame be fingered entirely on the bands.

Whatever the reason, blame it on a Sunday or any other day, doesn't really matter.

What does matter is the realization by the owners of the popular downtown nightclub that people want to dance to The Beat and The Tide.

And on Sunday night there was plenty of room on the big white dance floor of the Star Palace.

A wide-open space is great for those who need acres of room to express themselves in dance.

However, a half-full dance floor is an unwelcome sight for the performers on stage who are there to make people get up and move.

The minimal response obviously drew the ire of lead singer Steve Rice of The Tide.

At various points throughout the 60 minute performance, Rice taunted the audience to dance with the classic line, "I heard in Fresno people like to get wild and have a good time."

But, as the saying goes, actions speak louder than words and The Tide set about doing it's part by providing good danceable rock n' roll.

It was the audience participation that was the big let-down, but to be fair, the entire audience wasn't all duds.

When The Tide performed some of their best material such as "Transition" and "Playing the Night Because I've Been Working by Day," people began to come alive.

The Tide, in response, never let the intensity and momentum of the songs die down until the last chord was struck. And then it rolled right into the next number, introducing the song during the opening riffs.

Once can't help to notice the similarity between the vocal style of Rice and Bruce Springsteen. "The Boss" has obviously had some influence on The Tide.

Probably the best song performance of the evening by The Tide was the Springsteenish number entitled "Night-drive."

And like Springsteen, Rice found the space within the number to tease the girls in the audience and on the dance floor. His comment that Fresno has the prettiest girls in California was well received.

Though the music was satisfying, the small crowd expressed it's desire to hear The Beat even before Eddie and The Tide had a chance to exit the stage platform.

Paul Collins, front man for The Beat, has been popping up in Fresno quite a bit lately and is becoming one of the town's favorite performers.

Recently, Collins made a surprise appearance at the Wild Blue Yonder to join with local rockers, Walking Wounded, in it's version of Beat tune.

Collins and The Beat have also just recently completed a video that was taped in the Star Palace and will soon appear on MTV or other stations offering video music.

Opening number "Working Day World" which has received moderate radio airplay throughout California was the best choice to get people dancing.

Known for his hyper style, Collins, clad in a blue sweater and red leather pants, was totally drenched in sweat midway through the show.

It is a quality that Collins always exhibits on stage. The spasmodic jerking of the body, the sheer energy and emotion of the vocals, adds to the intensity of his performance whenever he plays.

What Rice and The Tide have accomplished with their minimal success is accomplishing what Collins and The Beat have done better in motivating people to dance.

For The Beat it wasn't hard to do, given the band is more popular with Fresno rock fans than The Tide.

The band performed new material from it's latest EP "Beat or Not to Beat," a five song album that contains very catchy and danceable tunes.

Restrain the press: reveal your source

by Mary L. Downs-Smith
Special to the Rampage

Dr. Maurice Van Gerpen, a Fresno City College political science teacher, shares an ongoing issue in his book, Privileged Communication and the Press: the Citizen's Right to Know Versus the Law's Right to Confidential News Source Evidence.

Journalists are pressured to reveal sources. From John Peter Zenger to the Fresno Four, the author witnesses the struggle between the press and the justice system. The government has a need to keep order, to control television coverage of disorders, and to restrain the press's investigative curiosity. There is a build-up of a consensus toward better law-making.

What is more important, preserving the first amendment or upholding the sixth? Who is a reporter? Are book authors protected? Where is the line between on-duty and off-duty activity? How is confidentiality defined? Will notes and tapes be more 'sanitized' stored or destroyed? Will reporters shy away from writing books because of judgment?

Congress holds hearings on possible federal journalist privilege law. Journalists may be granted privilege, taken into account direct information relating to the subject, cause believe the witness has relevant information, and a demonstration the information cannot be obtained alternatively. When Congress gives, it might take away. What Congress denies, it might restrict later.

The book raises questions the reader's mind. Food for thought awaits students of journalism, law, and education, among others. Van Gerpen's book is available through the author.

