Dean Robert M. Kelly of the FCC evening division asks parents and other interested people to attend any of the many night classes during Public Schools Week. Eric Radanovich, election commission, reminded that no campaigning will be allowed within 50 feet of the voting booths on election day.

Board Of Education Approves 26 New Courses For FCC

The Fresno City Board of Education recently has approved 26 proposed new courses for the Fresno City College.

John S. Hansen, FCC administrative dean, said 24 of these will be offered for next year, while the other two will start in the 1960-61 school year.

Community Needs Met

Hansen said the new courses are being offered to meet the community requests and provides a well rounded program. He also said that most of the new general education classes that are being added, are for the convenience of students who are planning to transfer to four year colleges and universities.

Before going to the Board of Education the proposed classes were approved by the curriculum and instruction committee, consisting of instructors of the college and President Stuart White's cabinet. Final approval must be made by the State Department of Education in Sacramento.

Hansen listed 24 new classes to be offered next year. Thirteen will be in the general education division, seven in the technical, and four in the business division.

Additional Courses

James P. Collins, education dean, announced next year's general education courses will include general chemistry, basic photography, advanced photography laboratory, intermediate modern dance, beginning archery, intermediate archery, physical fitness, intermediate Russian, creative writing and Pan Pacific history. These are the new day classes. The new night classes will include basic astronomy, beginning German and intermediate physics.

The new physics class at night will be offered next fall only and will be for students who have completed physics 2 A-B and who need the class to complete the equivalency of the Physics 4 A-B-C series.

Robert Kelley, dean of technical and industrial division, announced new technical and industrial courses for next year during the day include basic diesel and heavy duty mechanics, mathematics of electronics, fundamentals of electronics, electronics systems and communication licensing. The divisions night classes will have fuel technology and geriatrics.

New Courses Added

Miss Ethel McCormack, business division dean, stated beginning next year the business division will have two new day classes. They will be human relations in business and a course in briefhand. Briefhand is a course designed for personal notetaking and transcribing notes. Two classes in medical secretarial training will be offered at night.

The two classes that will begin in the 1960-61 school year will be intermediate German and advanced diesel and heavy duty mechanics.

Preregistration began last Tuesday. "All returning students should sign up early and therefore insure their getting the courses they want," stated Stuart M. White, college president. Registration will be held on Sept. 4, 8, and 9.

White announced that preregistration will be held Aug. 25 and 26 but class reservation may be made this spring by FCC students. Fall semester schedules of day classes are now available and may be obtained from student counselors.

Archle Bradshaw, dean of students, advised high school seniors who plan to enroll at FCC in the fall to be counseled this spring. They may telephone his office at AM 4-4721 to make an appointment with a FCC counselor. Entrance examination will be given to all interested high school seniors May 23 and June 6.

White announced a scheduled fall semester preregistration and counseling program for all students from Aug. 25 to Sept. 9.

Public School Week Shows True American Heritage

This week is public school week. And people will be pouring into our public schools to see where their taxes are going.

Not many people really realize the imposing problems facing today's teachers, and this is a good chance for them to find out. Now is the chance for every conscientious parent and taxpayer to see how and where their children are being educated. Unfortunately those who often condemn or criticize our educational system are most often those who know nothing about it. Here is the chance for everyone to see just what education is doing to better the world's situation.

Too many people look on the taxes they pay for schools as a "necessary evil" and as soon as the money is out of their pocket that's the end of it. It's not the end of it and public school week proves it.

The people of the United States have a right to be proud of this institution they have built up—that of free public education—and so do the people who work in that system. They can stand up and say, "We are truly Americans, because we are working for the betterment of America through the highest means possible—an educated people."

Student Council Moves Against Card Playing

The student council passed a ruling this week prohibiting card playing on the Fresno City College campus.

The college handbook, which will be given the new students next fall, will have a section in it describing the California state code of education ruling on gambling and liquor.

The student council vote was 10 affirmative, and four negative.

Miss Doris Deakins, dean of women, stated that those individuals who played cards on the lawns were the ones who were flunking their classes. Fresno City College is an educational institution, not a place for such goings on.

The fad hit the college around the first of April, but as such fads in this complex age of the guided missile, hula hoops and leotards, card playing has stopped at FCC.

Card playing brought mixed reactions among the faculty, student council and administration. But it was the general consensus that card playing gave the wrong impressions to visitors that came to the campus. One visiting instructor asked one of the Fresno City College faculty members how such things could happen here. Card playing was not allowed at his school.

It is also the general consensus that card playing itself is not evil, but that it will lead to gambling. Gambling is prohibited by the state code of education, section five.

Let's remember Fresno City College is a place of learning and not a place to play cards.

