FCC Rakes In Big Bucks From Lottery

By Angela Valdivia
Staff Writer

Fresno City College, along with Kings River Community College in Reedley, has received more than $570,000 from the California State Lottery.

The $570,000 was the first payment from the lottery to the State Center Community College District, which oversees FCC and KRCC. The first check received from the lottery represents the district's portion of the lottery income from October through December, 1985.

The district board directed the district administrator to study the use of funds for new equipment, maintenance projects, district election costs, and consultant services.

Another option the board asked the district to study was the use of lottery revenues as start-up or seed money to fund new high-priority projects identified during the district's annual budget development process.

According to district officials, if the present level of public interest in the lottery continues, the local district may receive as much as $1.5 million this year, and $2 million in 1986-87.

Members of Delta Epsilon Chi attended the state Career Development conference in Costa Mesa Feb. 27 through Mar. 2.

Some 225 people attended with 13 community colleges represented. Of the seven students that attended from Fresno City College, two earned recognition in the competition events program.

Mark Emerzian received first place in the sales representative presentation. Manuel Llanos received third place in sales manager meeting.

Both students qualified to represent California at the national Delta Epsilon Chi Career Development conference in Atlanta, Ga. Apr. 30 through May 4.

Variety of Clubs Available

By David Pretzer
Contributing Writer

Remember those early grammar school years when you and a few friends from down the street would meet in the shaky cardboard box shack, or a dangerously high treehouse, or maybe even the old boarded-up, city-condemned building next door?

Well, those old "treehouse club" days are certainly behind us, being the dignified and sophisticated students we are today. Now we have campus clubs.

The scholastic honor society known as Alpha Gamma Sigma is open to anyone with a 3.0 or better G.P.A. The club holds dances regularly and is planning a number of drawings. A food drive for the Ronald McDonald House is in the planning stage.

Members also spend time tutoring each other. Through membership in the club and some volunteer work, a student can earn one extra unit toward graduation. The club meets on Thursday at 7 p.m. in Forum Hall 101.

Hop Abroad This Summer

By Virginia Clift
Staff Writer

There are many existing travel opportunities available to students. Two education trips are offered this semester and several travel packages are available for those planning to travel abroad.

On Apr. 12, Bonnie Trask will travel with a group to tour Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant. This plant is about 12 miles southwest of San Luis Obispo. This trip, at $29.50, includes stops at San Luis Obispo's historical sites and dinner at the Harris Ranch.

A genealogical study trip to salt Lake City is scheduled for Mar. 23 through 27. Jim Gillispie will accompany a group to research family histories and explore the history of Salt Lake City.

The cost is $395, which includes air fare, hotel accommodations, one dinner, and admission to the Genealogy Library.

The Fresno City College Community Services Department sponsors package trips to the Soviet Union, Great Britain, and Alaska. The travel packages include air fare, some hotel accommodations, some meals, and various other expenses.

The 18-day trip to Russia allows students to tour Russia, Scandinavia, Budapest, and Vienna. The group will also go

An FCC grad, he also graduated from Fresno State College in 1967. He attended graduate school at UC, Irvine and graduated in 1969 with a master of fine arts (M.F.A.)

Jones was one of five recipients of the National Poetry Series award.

His works have been published in several poetry anthologies, including "Down at the Santa Fe Depot," a collection of poems by 20 authors in the Fresno area.

"Fresno is famous in the world of contemporary poetry," Jones said.

Jones is currently teaching poetry writing and translation of literature from Spanish and English at three colleges: San to Moscow for the opening ceremonies of the Goodwill Games.

Alex Kalistratov is the tour director. The cost of $2,449, and is scheduled for June 29 through July 16.

The Great Britain packages lasts 18 days with overnight stays in London, York, Edinburgh, Keswich, Chester, Straford, and Salisbury. Cambridge and Oxford Universities, Windsor Castle, and the Durham Cathedral are among the many historical sites to be visited. The price is $1,745, and is scheduled for June 17 through July 4.

The 13-day Alaska excursion includes a three-day cruise from Vancouver to Juneau. Stops include Victoria, Ketchikan, and Skagway. Bonnie Trask is the trip leader. The cost is $2,090, and is scheduled for July 2 through 14.

The remaining two weeks will be spent touring the country by bus. Students will also get the opportunity to spend two days in Paris.