Beat from page 4

Two songs from the EP, "Dance, Dance" and "Give Me The Drugs" were well received by the now geared-up crowd but the latter, because of its tempo changes, didn't draw as many to the floor.

The next number, one of his more popular hits, "Don't Wait Up For Me Tonight," not only revitalized some shakey legs and drew as many hoot and hollers as "On The Highway."

Clearly the most favorite song of the evening, "On The Highway" is one of those rare rock songs when performed live, allows the performer to clearly express his interpretation of the music.

The Beat's overall performance was an adequate as the small audience would allow and the band did not find an encore necessary.

It is disappointing that the band did not play longer but more disappointing was the poor turnout.

This Weekend and more

By Dan Immel

Country-Western fans will have a chance to cash in on some foot-stomping fun as some of country music's finest performers will make their way into the San Joaquin Valley this weekend and on into the week. At the Big Fresno Fair in the Paul Paul Theater country recording artist Johnny Lee will be one hand for two shows tonight.

Lee is best-known for the song "Looking for Love," which was a big hit not only on the country charts but the rock charts as well. A long time favorite on Houston's C&W circuit, Lee was a mainstay in Mickey Gilley's Nightclub in Pasadena, Texas. Show times are at 5 and 8 p.m. and admission into the Paul Paul Theater is included in the gate admission price of the Fresno Fair....

Also appearing at the Fresno Fair this weekend will be The Captain and Tennille on Saturday night and on the final day of the fair the Dick Clark Rock n' Roll Revue returns to Fresno for another evening of family fun for all ages....

Not that it is any coincidence but Gilley himself is scheduled to appear Saturday, Oct. 22 at the Tagus Ranch. Located on Highway 99 between Visalia and Tulare, the Tagus has offered quality country performances in the past and the Gilley show should not be an exception. Gilley's past performances at the Tagus and in Fresno have been sellouts. Two shows are billed for Saturday night and are scheduled at 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $14 in advance and $15.50 at the door. Advance tickets are available at the Record Factory, Sierra Mini-Marts in Fresno and Tulare county and at most Western wear stores throughout the valley.

Martha Davis, right, of the Motels will perform at the Warner's Theater on Wednesday night, Oct. 26, at 8 p.m. Four previous appearances have been sellouts and current ticket sales are following that trend. Appearing with The Motels will be The Payolas.

On the C&W ticket for next week is singer George Strait who will appear in the Las Vegas room of the Hacienda Resort and Convention Center on Wednesday, Oct. 26 at 8 p.m. Strait, who built his country music career playing in Texas honky-tonks, has four number one country hits to his credit including his latest "A Fire I Can't Put Out," and has been nominated by the Country Music Association for the Horizon Award which is given to the top young country performer. Advanced tickets are on sale now for $10 but will be $11.50 at the door.... On the rock side of town things don't appear to be too dismal as the Clams return to the Wild Blue Yonder for shows tonight and tomorrow night beginning around 9:30 p.m. Admission is $4... Saturday night is also football night for all Fresno City College fans as the Rams take on the wobble-legged gridders from West Hills College of Coalinga. The Rams are on a great roll coming off a big victory over the Porterville Pirates in the first game of the regular Central Valley Conference season. ASB cardholders are admitted for free and regular ticket prices are $3 for the general public and $2 for students.

Go Rams.... For a brief look into the Medieval past, the St. Paul Newman Center will hold its annual Ren-naissance Festival this Saturday and Sunday. The Newman Center is located on Barstow avenue across from Bulldog stadium. On display will be arts and crafts by more than 150 artists from throughout the valley. The hours of the festival are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. There will be no charge to get in.... Finally into the week, the concert thousands of fans have been waiting for, The Motels, featuring the sultry lead singer, Martha Davis, will rock the Warner's Theater on Wednesday Oct. 26. The show begins at 8 p.m. The Motels sold out during last year's Fresno appearance and it seems that this year's show will be sold out as well. Tickets can be purchased at the Record Factory, Tower Records, Kalliedescope, and at the Warner's Theater Box Office for $15. Good advice is to get that ticket now before they sell out. Appearing on the bill with the Motels will be the slick new wave band the Payolas.... Here on campus, the Moincoins, will perform Irish folk song and music of Celtic nations in a concert in the FCC Library Reference Room on Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. The general public can purchase tickets for $4.50 and students can get in for $3.50. For additional information contact the FCC offices of community services at 442-8256....

