50 Women Choose AWS Fall Officers

Mary Lanotte, a freshman business major, is the fall semester president of the Associated Women Students.

In an election held Monday, approximately 50 women students voted, Miss Lanotte defeated Dorothy Rubald.

Sally Bennett defeated Beverly Martell by three votes for the office of vice president; Edith Forath defeated Lillian Carrillo for secretary; Marie De Ruosi won over Marian Bitter and Frankie White for treasurer, and in the race for historian Francis Roderick won over Dolores Critz and Camille Harlan. All the newly elected officers are freshman students majoring in business.

Miss Lanotte, who was recently elected state parliamentarian for the Future Business Leaders of America and treasurer of Red Key Club for the fall semester, will be installed at the installation assembly Wednesday.

Bobbie Burton, president for the current semester, said that the other fall officers will be installed next fall.

FJC Surveys Distributive Occupations

The FJC business division plans to survey local business firms to determine the value of distributive job opportunities.

Gervase A. Eckenrod, an FJC business division faculty member, who is the coordinator, said that the object of the survey is to determine what opportunities will be open in the fields of salesmanship, advertising and merchandising for students.

The survey will be made by means of a mailed questionnaire supported by interviews and telephone follow-ups. Six hundred thirty six students have been sent questionnaires of which 218 are being interviewed at the present time.

"There are approximately 60 items on the questionnaire and if you multiply the items by the number of job classifications it will give the reasons why it's a tremendous job to draw information together," stated Eckenrod.

The group coordinator hopes to have complete tabulation and primarily information by June 1. The business project class and several members of the faculty are helping with the tabulation.

"We are having a hard time getting results back from small organizations of one or two people because they feel they won't effect the overall situation," said Eckenrod. "They are the most important because they constitute a larger number of business."

The interviews are 50% complete and 30% of the questionnaires have been returned from other sources.

Najera Is Fall Latin American Club Prexy

Tony Najera will be the president of the Latin American Club for the fall semester starting in September. He succeeds Don Diaz.

His cabinet which was chosen by the club members at a regular meeting Tuesday include Toby Armenta, vice president; Lillian Carrillo, secretary; Sally Cazares, treasurer, and Andy Sandoval, sergeant-at-arms.

New SB Prexy Desires Student Comment Program

Ben Eichman, newly elected student body president, is a native son of Fresno. He graduated from Fresno High School in 1955.

Eichman will be a sophomore when he takes office in the fall. He is an avid basketball fan and played on FJC's championship basketball team.

Eichman is striving for more interest from students in student government. He plans to put in effect a student suggestion program whereby students will bring suggestions directly to the student council or student council members. He will leave the student council organization as it stands, but he hopes for better cooperation between the student council, faculty members and the student body.

More student social affairs are anticipated by him as well as intra-mural sports.

Eichman will be installed by Gene Francis, present student body president, at the installation assembly Wednesday in the Memorial Auditorium.

Oldest Student Feels US Is Not Just A Single Country, But World

By MIKE HARTMAN

A likeable little Japanese, who feels that the United States is "not just a country, but the world", is the oldest student enrolled at Fresno Junior College.

Jisaka Kazato was born in Chiba, Japan on October 2, 1882, and arrived in San Francisco in 1904. From there he moved to Fresno in 1906.

"My wife and I are from a different country, and we go to school in order that we can learn the customs and history of our adopted country," said Kazato when asked why he is going to school.

Kazato is taking a course in general education, while his wife is taking an art course at Fresno State College.

Mrs. Kazato, who will be 70 this August, was born in Iwakuni, Japan, and arrived in this country in 1906.

The couple were married in 1910 and have three children, and seven grandchildren. The three Kazato children seem to have established themselves successfully in the community. One of their sons is a doctor in West Fresno, while the other is a lawyer. The Kazato's lone daughter, an ex-piano teacher at Fresno State, is now a housewife.

Kazato has no specific plans after school, except to relax and work in his garden, to follow his religion, and to talk freely with his friends.

Kazato has been attending FJC for about four years, before that he spent his time outdoors working in the fields.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kazato stated that they would like to go back to Japan for a visit, but not to live, as they have no one remaining there, and also because, "the United States is the greatest country in the world."

The Kazato's reside in a small frame house at 3756 West Olive Avenue. The house, though small, is quite comfortable, hanging on the walls are three paintings by Mrs. Kazato. The garden shows the work that Kazato has put into it, the grass is green, the flowers almost barren of any weeds, and the shrubbery is kept neatly trimmed. (Picture on page 2)

67 Students Will Not Take Part In Ceremony

Only 86 students out of 153 applying for Associate of Arts Degrees plan to participate in commencement. Where are the other 67?