Departure is July 1, returning to the United States on July 31. The cost is $1,850 and includes air transportation, lodging, language classes, and most meals.

California International Travel Service (CITS) has similar programs to Germany and Japan. The service will take applications from adults for escort positions. For further information, call CITS at 226-5097.

There are also travel agencies that offer student travel packages to Europe. Trips vary from 14 to 59 days. Countries visited include Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Egypt, England, France, Germany, Greece, Holland, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and Yugoslavia.

Accessibility a Problem?

By Darrell A. McCulley
Editor-in-Chief

It has been said that freedom of the press only applies to those that have presses. As Editor of the Rampage, I have access to a press and I'm going to take advantage of it because I have a bone to pick. This is a matter that really affects only me directly, but indirectly could affect every other student on campus. In this editorial, I will refer several times to "them." "They" is a pronoun that gets a lot of repetition, but rarely get definition. Nobody ever really knows who "they" are. But I'm not going to do that here. I'm going to tell you who "they" are, what "they've" done, and what "they" haven't done.

"They" are the administrators and upper-echelon of the school hierarchy. Carl Waddle, Richard Cleland, Jerry Sall, Anne Kreisel, Janice Emerzian, Clyde McCulley, Harry Kennedy, and the others involved in this situation whose names I haven't yet found out. But rest assured that I will find out their names, and will not hesitate to print them.

The problem, in a nutshell, is this: I am confined to a wheelchair, and I can't get to my own office because the Rampage is up three flights of stairs in a building that has no elevator. I have gone through endless meetings, informal discussions without number, and miles of red tape, and I haven't gotten anywhere. I get lots of smiles and lots of promises that lead nowhere, and I am sick of it.

The administration is supposed to make all classes available to all students, but that doesn't seem to apply to me. The officials of this institution had three-weeks notice that I was going to be taking classes this spring and that I would be on the Rampage. They've known about it since before the Christmas break, but in those 13 or so weeks, there hasn't been one inch of movement. Well, I'm tired of waiting. I have work to do and I'm damn well going to have the facilities to do it.

All of this started the last time I was on the Rampage. In the spring of 1981, I developed a spinal tumor that left me without the use of my legs. At that time, the Rampage had been above the Bookstore for more than 30 years. In three weeks it was relocated to a bungalow west of the cafeteria. I left after the fall of '81, but the Rampage remained accessible to the disabled. Accessible, that is, until someone waved a dollar sign in front of the administration.

According to an article in the paper dated Sept. 6, 1985, the Rampage was moved. This article said, "The State Center Community College District received about $400,000 from a federal grant for a new secretary training program. The secretary program will use the former Rampage building, which was moved in early August from its original site just west of the cafeteria to its new site near State Route 99 and Jensen Avenue."

What the article doesn't tell you is that whys and wherefores. It gives you the impression that the paper was moved before the building was. But that is not true. According to a source on the college payroll who asked not to be identified, the administration would not get this nearly one-half million dollars unless they could come up with a building, and quickly. So they decided to sacrifice the availability of the school newspaper to disabled students so they could get the big bucks. The source added that "the decision as made at the highest levels of the College. It was a budget decision that had to be made quickly."

So quickly, in fact, that there was no provision made for the disabled students. So quickly that the building was gone in a single day. So quickly that the Rampage still hasn't finished sorting out all the boxes that the movers shoved everything into during the night.

This issue really infuriates me. The Rampage staff and its advisor, Dr. Harry Kennedy, have been forced into the position of having to either split the class in half (which still denies me access to half of the going-on and keeps me out of my office), or having to carry me up and down the stairs. I am not a small person. It is a job that requires at least four strong people. There is a sizeable safety factor missing that makes it a very dangerous alternative.

During my previous service on the Rampage, the staff carried me up the stairs for a couple of weeks...until someone slipped. I fell down the stairs, hitting the back of my head on the steps on the way down. Suddenly the administration did everything in its power to get us moved. I guess they figured if they got the place moved fast enough, I wouldn't file a lawsuit. And I didn't, believing that they were acting in good faith and really trying to keep the needs of the disabled students in mind. I had no idea that as soon as there was financial incentive they'd screw us.

I have talked with my counselor, Jerry Sall, and Ann Kriesel, and Janice Emerzian of Enabler Studies, and they have been over backwards to try to help me with this. Dean of Humanities Dr. Carl Waddle has been cooperative. But the people in the administration tell me that the ones that really have the power to move us without strangling me in red tape are President Dr. Clyde McCulley (yes, we are distant cousins), and Business Manager Richard Cleland.