Nilsson breaks loose

by Tom Ferrall

"From goat to hero," said one teammate, offering a congratulatory handshake to Fresno City College kicker Matt Nilsson following the Rams' thrilling 34-33 victory over Porterville.

And that about summed it up. Nilsson certainly was the man of the hour. His incredible 53-yard field goal with 13 seconds left in the game gave the Rams a victory in their Central Valley Conference opener last Saturday night.

Nilsson's kick set a school record, breaking the old mark of 51 yards established by Vince Berbera in 1980.

Considering Nilsson entered the game with statistics stating that he was only 1 for 3 in PAT (point after touchdowns) and 0 for 3 in previous field goal attempts, he wasn't exactly an even money favorite to emerge as a hero going into the contest.

And even though he had connected on a 27-yard field goal and all four PAT opportunities earlier in the game, a lot of heads were shaking on the sidelines, in the stands and in the pressbox when Nilsson marched onto the field and began setting up for the 53-yard attempt.

But Nilsson proved his doubters wrong, and (as kickers would say) got all of his right foot into the ball. The pigskin floated over the crossbar and the entire Ram football team swarmed around Nilsson in a celebration that put the Baltimore Orioles' World Championship mob scene to shame.

"I just wanted to meet the ball and use all of the power in my leg," said Nilsson, in between hugs and handshakes. "Once it was up, I knew it was going to be good."

Ram head coach Bill Musick had noticed that near the end of the pre-game warm-ups, Nilsson was kicking the ball long and accurate. Musick therefore knew that his kicker had a fair chance of making what most people thought was the impossible.

"When he first kicked it, I knew it was on line, but I thought, 'Oh no, it's going to be just short'," commented Musick while lighting a victory cigar. "But the ball just kept on going and the next thing I knew, it was good."

Oh, how good it was.

If Porterville coach Steve Peck wants to continue coaching, he'd better start concentrating more during his team's football games.

I don't know what he was thinking about after his Porterville squad scored a touchdown to take a 32-31 lead with 1:58 remaining in the game. Since he could only benefit by having his team go for the two-point conversion, it was unbelievable that he had kicker Kevin Thompson boot the extra point.

If the two-point conversion attempt was successful, it would not have allowed FCC the opportunity to win on a field goal. If it was unsuccessful, the effect is the same as the successful PAT by Thompson. Whether the score was 32-31 or 33-31, an FCC field goal makes you a loser. And a loser is exactly what Nilsson made the Pirates.

His ability to organize his offensive players was about as good as his above decision making. The Pirates were trailing 31-26 with less than five minutes remaining in the game when they took over possession on their own 37-yard line. Indeed a crucial series of downs for Porterville.

During these crucial downs, a team cannot afford stupid penalties. But Peck had players running to and from the sidelines in a great state of confusion. This resulted in two consecutive delay of game penalties against PC. Two plays later, a third delay of game penalty forced the Pirates to punt.

The way the Pirate fans were reacting to these unexcusable penalties in the stands, I sure hope coach Peck had a police escort accompany him home.

Rams win by a foot 34-33

by Tom Ferrall

PORTERVILLE — The Fresno City College football team started out Central Valley Conference action on the right foot last Saturday night, kicker Matt Nilsson's right foot that is. The freshman from Bullard booted a 53-yard field goal with 13 seconds remaining in the game to lift the Rams to a thrilling 34-33 victory over the Pirates at Jamison Stadium.

Nilsson's kick set a school record, surpassing the old mark of 51 yards set by Vince Berbera in 1980. It also accented a perfect night for Nilsson, who earlier in the contest connected on a 27-yard field goal and made all four of his extra point attempts.

