Tom Seaver accepted an award from the Fresno Athletic Club Hall of Fame and declared the status of his current rift with the Boston Red Sox as "unemployed." Seaver accepted his award during the 28th annual Fresno Athletic Club Hall of Fame dinner in Fresno this week.

"Part of me wants to play and part of me wants to go home," said Seaver during his keynote speech before a packed crowd at the Sunnyside Country Club.

Seaver was born and raised in Fresno and graduated from Fresno High School before attending FCC. He pitched one season for FCC and led the Rams to the Northern California Championships with an 11-2 record.

Seaver pitched for the American League Champion Boston Red Sox for the last half of 1986, but injured his right knee in September and was unable to pitch in the playoffs or World Series.

Seaver has pitched in the major leagues for 20 years for the New York Mets, the Cincinnati Reds, and the Chicago White Sox before joining the Red Sox. He has a career record of 311 wins and 205 losses and an earned run average of 2.86. He has won three Cy Young awards and was named Rookie of the Year in 1967 while with the Mets.

The Red Sox have notified Seaver that they will not exercise his contract option for 1987. However, Red Sox manager John McNamara wants Seaver to return to Boston next year.

CIA Vet Says:

US Plans Nicaragua Attack

The United States is preparing an invasion of Nicaragua because it wants to make an example of that country to other Latin American nations, according to Philip Roettinger.

Roettinger, a twelve-year veteran of the CIA and a retired Marine Corps colonel, spoke to about 20 people at the Ted C. Wills Community Center in Fresno October 28. Roettinger's visit was hosted by the Latin American support committee.

"I'd like to say that I'm happy to be here," Roettinger said. "But I'm not happy. And I'm not happy because our government is behaving in such a horrible manner these days."

Roettinger took part in a 1954 plan by the CIA to oust the government of Guatemalan President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman who, according to Roettinger, implemented democratic reforms in Guatemala that country had never seen before. "We overthrew that government with the belief of what the government told us, that we were preventing a beachhead of communism in this hemisphere," he said. "Actually there was no communism involved. Our overthrow of that government ushered in a reign of death and destruction that lasts to this day."

The CIA led coup in Guatemala was a serious mistake, Roettinger charged, and the United States involvement in Nicaragua is also a mistake. "I see now that the (U.S.) government hasn't learned anything from the past mistakes that we've made," he declared.

Roettinger went to Nicaragua without the American or Nicaraguan governments' knowledge last winter. "My mission was this; I wanted to find out if what our government was telling us is true or not," said Roettinger.

According to Roettinger, the U.S. government has been telling us that the Nicaraguans are suppressed, oppressed, controlled, can't travel freely, hate the Sandinistas, want to overthrow the government, and that Nicaragua is communist controlled country.

"Our president has told us lies!" exclaimed Roettinger. He said he found nothing to support what U.S. officials have been saying.

Roettinger said he hired a taxi and drove around the country without being stopped once. He spoke to Nicaraguans about what they thought of the Sandinistas and received much criticism. Roettinger said Nicaraguans don't want to overthrow the Sandinistas because the Sandinistas won the revolution and freed them.

Roettinger found no evidence of communism. "Sixty percent of the business in that country is in private hands," he said. "Some of it is in American private hands. I proved that those things we've been told by the U.S. government, administration, are lies, flat lies," exclaimed Roettinger. "Not untruths or mistatements. They're lies damn it and it makes me mad."

According to Roettinger, the U.S. has been lied to about the reasons for supporting the Contras. He said the U.S. originally claimed to support the Contras because they were interdicting arms shipments from Nicaragua to the rebels in El Salvador. He believes the Contras never had that idea, but instead had planned to overthrow the government from the beginning.

Roettinger maintained that

Santa Fe RR to Start Issuing Parking Citations

by Randy Risner

Students parking within seven and one-half feet of the Santa Fe railroad tracks that bisect the Fresno City College campus will face a $12 parking citation and may have their vehicles towed, said Jerry Moore, a representative of Santa Fe.