"They decided to sacrifice the availability of the school newspaper to disabled students so they could get the big bucks."

"But," you say, "you have to have somewhere to move to." Well, there are several alternatives.

First, there is the option of moving to the ASB Senate Chambers, having class meetings there and doing the five-plus hour lab (called production or layout) Wednesday nights and moving the class upstairs the rest of the time. I'll tell you right now that I think the idea of splitting up the Rampage is counterproductive. It still denies me access to the typewriters, phones, files, messages, desks, and equipment.

In addition, I have spoken with some of the ASB officers, and they're not crazy about having their chambers turned into a circus (as layout can sometimes be). Besides, what about disabled students that are involved in student government? The advisor for the ASB, Lee Farley, has agreed to let us use the Chambers. It is not only impractical, as I pointed out above, but many of the ASB officers object as well. The Rampage can't afford to alienate student government right now.

Another alternative is the Language Department on the first floor of the Language Arts building. Even the Language Lab on the second floor was mentioned. That ludicrous suggestion fails to provide for a new place for the Language Lab to go. As for the first floor, the facilities would leave homeless the rooms and entities that now occupy that space.

The third alternative is Conference Rooms A and B in the Cafeteria. This is where I prefer for several reasons. First, it would put the Rampage much closer to the students and increase traffic to the paper. It might even help with the apathy problem by making the Rampage handier for ALL the students instead of in the ivory tower we've had until now. The lace is bigger than the present offices, which I can't move around in anyway because of the numerous desks and pieces of equipment. There are phone jacks, so moving the phones won't be much of the problem. And, best of all, the Rampage would have an outside entrance so that senior staff members who have keys could work during the hours that are most convenient to them. This would mean more work done on time, and a better quality newspaper for the students.

The one drawback to this idea is that these rooms are frequently utilized, and taking them would displace several organizations that use them for meetings. One administration member told me that Dr. McCulley is not going to be cooperative about these rooms for just this reason.

But I have a solution: let these clubs meet in that fancy conference room in the library where the President holds his Augmented Cabinet meetings. If the President and administration are truly willing to correct this problem, surely they would be willing to allow this room to be used for such a worthy cause, wouldn't they?

"...I shudder to think what would happen if one of these students should slip...the college could get sued, as well as those involved in putting off this decision."

For the time being, I have been sitting at the bottom of the stairs trying to run a paper that is being put together 25 feet over my head. The staff members and advisor have to keep running back and forth whenever they have a question or need a decision made, and that is hardly fair to them. Dr. Kennedy has gone up and down the stairs 15 times during one production session alone, and don so without complaining. But I shudder to think what would happen if one of these students should slip while coming down to talk to me. Why, the college could get sued, as well as the people involved in putting off this decision.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

After reading the article "S.P.A. Polling Students on the A.S.B." in the last edition of the paper, I felt compelled to submit to the students of Fresno City College an alternative perspective.

In this article, the student organization S.P.A. (Students for Political Activism - their official name) are portrayed as a "watchdog committee," concerned with the individual liberties of our fellow students. These are very important issues: the price of books, available parking for students, child care, and in particular, the A.S.B. A student would get the impression that this organization has some legitimate concerns.

Although S.P.A. has spent time polling students about the A.S.B., the assumption would be that the information and conclusions would be used constructively in a way conducive to the express needs of the students. Their findings, however, have not yet been presented to the A.S.B., such that possible solutions can be enacted.

I know of not one instance in which S.P.A. has submitted a single tangible presentation regarding the concerns of students. Instead, they attend the Senate meetings waiting for an "appropriate time" to inject their interpretation of the A.S.B. by-laws. Most of their comments are critical in nature rather than constructive, thus inducing opposition to their cause. Popular consensus would indicate that S.P.A.'s motives consist solely of the search for corruption within the ranks of student government.

What S.P.A. has openly neglected to convey is their goals and objectives as an organization. These are the things other student platforms mark achievement by. Without such a commitment, their efforts will continually remain stifled.

I can only hope that the Students for Political Activism would recognize my remarks as legitimate and substantial. Their methods toward student issues are ineffective if not counterproductive. I challenge S.P.A. to build a more effective movement that reflects the true concerns of our students.