The Rams totally dominated the first half of play, outscoring the Pirates 24-6. FCC accumulated 312 yards in total offense the first two quarters compared to only 84 for Porterville. Touchdown passes of 38 and 17 yards from Ram quarterback Jackson Lakatani to tight end Greg Harris, a five yard touchdown run by Anthony Mosley, and Nilsson's 27-yard kick made up the Rams scoring in the first half.

However, Porterville came up with 20 unanswered points in the second half to take a 26-24 lead with 7:50 remaining in the game. The Pirates scored on two, one-yard plunges by freshman Steve Guppton, and a 17-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Robby Burns to wide receiver Ken Jordan.

FCC regained the lead with 6:52 remaining on a 76-yard scoring pass from Lakatani to Mosley.

Porterville scored with 1:58 remaining when Burns connected with Eric Pryor for a 21-yard touchdown pass. This gave the Pirates a 32-31 lead. The touchdown was set up by PC defensive back Roger Beavers who recovered a Mosley fumble on FCC's 22-yard line. Kevin Thompson's extra point made the score 33-31.

A minute and forty-five seconds later, Nilsson kicked his dramatic field goal to give the Rams the victory.

Ram running back Keith Field enjoyed a fine performance Saturday night, gaining 153 yards on 26 carries. Lakatani was also impressive, completing eight of 20 attempts for 223 passing yards. Lakatani had three touchdown tosses.

The Rams continued to hinder themselves with penalties. FCC committed 20 infractions worth 180 yards.

Head coach Bill Musick was happy with the play of his team for the first half, but upset with their play in the second. "We played great football the first half and then we turn around and play terrible the second half. We had too many breakdowns in the third and fourth quarters. We have to learn to play the whole game, not just two quarters."

FCC gridders host Falcons Saturday

The Fresno City College football team will host West Hills College tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in Ratcliffe Stadium. The Rams, 1-0 in the Central Valley Conference and 2-3 on the season, are coming off a 34-33 squeaker over Porterville. The Falcons, 0-1 in the CVC and 2-3 overall, are coming off a 30-10 loss at the hands of Merced.

Prior to last Saturday's game against Merced, the Falcons were the top offensive team in the CVC (309 yards per game), and the second best defensive club (191.3 yards allowed per game).

The Rams lead the all-time series between the clubs 10-3-1, but the Falcons have taken two of the last three decisions, 3-0 in 1980 and 10-9 last year. FCC won 52-0 in 1981.

Saturday will be Fresno Bee Day at Ratcliffe. The Fresno Bee has been running coupons throughout the week, good for half price admission ($1.50 general and $1 for students). Saturday is also Clovis Day. Anyone presenting a driver's license with a Clovis address or a student activity card from Clovis or Clovis West High Schools will be admitted for half price. As usual, ASB card holders will be admitted free.

Dracula requests volunteers to donate blood

Rampage: "What brings you here to Fresno City College?"

Dracula: "Blood, of course! I heard that FCC has quite a few tasty varieties, I came to see for myself."

Rampage: "You mean you're going to go around and bite people's necks?"

Dracula: "Don't be silly! That's the old fashioned way. Any Dracula worth his plasma knows now to get his supply at a blood drive."

Rampage: "What is a blood drive?"

Dracula: "A blood drive is where we (my assistants from the blood bank and I) set up our equipment and draw blood right here on campus."

Rampage: "When is your blood drive?"

Dracula: "Tuesday, October 25th and Wednesday, October 26th, from 11-2 pm at the student center."

Rampage: "Does it hurt?"

Dracula: "No, it doesn't. That's the only disadvantage to doing it this way. I miss all the pleasure I used to get from other people's pain."

Rampage: "How long does it take?"

Dracula: "Only 45 minutes from start to finish. It's fast food for us Draculas!"

Rampage: "How much blood do you take?"

Dracula: "If I took it, it would be about 12 pints. Unfortunately, the Central California Blood Bank will only take a little less than a pint."

Rampage: "Well, how many pints does the average person have?"

Dracula: "12 pints."

Rampage: "I think I like the Blood Bank's way better!"

Dracula: "The pint that is donated is replaced within 24 hours. But I can't hit you up for another eight weeks."