The main concern of Santa Fe is safety, according to Moore. "We're just trying to keep someone from getting killed," he said.

"No parking signs are posted approximately 15 to 20 feet apart along the tracks," Moore said. "It sort of insults our authority," he said. "When they (students) get out of their car they have to walk right by

PD Finally Catches Suspect in Z Thefts

by Virginia Clift

An arrest was made in connection with approximately 75 Datsun 240 and 280 Z's that were stolen in the Fresno area within the past several months, according to Campus Police Chief Kenneth Shrum.

Kevin Jay Vance, a 22-year-old non-student, was arrested at his home on warrants last Wednesday by the Fresno Police Department/Fresno Sheriffs Department team.

Of the 75 Z thefts, ten were stolen on the FCC campus. According to Detective Jim Lusk, Fresno Police Department vehicle theft division, the vast majority of the cars are recovered in the first 24 hours. Lusk declined further comment.

Apparently the door and ignition locks on the Datsun Z's become weak with wear, making it easy for a thief to use a similar key to break in and start the car.

Shrum believes there is a possibility of another suspect in the case. "As long as there is any indication that there's other people involved in these cases, we're going to continue to look for them," remarked Shrum.

To avoid future Z thefts, the campus police will talk to Datsun Z owners, using information from the cases, on how to protect their cars.

Drop Fee In Effect It'll Cost You $10

by Casandra Lindell
Contributing Writer

Although it is not too late to drop a class, it is too late to drop one without being penalized, according to I. Ward Lasher, dean of student affairs.

Because of an act passed by the California State Legislature in 1983, any student who drops a class must pay $10 per class. The maximum charge is $20.

The drop fee was implemented as part of a compromise when the State Legislature met in 1983 to explore initiating an enrollment fee at community colleges. See FEE Page 3

Editor Defends Article, Previous PASU Coverage

by Virginia Clift
Editor

Last week the Rampage received a letter from the Pan African Student Union President, Eddie K. Ash, regarding a story on "Vandalism Hits Dance" in the October 24 issue.

The double wood doors on the northside of the student lounge were apparently kicked in by a vandal or vandals during a PASU dance, as reported in the Rampage.

After I spoke with Mr. Ash, I understood that his intention for writing the letter was the fact that he believed the value of the door could not possibly be close to $2,000. The Rampage reporter who wrote the story obtained information and the precise figure from the campus police log, written by the campus police chief Kenneth Shrum.

I questioned Chief Shrum on the replacement cost of the doors and he said, "when we have damages to school property, we leave it up to maintenance to tell us the cost of damages."

Mr. Ash also pointed out that if I or one of my staff would have taken a look at the doors, we could have been able to tell that they were ready for replacement. Whether or not the doors were ready for replacement is not the issue. We were covering the story as a news worthy event on campus. Vandalism did occur and we would have covered the story whether it was PASU, or any other club holding the dance.

Mr. Ash also stated that "...the Rampage never puts in anything good about our organization," and "...you never deem it necessary to cover any of our events."

I have been on the Rampage staff for two semesters, and I never recall an article that made the PASU look bad. As far as finding it necessary to cover PASU events, the Rampage has covered several PASU event so far this semester, the most coverage any club has received. Last semester, the Rampage covered a story on PASU as an outstanding club.

PASU is the only club that usually informs the Rampage several days before an event is taking place, but there is still the problem left of trying to find a reporter or photographer to cover an event when you've got a staff of only six.

People on this campus take for granted the fact that we should be covering every event as if it's our obligation. The staff of the Rampage pay money to enroll in the journalism class, and the newspaper's number one purpose is to broaden our educational experience. We obligate ourselves to the campus to cover events, or we may choose to experience press conferences or events off campus if they will improve or enrich our learning experience.

We at the Rampage do the best we can with the resources we have. If that's not good enough, then maybe you should be contributing instead of critizing.