I would be the first to lead my constituents toward an unprecedented support of S.P.A. upon their adherence to constructive approaches to valid student issues.

Sincerely,
Frederic D. Hewitt.
A.S.B. Senator

Discrimination?

And that's what has happened. Someone, sheltered somewhere within the school hierarchy has said, "Let's let it go for a while. Maybe things will die down if we put it off." Well, this issue hasn't gone away. And I won't go away, either.

This week I will be my usual cooperative self and let things slide the way they are. But next week, if I do not have an accessible class to go to, then as of March 10, I will boycott the Rampage class because of its inaccessibility. If the class is not moved to a place where I can participate in, and have access to, all of it, I will file suit against the school district and those who could have resolved the question by now but haven't.

However, I will consent to be carried up the stairs at personal risk to myself and those who carry me. But I refuse to be carried by students. If someone happens and someone is injured, I don't want it to be students.

I will only be carried up the stairs if those who carry me are members of the Administration...deans, managers, chairmen, President, whatever. That way, the people that are the cause of this "situation" will be taking the same bodily risk that I will. And if they drop me this time, at least there won't be any students listed as defendants.

I will also file discrimination and unlawful restraint charges against the school if my grade suffers because of my boycott. They wouldn't have the gall to penalize my grade if I refuse to go upstairs, and if they do, my "legally informed friends" tell me that I am very well within my rights to file suit.

There is a greater question involved here. I hope I won't be the last person in a wheelchair who wants to take the Rampage class. Right now, there are ASB senators who can't get to their office because they are in wheelchairs too. The Nursing Program offices are out of reach, as is the darkroom. Good thing I don't try to take any pictures for the paper.

Will they move the office again as soon as I leave school? Will they shut out other disabled students at that time by sneaking the office back upstairs without allowing any debate on the issue like they did last time? Like hell they will. I want assurances in writing from the administration that when the Rampage is again made accessible it will stay accessible. Same goes for the ASB offices and the other facilities out of reach of students that aren't blessed with a good pair of legs.

I have been reasonable. I have been more than reasonable. But I have had it with this runaround. It's gotten me nowhere.

Thanks for listening to this long diatribe. I'll let you know how it goes next week. In the meantime, I'll try to remember that it's the squeaky wheel that gets the grease.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I recently read your Feb. 28 front page article of SPA. I would like to bring your attention to some in-error reporting.

I, Chris Dougherty, am not the vice-president of SPA. I hold no office in SPA.

I am the vice-president of NAISA (the American Indian Club). Please correct this problem publicly since it is creating problems for me.

All creative, unique, and innovative people on campus are invited to participate in a Churette for our Super Spectacular Community Festival. This meeting will be held Monday, Mar. 10 from 5 to 8 p.m. in the cafeteria snack shop.

Be sure to bring your ideas and a lollypop to this highly productive meeting.

Campus Advance, which fosters spiritual growth through regular bible studies that are held Mondays at 11 a.m. in Conference Rooms A and B.

Another Christian group is Campus Ambassadors. The Ambassadors, more active in sponsoring social events, hold bible studies every Wednesday in Conference Room A from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Campus Crusades for Christ is yet another campus Christian group. It deals with international and minority students.

Still another Christian club is the fellowship of Christian Athletes, which promotes the sharing of faith for Christian athletes, their coaches, and others. For more information, call Don Larson at 439-6304.

Finally, there is Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship. This club is also connected with bible study and fellowship, and is linked to Campus Ambassadors and Campus Crusade for Christ. The Fellowship meets on the first Wednesday of the month at 12 noon in Conference Room A or B.

Getting back to more secular clubs, the Hmong Student Club provides cultural, educational and social activities. Call Lee Farley at extension 8646 for more information.

If marketing, merchandising, and distributing are your bag, you may want to join Delta Epsilon Chi. With $10 club dues, you get one transferable unit and more workshops, seminars, and social activities than you would believe. Club meetings are held every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room BE-135. The president is Peter Cameron.

The Pan African Student Union for Afro-American students encourages its members to pursue higher education and seek a realization of self. More specifically, the club has recently conducted fund raisers for members. The club also passes along used text books from member to member and assists students with financial aid. Shows and rallies are held by the club as well. Meetings are held every Friday from 1 to 1:50 p.m. in Conference Room B. The president is Eddie Ash.