Kessel Describes Recording Jazz Sessions For Records

By BARNEY KESSEL

A record date should proceed in the following manner:

About an hour before the musicians show up at a studio for a recording session, the study technicians get busy. They set up several different types of microphones, in various spots. They shift panels of acoustic tile around. They adjust the temperature and humidity in the studio—all this, so that a certain consistent quality of recording can be attained.

With today's many technical advances, it is possible to produce good recordings consistently—so that the interruptions in recording are audible to the very trained ear. With today's recording techniques, it is also possible to record only the background music—and add the vocal later. I have even heard of a vocal duet that was recorded by one voice in New York and by the other in Hollywood.

Each attempt for a perfect record is called a "take." It is possible to have several good takes, each marred by slight imperfections—and by splicing together all the best parts of the several takes, to produce one perfect record. This is because recording is now done on tape instead of discs.

Of course, a single "perfect" take can happen—but so can any number of calamities.

I remember a recording date with a vocal group. We had made seventeen takes on one song, and as we were holding the last chord on take eighteen—a police call came loudly out of my amplifier. We discovered that a motorcycle policeman had been in front of our building and his call had been received through my amplifier...

And then there was the tragic time when the orchestra played a very difficult work perfectly... and there was no tape on the recording machine.

Pat Ryan Wins Title For Business

Patricia Ann Ryan, Fresno City College secretarial major, said she was very happy and surprised at winning the title of Miss Future Business Executive of Calif.

Miss Ryan will compete for the national title in Washington D.C., June 14-16. She was chosen during the annual state convention of the Future Business Leaders of California.

Miss Ryan is a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma and Phi Theta Kappa, FCC scholarship societies. She is also a member of Phi Beta Lambda, which is the FCC chapter of FBLA.

The future plans of this campus coed have not been definitely arranged but she says she will return to FCC in the fall to complete her secretarial course.

Even with a busy schedule, Miss Ryan finds time to keep up with her favorite hobbies of bowling, tennis and reading. Her favorite author is Lloyd C. Douglas.

Playing the piano, flute and piccolo are part of the musical talents of Miss Future Business Executive of Calif.

Mrs. Wilma Weston, FCC business instructor, said, "Patricia was very happy and honored to win the title and have the opportunity to represent the college and the state of Calif. in the national competition. The FCC business division is very proud of Patricia."

Counselors Optimistic On Grades

Two Fresno City College counselors were approached and asked whether or not FCC students were doing better scholastically than they did.

Norvel R. Caywood believes that the scholastic standing is about the same. He feels engineering is much higher because of foreign students who have an extensive background in science and mathematics. Also the electives that are offered help to keep up the scholastic standards.

Caywood said he is very encouraged by the students morale and he hopes that all students will take advantage of pre-counseling this spring. If the students use this pre-counseling it will save them a lot of worry in the fall.

John R. McCarty compared the transcript grades and the mid-term grades and he found that the grades are remaining about the same, and maybe somewhat better. These grades were taken from only a sample few but the grades on the whole appear to be better.

422 Students Entered FCC In The Spring

A survey prepared by George C. Holstein, the dean of admissions, shows that 422 new students entered Fresno City College during the spring semester. From this number, 246 plan to transfer to a four year college, 136 are terminal and 40 are undecided.

Holstein said that the general education division gained the most with 179, followed by 133 in the business division, and 110 in the industrial division.

The survey also revealed 347 of the new students were high school graduates and 75 were not.

Holstein said that FCC continues to attract students from other colleges as 215 enrolled last fall and 201 entered for the spring semester. Students enrolling direct from high school numbered 221, representing the largest group to enter FCC for the spring semester. The high school students also represent the majority entering the business and industrial divisions with 73 and 62, respectively.

The non-high school graduates are evenly distributed among the three divisions with 27 in general education, 25 in business, and 23 in the industrial division.

Letters To The Editor

In Defense Of Athletics

Dear Editor:

Mr. Ruggeri's editorial in last week's paper poses quite a question—is athletics really as necessary as it's cracked up to be? Why certainly. Where else does one get esprit de studente bodie? Certainly not in the classroom—spirit abounds in the grandstand and nowhere else.

Athletics give students something to talk about over the coffee cup.

Athletics give good excuses for asking girls for dates.

Athletics give good excuses for having dances after something.

Enough for excuses. Mr. Ruggeri seems to think that the cultural aspects of college are being overlooked in favor of athletics. Goodness gracious, sir, does Mr. Ruggeri realize that our great American way of life (which he expounds on so diligently at times) is an athletic culture? Yes, athletics is a culture, American culture. Just as sex is becoming a culture in the United States (and it's bound to stay around for awhile), so is overemphasized athletics becoming part of our culture. It's part of free enterprise!