Election Analysis

Duke In, Bird Out

by Darrell A. McCulley
Managing Editor

In a stunning upset that even the most optimistic supporter couldn't have predicted, the Democratic party swept most of the seats up for grabs to take control of the US Senate.

The expected margin of votes, 55 to 45, is a larger majority than President Reagan brought to the GOP in his 1980 landslide.

For the last six years, the Republicans have controlled the Senate with a 53-47 majority.

But to put the numbers in perspective...the Democrats won most of the races, but they did not achieve anything like a landslide. According to ABC's post-election coverage, it would have taken only 32,000 votes spread strategically over five states to have kept the Senate in GOP hands.

California itself had several fascinating races that bore watching, not the least of which was the Bradley-Deukmejian match-up. Going in on election day with a 19-point lead in the polls, no one expected Duke to lose, but the margin of victory by which he crucified Tom Bradley was unforeseen by even the most staunch Deukmejian backers. The final numbers indicate that Duke captured 62 percent of the vote while the twice-beaten Mayor of Los Angeles fell two points short of 40.

Rose Bird is out---and how. Not only did she lose, but she brought down controversial Justices Reynoso and Grodin with her. In her concession speech, choked with emotion, and, I daresay, shock and disbelief, she said that "I accept this decision of the people of California." If she had accepted the decision of the people of California as regards the death penalty, she'd still have her job. I can understand overthrowing a vote of the people on principle, once, (though not agreed with it); but by flaunting the will of the people of the State of California, twice, she got what she deserved. She should have gotten the message.

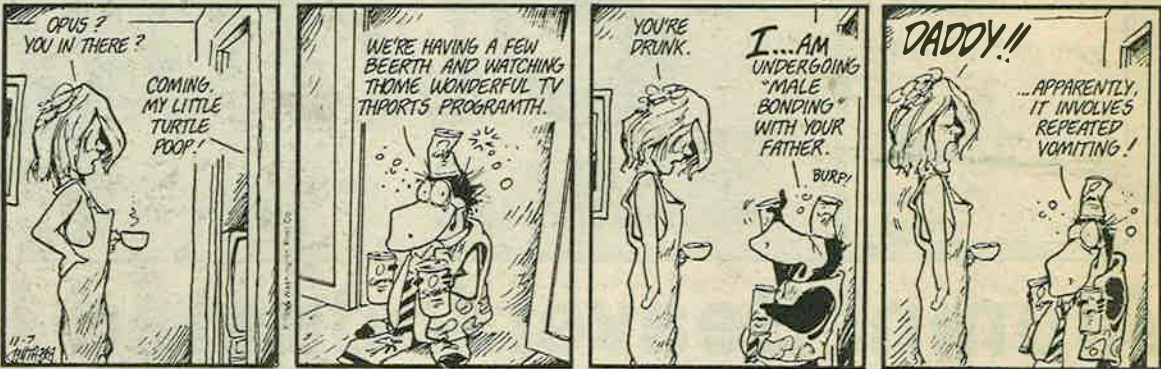

Chip Pashayan, Tony Ceolho, Rich Lehman, Ken Maddy, and the ever-energetic Jim Costa all won easy re-election.

Propositions 61 and 64 failed, so teachers, legislators, and AIDS carriers can breathe easier. Props. 63 and 65 passed, preserving English as the official language of California and banning certain toxic stuff for some people. Something to offend both farm worker and farmer.

All in all it was a big Senate loss for the GOP, a big governorship loss for the Democrats, and a judicial defeat for liberals. "Six of one, a half-dozen of the other." I guess that's as it should be.

Malfunction Triggers False Alarm

by Virginia Clift
Editor

The fire alarm went off, bewildered students evacuated the building, and the fire engines sped to the scene. Fortunately, it was only a false alarm.

The Fresno Fire Department responded to a call around 10 a.m. on Tuesday, to find the Fresno City College Science building evacuated, but no fire.