The Rampage believes that every AA candidate should take part in commencement and that it should become a school rule.

If the school and faculty are interested enough to provide commencement exercises, the students who are eligible should be interested enough to take part.

It seems as though after attending a school for two full years one would be only too happy to receive his degree with other AA candidates.

Graduation is an experience that everyone should take part in. It is a time honored institution that goes back to the beginnings of education, therefore, all should try to participate.

Students Should Attend Assembly

Dean Emeritus Malloch will be the guest speaker at the installation and awards assembly Wednesday at 10 AM in the Fresno Memorial Auditorium.

I would like to urge everyone of you to attend. School will be let out for this assembly.

We are no longer in high school and should begin to act like college students. Students should take time to participate in school functions. These assemblies are for the benefit of the students and it is not worth the time, money, or effort if the students do not attend.

I am sure you will enjoy this man and his speech as well as the installation of fall semester officers. So, I urge each and everyone of you to attend this assembly.

Guards Provide Opportunities

Major General Earle M. Jones, the state adjutant general, in a letter to Stuart M. White, Fresno Junior College president, said the California National Guard provides opportunities for young men to continue their education and still fulfill their military duties under federal legislation.

The adjutant general in writing to White gave the following opportunities that a young man has in serving all or part of his military obligation in the California National Guard:

"1. Persons who voluntarily enlist in the National Guard between 17 and 18 1/2 and who do not participate in an active duty for

5 Come To FJC From Same Place

Among the six students from India attending FJC are five from the same city in Punjab, Patiala.

They are Tejinder Singh Grewal, Amarishwar Singh Grewal, Narjit Singh Brar, Ranbir Singh Sekhon, and Joginder Singh Bhore. The only Indian student not from Patiala is Mahendra Singh Bhatti from Jodhpur.

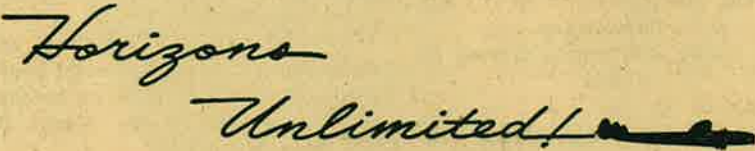

Tejinder Grewal, Amarishwar Grewal, and Brar are engineering majors, Sekhon in Industrial Arts, and Bhore in political economy.

Tejinder Grewal said that the students from India started coming to Fresno after he and Bhore came here in 1953.

"There are hardly any young men left in Patiala and I think the young girls there do not approve of this," said Grewal who is married to an American girl.

Amarishwar Grewal and Brar said that America is a fabulous land of golden opportunity and the people are very prosperous. Sekhon, who recently arrived here, said that although he had not seen much of America, he could not help notice the friendly people and the flashy cars.

Bhore, a fourth semester student at FJC, said that he loved America and its wonderful people as his own.

C. Lowell Spencer Believes Music Is Outlet For Tension

C. Lowell Spencer, FJC choir director, believes participation in his group provides students with a necessary outlet from the tensions they build up in their other classes.

"Members of the choir enjoy their singing, which gives them three hours of relaxation a week from their studies," Spencer explained.

Due to the fact that the campuses are divided, one section of the choir meets on the main campus and one on the Fresno State College campus. The two join together for public appearances.

Spencer announced the choir will make several appearances in the remaining month of school. They began Monday night with the Fresno City Schools' annual music festival, which was held in the Roosevelt High School auditorium.

The FJC choir will combine with the choirs of the Fresno, Roosevelt, and Edison High Schools in singing a group of numbers.

Other performances of the junior college group will be during the graduation exercises for FJC apprentices in the trade and industrial division May 26, in the cafeteria of the Fresno County Fairgrounds and during baccalaureate services for FJC sophomores in the First Methodist Church, June 3.

Soloists include Russel Tipton, John Gibson, and Kenneth Booth. The choir has been working on a variety of different styles of music, including spirituals, popular tunes, folk songs, and sacred anthems.

Armed Forces Celebration Set For Saturday

Saturday is Armed Forces Day. The observance, which again has "Power for Peace" as its theme, will be the seventh annual nationwide demonstration in honor of the men and women in military uniform.

Many instructors and veterans attending Fresno Junior College belong to various veterans' organizations, including the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Veteran Committee, Disabled American Veterans, Amvets, and Veterans of World War I.

It is unlikely that any of the instructors or veterans in FJC were in the Civil War or the Spanish-American War, but there are many who were in World War I, World War II, and the Korean War.