That's right, free enterprise. The government won't subsidize athletics, so universities and colleges have to. Laissez faire and all that jazz—a perfect lesson in economics.

At any rate, Mr. Editor, please tell Mr. Ruggeri that athletics is necessary. After all, what are we going to do with all the gymnasiums we have built, make cultural aspects out of them?

College Credit Program For High School Students Begins

Next semester at Fresno City College will begin the "College Credit Program," designed for high school seniors of the immediate area to take college courses and compile transferable college units.

John S. Hansen, administrative dean, announced an estimate of 100 students from different high schools in the area to attend next semester.

Hansen said, "Five per cent of the total number of enrollees at each high school will determine the number of representatives the school will have eligible to attend FCC. These students will be selected by the high schools in accordance with their emotional and physical health."

He explained that the incentive for the program came when a number of high school students wanted to take the recently established Russian course here.

The administrative dean said that the program will give high school seniors a chance to take courses they are advanced in, and will also expand the number of courses a high school student can take before reaching college.

Some of the courses being offered are engineering, business, Russian, music, social science and science.

Veterans Are Eligible For Tests

Veterans attending Fresno City College and working towards their high school diploma are eligible to participate in the general education development tests May 4, 5, 6 and 7 at Roosevelt High School.

The tests will be given in the adult education division room in the E wing of the building.

George C. Holstein, dean of admissions, said, "All servicemen who pass the four tests, will receive credits towards graduation."

Further information may be received by contacting the dean in his office adjacent to the admissions office in the administration building.

Foot Notes

By RUSS FOOTE
SPORTS EDITOR

On the way home from work the other evening, I came across what was probably the most exciting baseball game played since the time a garter snake got under Yogi Berra's chest protector in a game at Yankee Stadium back in 1951.

On the front lawn of an unsuspecting neighbor, Charley's team was meeting the West Side Gang in a continuation of a game started 11 days ago. The game was in the first inning with Charley's guys ahead, 111 to 97, which was pretty amazing because Charley's guys hadn't batted yet.

Here's a play by play of what I saw:

Two Stray Cats

Hi, baseball fans. It's a grand afternoon for baseball, because the people who own this lawn aren't home. There's a fine crowd on hand—two stray cats, Charley's little brother who isn't old enough to play but gets to carry all the bats home, Melvin's mother who sent Mel to the store for a pound of round steak chopped 2½ hours ago and Charley's dog.

The first batter is Butch and the first pitch is a fastball, high, very high over the catcher's head and so close to one of the stray cats that it almost had kittens for ball one. The next pitch is a curveball, which looked mighty similar to the fastball, and Butch hits a good one into the bushes behind Rollo for extra bases.

All of Rollo's teammates are hollaring, "Come on Fatso" to Rollo as Butch rounds the water sprinkler, Charley's dog (who doubles as a spectator and second base) and heads for third. It's a close play, but Butch is on with a triple.

Round Steak Chopped

The next batter is Melvin who hits a grounder through the legs of the second baseman, centerfielder, and roving shortstop for a home run. And home is exactly where Mel's running, because here comes his mother looking mighty hungry for round steak chopped.