"Apparently there was a system malfunction. They can't find any reason for it to have tripped," explained Captain Jon Brown from the Fresno Fire Department.

Brown said that the smoke alarm went off in the air conditioning/heating ventilation system on the second floor of the building. Maintenance continued looking into the problem after the fire department left.

"There was no real emergency," remarked Richard Deaver who works in the maintenance department on campus. "They (alarms) will occasionally trigger without any real cause."

Within the half hour, puzzled students were able to go back into classes.

Bimbo Concert

The Fresno Folklore Society presents Kenny Hall and the Long Haul String Band plus Pan Bimbo California Border Music in concert at Finn MacCoul's Irish Pub. Cal Bowl Queen Finalists Chosen

Maria Escoto

The field of 17 contestants was narrowed to only six, as finalists for the title of Cal Bowl Queen were chosen this week by the judges.

The finalists and their sponsoring organizations are: Maria Escoto, ASB; Renee Garcia, basketball team; Renee Kessler, football team; Jennifer Lewis, Delta Epsilon Chi; Melissa Matheny, ASB; and Stacie Puma, Rampage.

There has been some question as to why the Cal Bowl Queen is chosen from Fresno City College while the only teams eligible for the game itself are limited to the Pacific Coast Athletic Association

Jennifer Lewis

Melissa Matheny

(PCAA) and the Mid-America Conference (MAC).

According to Channel 30 Anchorman John Wallace, vice president of the California Bowl, the choice was made for several reasons. First, to choose the Queen from Fresno State would seem biased when FSU might not even make it to the Bowl. Second, as the crowd will be mostly local, a local person might be favorable. Wallace added that City College students were the right age and have a high level of enthusiasm.

The Coronation is to be held on Friday night at the Sunnyside Country Club at 9:00 p.m. Information on tickets to either the Coronation or the game can be obtained from the Cal Bowl office at 224-2695.

CIA From Front Page — the Contras will never overthrow the current Nicaraguan government because they lack motivation, leadership, and enough people to overpower the well organized and well equipped Nicaraguan army without outside help.

“My feeling is that we’re going to invade Nicaragua with American troops,” Roettinger contended. “This we have to stop before it gets started. There should be a national outrage of what we’re doing and what the government is doing to us. They’re using our money to fund these guys (the Contras) and their leaders are pathological killers; torturers, murders, rapists.”

Roettinger claimed that there have been two reasons why the U.S. wants to change the Nicaraguan government. “The most important reason is that it’s an obsession of our president,” he said. “He’s paranoid about this thing.” The second reason, according to Roettinger is that the U.S. is worried that Nicaragua might be an example to other Central American countries who might overthrow their American-backed dictators and operate outside American influence.

Roettinger went to Washington and offered his services as a lobbyist to tell Americans where their money was going.

“Those people in the Congress are very tired of listening to peace groups or religious groups,” he remarked. But because Roettinger has a certain amount of credibility, people did listen. “The vote at that time (in March) was against the aid to the Contras,” Roettinger said. Since then the Congress has appropriated $100 million to aid the Contras.

Roettinger, now in his 70’s, thinks the only possible solution is for other countries in Latin America to sign the Contradora Agreement to try to achieve peace in Central America and to “approach these people with love. If we would inject love in our foreign policy, we couldn’t possibly go wrong.”

Designer to Show Slides

Randy Barcelo, nationally known theatre designer and artist, will give a slide presentation followed by a question and answer session on November 13 at 1 p.m. at the Fresno City College Theatre.

Barcelo’s designs have been on television, film, and stage, with many of his works in Broadway shows such as “Ain’t Misbehavin’” and “Jesus Christ Superstar.” Currently, some of his work is in an Off Broadway play, “Mayor,” based on the memoirs of New York’s Mayor Ed Koch.

This event is sponsored by the FCC Theatre Arts Department and Friends of the Arts. There is no admission fee but seating is limited to the first 450 people. For more information on this event, call 442-8281.