Business majors should be happy to know P.B.L. exists. The Phi Beta Lambda club deals with developing competent, aggressive business leaders. For more information, call Connie Kendrick at extension 8500.

Mexican American students should be pleased to know the M.E.Ch.A. is in full force. The Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Atzlan Club exists to encourage Raza students to pursue higher education and develop a political awareness.

Club events include co-ed volleyball games with high school M.E.Ch.A. groups and low rider car clubs. A Low Rider and Cultural Show is also organized at Fresno City College each year.

Further information is available from Frank Quintana at 442-8727 or Arturo Amaro at 442-8139. Meetings are held every Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. in Conference Room B.

If you are a politically active person or would like to be, you may want to check into Students for Political Awareness (SPA). It promotes student political awareness and political activity. Call Joseph Moore at extension 8350 for more information.

If you're still a little confused concerning some or all the clubs discussed in this article, a good source of current club facts can be obtained from the Interclub Council (ICC). ICC promotes, coordinates, and makes all officially recognized campus organizations available to students. ICC acts as the "club legislature."

Meetings involving various campus club representatives are held on a regular basis for an overall view of club developments. ICC president is none other than our illustrious Roland Jones.

The so-called "club" at the top of it all is the Association Student Body. The A.S.B. acts as a buffer between campus clubs, as well as individuals and Fresno City College when grievances are brought against the school system.

And believe it or not, you can take advantage of the A.S.B. with or without an A.S.B. card. However, don't let that stop you from buying the card, because you can get discounts on skiing at Sierra Summit. So buy an A.S.B. card, join the club of your choice, and take your friends skiing for the time of your life!

Spring Blooms At FCCC

Profile: Bill Walker

Rampage/Edward A. Garcia

Interviewed by Kevin Sheehe

There are many people at Fresno City College that work for the students. I asked Student Body President Bill Walker, some personal questions, and these are his remarks:

Q.: What is your title at Fresno City College?

A.: At FCC, I am Student Body President.

Q.: What does that title imply?

A.: That entails seeing that students are represented at all levels of education. All the way from interviewing possible instructors, maintenance people, to financial aid student services, bookstore, cafeteria, and then on into student activities such as dances, parties, rallies and so forth.

Q.: You are really the overseer of a lot of functions at FCC?

A.: That's what it is. I am the overseer, seeing that the students are represented in each area (of college life).

Q.: What is your favorite pet?

A.: That's a bad question for me. I am not into animals, I'm into birds. I'd say a Macaw is my favorite pet.

Q.: If you could have any animal for a pet, what would it be?

A.: A macaw.

Q.: What was your first job?

A.: My first job was picking eggs at an egg ranch.

Q.: What is your favorite TV show?

A.: Cable News Network (ha,ha).

Q.: What is your favorite sport?

A.: Basketball.

Q.: What is your favorite movie?

A.: The Evil That Men Do.

Q.: What is your favorite book?

A.: Elephants and Ivory, and African adventure.

Q.: Favorite color?

A.: Lavender.

Q.: Favorite junk food?

A.: Nachos and cheese.

Q.: Best vacation you ever took?

A.: Last summer, all over California.

Q.: Your favorite vacation spot?

A.: I think my favorite place still is a little meadow up by Shaver Lake. I go up there and lay down and not worry about anything.

Q.: If you could have any job, what would it be?

A.: Right now, I'm working toward a financial advisor, or business advisor. That's what I want.

Q.: What is your most embarrassing moment?

A.: My most embarrassing moment was last week in class. The instructor turned off the light for a movie. I reached over to get my books and my girlfriend said "get your hand out of there," so the whole class could hear it. That is embarrassing.

Q.: Favorite fun place?

A.: Six Flags. I used to buy season passes, so every time I'd drive by I could stop in and catch a couple rides, come back to my car and jam.

Q.: My friends like me because...

A.: ...I'm honest. It doesn't matter if they like what I say or don't like what I say, I'm honest. I tell them the way I feel.

Q.: The best advice ever given to you?

A.: Take time to listen to people.

Q.: The best advice you would give?

A.: Well, I think I've learned from it, and I think I would give the same advice.

Q.: Your hero.

A.: Pink Panther.

Q.: A person in your life that has influenced you?

A.: My grandfather. He is the one that gave me the advice.

Q.: The person you would most like to meet?

A.: I think I would like to meet Marcos just to see where he was coming from, and why he had such an insecurity.