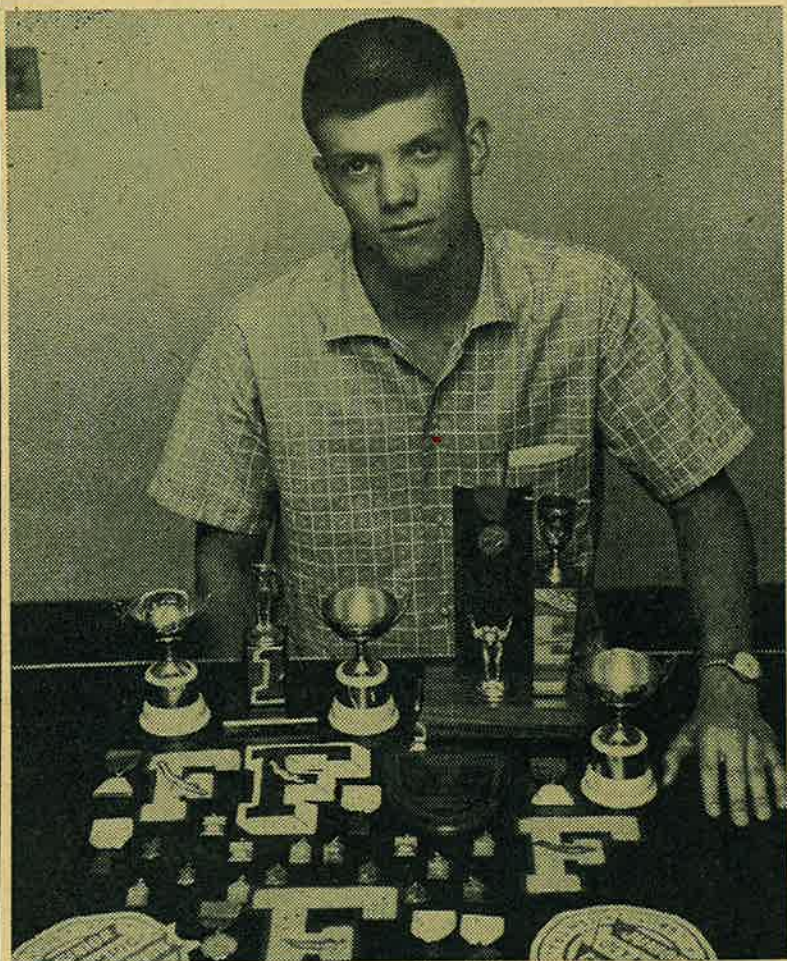

The fans are going wild and so are the neighbors up and down the block. Lola is the next batter. She gets to play because it's her ball. Last time up she knocked the catcher unconscious by swinging backwards. She hits a line drive at second base.

Second base is getting up and running away with the ball in his mouth.

And so we'll have to call the game on account of . . . something.

Mile Relay Victory Gives FCC 61-61 Tie With COS Trackmen

By LARRY ADAMS

A win in the mile relay gave the Fresno City College Ram track team enough points to tie College of the Sequoias Giants 61-61 in a meet in Visalia last Friday. It was the closest the Rams have come to defeating the Giants since Fresno's track team of 1953.

The Ram relay team, made up of Buss Helm, Jim Wright, Spencer Johnson and Leo Revis, broke a meet record set by the Ram relay team last year. Last year's team covered the mile in 3:29.8 and this year's team covered the circuit in 3:27.5.

Six meet records fell with the Rams and Giants each setting three. Johnson set a record in the 440 and Tony Fiorentino eclipsed the shot put record, along with the record setting relay team.

Gene Bamberg and Helm were double winners for the Rams. Bamberg swept the 100 and 220 yard dashes and Helm took the 880 and mile. It was the first time this year Helm had run the mile and he turned in a good time of 4:29.3.

The results:

Slaughter Named New Grid Mentor

Clare Slaughter was named to the head football coaching post at Fresno City College after Hans Wiedenhofer resigned to become the athletic director.

Wiedenhofer will continue his duties as head of the physical education department and head golf and wrestling coach.

Stuart M. White, president of FCC, said, "The choice was entirely up to Hans," and was necessitated by the increasing size of the school and the expanding athletic program.

During his eight seasons as head coach at FCC, Wiedenhofer has coached the Rams to six league championships and has never had a losing season. Last year the Rams won eight and lost two, including a win over Sacramento Junior College in the first annual Sanger Sequoia Bowl.

Slaughter, a graduate of the College of the Pacific in 1943, began his coaching career in 1946 at Galt High School. He took over at Sanger High in 1948 and coached the Apaches to three championships in six years.

Slaughter will be assisted by Dick Handley, the line coach for the past five years, and by Ray McCarthy, who will return to coaching after a two year absence.

Head baseball coach Len Bourdet will assist with football and Slaughter will assist with baseball.

Rams Win A Pair; Meet Hancock Twice

BY DAVID HANNA

The Fresno City College Rams will travel to Santa Maria Saturday for a doubleheader with the Allan Hancock Bulldogs after sweeping both ends of a Central California Junior College Athletic Association twin bill with the Porterville College Pirates.

The Rams won the first game, 18-4, behind the brilliant two hit pitching of Darrell Woofter, and then used a three run sixth inning to win the seven inning nightcap, 7-4.

Woofter would have had a shut-out in the opener, but his wildness and loose fielding on the part of his mates accounted for four unearned runs. Woofter walked six and struck out four in the nine inning game.

Only Four Earned Runs

Fresno used twelve walks, ten errors and 13 hits to score their 18 runs. Only four of the 22 runs scored in the game were earned.

The Rams wiped out a two run Pirate lead in the last of the second, scoring five runs on two walks, two errors, a stolen base, a sacrifice fly by Jack Goodwin and singles by Ron Kodman, Terry Hanoian and Chuck Smith.

The Rams scored two runs in the sixth on four walks and a single by Lango, and added another in the seventh on two errors by the Pirate shortstop.

Fresno completed the scoring in the eighth with a five run rally which featured two walks, three errors and singles by Jim Murphy and Tom Fields.