FEE From Front Page

Some legislators wanted a much higher enrollment fee and some wanted no fee at all. The Board finally agreed on a $50 maximum enrollment fee and a $20 maximum drop fee.

The purpose of the drop fee, Lasher said, is to provide incentive for students to make stronger commitments to classes. Students who start classes and later withdraw are essentially taking seats from other students who wanted to be in the class, he said.

The drop fee is “more of an administrative headache” than a problem to the students, Lasher said. The administration is required to keep careful records of every class dropped and is accountable to the state for the fees thereof.

There are reasons for dropping a class that qualify a student for a drop fee waiver.

For example, a student may have to withdraw from school due to an illness, a death in the immediate family, jury duty or military service. In such cases, a fee would not be charged.

According to Lasher, the end of the second week is a bad time to start charging a drop fee. The first census of full-time students, on which the state bases its payment to the school for average daily attendance, is taken at the end of the third week. Lasher thinks that having the two days coincide would be better than the way it stands presently.

“The teachers at the community colleges petitioned the legislators to change the deadlines, he said, “but the legislators did not and would not change it.”

Lasher did add, however, that having the deadline at the end of the second week does have an advantage. While an average student is capable of making up two weeks of class work, only an exceptional student is able to make up three weeks, should an opening be [made] available in a class.

Lasher also said that there has been no decrease in the number of classes dropped since the drop fee was implemented. He said that $10 doesn’t seem to be high enough of a deterrent.

Trolls and Elves Invade FCC

by Randy Risner
Contributing Writer

Fresno City College was repopulated with trolls and elves last week by Kent Steadman’s art appreciation class in preparation for All Hallows Eve.

The trolls and elves were made by members of Steadman’s art appreciation class and placed in and near trees by the Forum Hall.

“The ancient Druids felt that trees are alive, intelligent and sacred,” he said. “And every once in a while they paid homage to the trees. They did this to pay their respects to the trees and the spirits that live in the trees.”

Halloween was originally the most sacred day of the year to the ancient Celts, according to Steadman. “They saw the earth as a living entity populated with little spirits,” he said. “You have to project that feeling with what you know best.”