Many of the instructors and veterans will be in the parades in their respective cities if there are parades.

Many veterans hold important offices in their respective organizations.

Among them are Thomas Gonzales, a psychology major, who is a finance officer in the American Legion Post 4 and Floyd Takeuchi, machine shop major, who is a three-year trustee for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8499.

Classical Art Most Popular To Art Fans

By MIKE SMITH

Mike Gaumnitz, a freshman general education major, said, "I prefer the classical art. My reason for this choice is that I can't understand modern art. It doesn't make much sense either. I prefer classical art because it is so much more meaningful."

Patsy Jones, a sophomore majoring in secretarial training, said, "I have always preferred classical art since it is more down to earth and like everyday life. I also think that the ancient architecture is outstanding. I do like the modern designs of present day buildings and furniture though."

Stan Tusan, a sophomore art major, said, "I prefer the classical art because that is where the money is! But for a more cultural interest I will have to give my vote to the modern art. It may be harder and more difficult to understand but that is what makes it so much more interesting and worthy of study."

Sia Ghaffari, a chemistry major, said "My preference is towards the classical art because I have been associated with so many people who were very interested in the classical art than I have in modern art. Classical art has more meaning to it."

Donna Hubbard, a freshman secretarial major, said, "Classical art or modern art? I am more interested in the modern art because it tends to depict the modern day rush we all know so well here in America. Nowadays, our modern artists must have tremendous imagination and ability as well as lots of talent."

John L. Fenn, an accounting instructor, said, "No modern art for me! I am afraid that I am not quite imaginative enough to really appreciate and understand this modern art. I must say that I will have to stay with the classical art."

JC Hopes In Meet Rest On Four Men

Hampered by injuries to several key men, Fresno Junior College's track team will depend on four men to bring home the honors from the Northern California Track and Field meet this weekend at Santa Rosa Junior College.

John Foreman has been out with a bad ankle for quite some time now and will be out for the rest of the season because his ankle has not held up.

With Foreman out, Fresno's distance medley relay team was unable to participate in the West Coast Relay and thus eliminated three other men from taking part in that event.

An old knee football injury is bothering sprinter J. C. White at the present time, but the speedy Ram is expected to be ready for the meet. White earlier spiked himself on the leg.

In the field events another injury occurred to Jim Burke, a pole vaulter. Burke, who was a consistent 12' 6" vaulter, sprained his ankle at the WCR and is through for the season.

Coach Hans Wiedenhoefer will enter John Aldredge in the shot put; Tom Sano in both the shot and discus; Mylum Kelly in the 440 and 880, and White in both sprints.

The first four winners of the Santa Rosa meet will be eligible for the state meet in Modesto the following weekend.

'56 Football Season Looks Roughest Yet

Football season for the 1956 edition of the Fresno Rams will be at its toughest point next fall when the Rams of Fresno go through its roughest schedule beginning with East Los Angeles and winding up with the National Polytechnic Institute in Mexico City.

Coach Hans Wiedenhoefer will be at the helm again and hopes to bring back the conference title to Fresno. Up to last season, the Rams had won the title three times and tied for it once in four years.

The winners of the big eight conference, which is Stockton, will be on the menu for the Rams in their second game. Next in line comes Taft, the number two junior college team in the nation. The Cougars will not have their phenomenal Archie Schmidt, fullback next year but, no doubt they will come out with a replacement.

However, Fresno will have its own in J. C. White, who was one of the best, and rated by many as the best, fullback in JC racks last season.

Our footballers will again meet the men from the Rose Bowl City, Pasadena College, here November 9 or 10.

Wiedenhoefer would not comment on his coming material for next year because he said you couldn't count on them.

Netter Gets AMS Award

A $60 scholarship and a trophy was awarded to Ben Eichman for being the best athlete-scholar of FJC this year. Eichman, 18, received his award at the Associated Men Students dance at the Mari-gold Ball Room last Friday.

Eichman, the newly elected student body president, was selected by the coaching staff of FJC, and was presented his awards by AMS Vice-President, Moses Hernandez.

A Fresno High graduate of last year, Eichman was a regular guard on the Ram championship quintet. The calm cager gave Fresno the good floor game it needed when he broke into the starting lineup midway through the season.

Eichman was chosen for his scholastic standing, a "B" student, and MENTOR — Coach Clare Slaughter in his first year at the helm, guided his baseball team to second place in the CCJCA league.

for his all around basketball playing. The AMS sponsored the dance for the second year in a row and hope to make it an annual event. Tom Flores, now attending the College of Pacific, was presented with the award last year.