Q.: Last goal accomplished?

A.: That's hard to look at because once I accomplish something I don't look at it anymore. This project is finished, and I go do something else. But I would say the last goal accomplished would be as a governing board representative for Cal Sac or Regional Representative for Cal Sac. That's the California Student Association of Community Colleges. That was a pretty strong goal for me.

Q.: What is your next goal you'd like to accomplish?

A.: State President of Cal. Sec.

Q.: What would you like to do if money was no object?

A.: Travel, because that is just my Leo coming out because Leos are travelers. Travel to exotic places. Not just travel around.

Q.: One thing I wish I could say to the world?

A.: You didn't tell me this was going to be intellectual. Unite, Unite instead of fighting. Every body does something good and something bad, so stop being so pessimistic. Let me sum it up right there. Stop being so pessimistic and unite.

Rush week

By Angela Valdivia
Staff Writer

The Fresno City College Interclub Council will sponsor an All-Club Rush Week beginning Mar. 10.

Rush Week was designed to increase club memberships and to unify organized activities. The purpose is "to get students involved," said ICC president Rolland Jones.

The week will consist of a number of competition between various FCC clubs. A few of the competition include a Trivial Pursuit tournament, volleyball game, pool tournament, and a best booth competition. A bowl-athon will also be included in the competition with all proceeds going to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. If FCC reaches its goal of $2,500, MDA will provide a disc jockey for a dance.

A dance for FCC students will conclude the week Mar. 14. It will be held in the Student Center. Music will be provided by a disc jockey, along with the live band "Sabastian Collette," formerly "The Kyber Rifles." Admission is $5 general or $3 with a valid ASB card.

The calendar for the week is:
Mar. 10 - Religious Club Awareness Day.

Mar. 11 - Ethnic Club Awareness Day.

Mar. 12 - Greek Club Awareness Day.

Mar. 13 - Career Club Awareness Day.

Mar. 14 - All Club Awareness day.

What else can be said about the Fresno City College basketball team except spectacular. Averaging 78.9 points per game (ppg), and allowing opponents only 68.5 points per game, the Ram tromped their way to a first place finish in the regular season with an outstanding 22-10 record.

The success of the Rams can be attributed to such leading players as 6'1" forward Frank Johnson, who averaged a team-high 13.1 ppg, shooting 53.3 percent from the field and 76.9 percent from the free-throw line.

Forward Anthony White, at 6'3", contributed 11.5 ppg, 50.2 percent from the field and 74.6 percent from the line, while 6'8" center Sean McClewson added 11.1 ppg, 52.1 percent from the field and 73.4 percent from the line.

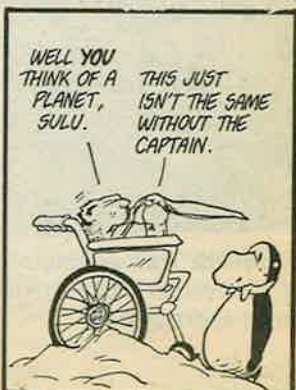

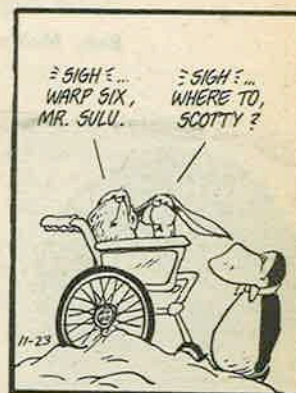

Darren Matsubara led the team in assists (7.6 per game), and averaged 9.6 ppg. David Harris dropped in a whopping team-high 88.9 percent from the line while kicking in 5.3 ppg.

Coach John Toomasian was upset over FCC's number five ranking in the Northern California Conference play-offs. Last year, it was the conference champs that were the top seeded teams, but this year such is not the case. The Northern California Selection Committee picked Contra Costa (a second place team) as the number three seed.

Despite this, Coach Toomasian is optimistic about post-season play. "We will not lose in the play-offs. Someone will have to come to our court and beat us, and that won't be a simple task," he said.

Though coming off losses in their last two regular season match-ups against Merced (73-77) and Columbia (79-83), Coach Toomasian said this had no bearing on Wednesday's game against Lassen. The last two contests were meaningless since FCC already had sole possession of first place in the Central Valley Conference.

Whatever the result of the Northern Cal play-offs, the FCC Rams have nothing to look back on but success.