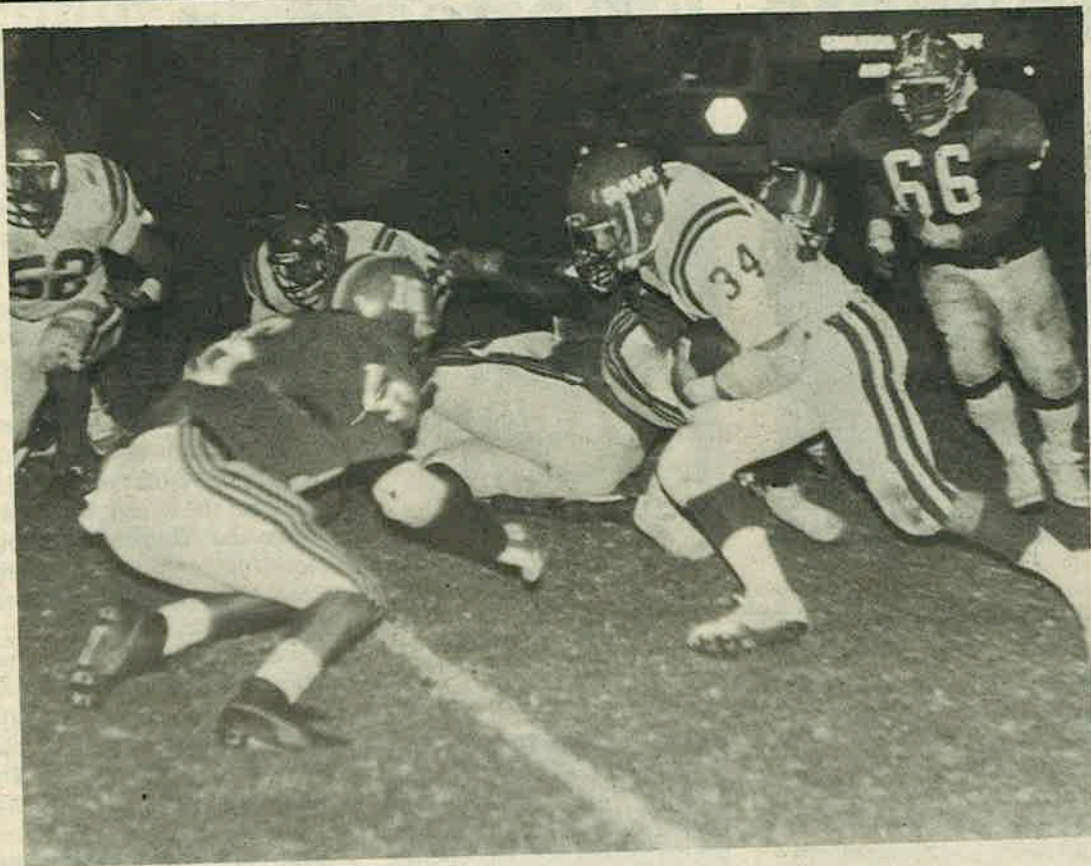

These are samples of more than 200 clay sculptures that surrounded the trees on campus. Photo by Eddie Garcia.

Kevin Christensen rushed 34 times for 167 yards and a touchdown as Fresno City College defeated West Hills College 20-10 last Saturday.

Jim Kirk kicked field goals of 22 and 38 yards for the Rams, who were outgained by West Hills, 286 yards to 254 for FCC.

The Rams opened the scoring by driving 78 yards in nine plays and scoring on a 1-yard run by Fred Coleman in the first quarter.

West Hills kicker Brian Jones kicked a 44-yard field goal and Falcons quarterback David Green completed 13 of 29 passes for 184 yards. Green also scored on a 50-yard quarterback sneak in the second quarter.

The win lifted Fresno's record to 2-1 in Central Valley Conference play and 3-5 overall. West Hills dropped to 0-3 in CVC play and 0-6 overall.

The Fresno City College women's cross-country team placed first in last Friday's Central Valley Conference Championships at Woodward Park.

Loretta Cruz of College of the Sequoia's won the women's title, finishing eight seconds in front of FCC's Betty Chavez and 29 seconds ahead of third-place runner Tassie Norton of Taft.

Tiffany Shaw, Maurie Potts, and Doria Ford also placed in the top ten for the Rams.

On the men's side, Taft runner Tracy Garrison beat out FCC runner Jess Llanez for the title by 43 seconds.

Taft placed six runners in the top ten to win the overall men's title and FCC placed second.

Llanez, David Naranjo, who finished fourth, and Danny Vega, who finished ninth, helped the Rams finish second.

The top two teams from both the men's and women's side, plus the top five runners not from those teams will compete in the Northern California meet this week at Shasta College.

Recruiters: Please Keep Students First

by Mark A. Harrison
Sports Editor

There have been many conflicts recently concerning the athletic programs at Fresno State University and Fresno City College.

It is easy to understand why. After all, both schools compete very heavily in recruiting high school athletes. This creates what some coaches term "unfair recruiting."

Is there really unfair recruiting? Or is it just the frustration of losing an athlete to a rival school?

There have been many cries of bad recruiting techniques regarding the two colleges in recent years, and it is about time the cries are stopped.

What is overlooked is the fact that getting an education is the main concern of an athlete. Of course there is the glory of competing in the spotlight and performing in front of cheering crowds, but when you really think about it, the education is the most important reason for going to college. Being an athlete in college is just icing on the cake.

FSU and FCC coaches, for the sake of the student athletes at the two schools, please think of the student's education first. If you consider that first, then there would be no reason to fight with each other.

Then maybe Fresno State and Fresno City College could be recruiting friends, not enemies.