Rampage: "And why is that?"

Dracula: "Because it takes 4-6 weeks for the red cells to replace themselves. Blood just doesn't have the same flavor without those red cells."

Rampage: "Can anybody donate at the drive?"

Rampage/Ken Forbes

Don't become an unwilling victim like Gina Rash, donate your pint at the FCC blood drive October 25th and 26th.

Rams defeat Pirates

By Jim Rhodes

Fresno City Rams faced the Porterville Pirates in a "must win" meet last week.

The Rams managed a win of 25 points against Porterville's 31.

Although Leroy Rivera, FCC's number one runner, was beaten by Mandla Kunene, Porterville's number one, the Rams put David Perez, Gabe Torres, Kelley McCaig, Bill Sterling, and Alonzo Perez in the top ten giving Porterville only four of the slots.

The women's team ran well and easily got all of its members in the top six spots just missing a perfect game by one position.

Rosa Medina was once again in front, followed by Linda Hooke.

Hermin Romero was unable to make the trip out to Porterville. The team was completed by a 4-year high school runner, Lisa Martinez, who finished sixth in her first college appearance.

Dracula: "My doctor has me on a strict diet so I have to be very careful who I allow to donate! They must be at least 17 (with parental permission), free from colds or flus for two weeks, off most medications and they must eat a good meal before donating."

Rampage: "That's it?"

Dracula: "There are some other requirements that vary. It's best to check with the nurse at the drive if you're unsure."

Rampage: "And what exactly does the donor get?"

Dracula: "We'll give them a decorative bandana to wear, refreshments, assurance for one year (that guarantees that they won't have to pay for any blood they use during the year) and the great feeling you get from saving a life or feeding a starving Dracula."

Rampage: "Will I feel tired afterwards?"

Dracula: "Not unless you felt tired before! Actually, you'll probably feel great after donating. Just think of the lives you're saving. . . including mine!"

Rampage: "Oh, then you don't take all of the blood collected at the drive?"

Dracula: "Oh no, I cut the Blood Bank in for their share. They supply it to over 32 hospitals in five counties. It's used for surgeries, accidents, hemophiliacs, etc."

Rampage: "Sounds like a good deal overall."

Dracula: "It's great! As an expert on blood donations I highly recommend that FCC students donate at the blood drive October 25 and 26. Otherwise I might see them on campus and draw blood the old way."

Rampage: "Through the neck?"

Dracula: "Yes sir, twelve pints through the neck. The choice is yours."

Rampage: "Well, thank you, Dracula, this has been a very interesting interview."

Dracula: "Thank you. I hope I see you out at the drive."

Rampage: "Oh, don't worry, we'll be there!"

Campaign a liability

by Levi Pagsuberon

Figures gathered by the Rampage show that after deducting administrative and campaign costs, only $63,362.85 in hard cash is left for renovating Ratcliffe Stadium after more than a year of fund raising efforts. Over two-thirds of the $201,876 collected has been used for service costs.

The contract with Janotta Company, the firm handling the Rally for Ratcliffe fund raising campaign, will expire at the end of October. According to JoAnne Lippart, company president, Janotta Company will not request the State Center Community College Board of Trustees to renew their contract so the fund raising period may be extended.

Figures released by the Rally for Ratcliffe office showed that as of October 10, 1983, actual money collected are distributed as follows:

Received from previous pledges	$ 86,947.09
Fathers Day Runs	5,360.00
Jogathon	11,591.99
Loverboy Concert (estimated)	21,700.00
Journey Concert (estimated)	33,277.00
Police Concert (estimated)	43,000.00

TOTAL $201,876.08

Professional and Campaign costs as of August 31, 1983 138,513.23

The Rally for Ratcliffe report also mentioned outstanding or uncollected "pledges" totalling $91,106.22, and donations "in kind" worth $10,001.40.

Meanwhile, Associated Student Body senator David Pinuelas criticized the handling by Janotta Company of the Rally for Ratcliffe fund raising campaign.

"The figures speak for itself. Administrative and campaign costs were just too high," Pinuelas said.
