Office Seeking Has Begun At City College This Week

Political activity leading to the election of spring semester student body officers started Tuesday at Fresno City College.

Douglas Eudaly, commissioner of elections, said that students wanting to run for the 14 offices are able to obtain petitions in the student body office, SC-201.

The petition must be returned with a minimum of 35 signatures of student body members to Mrs. Lena M. Fuller in the administration office by Dec. 10 at 3 P.M.

The candidates will be introduced in a nominations assembly Dec. 12 at 12 noon in the auditorium.

Nominees may campaign from December 15 to 19 before the Christmas holidays and January 5 to 7. The election will be held January 8 and 9.

The new officers will be installed Feb. 5 or 6.

Pre-Registration Has Now Started

With one week of pre-registration past, approximately 300 students have completed the necessary steps of pre-registration for the spring semester at Fresno City College. The spring semester will start Feb. 9.

George C. Holstein, dean of admissions and records, announced that none of the classes have been completely filled.

Holstein also stated that all students who pre-registered must return to the FCC library on Feb. 4, to have all their cards checked and pay the registration fee, or the student will not be considered enrolled in that class and any new student will be able to enroll in place of the pre-registered student.

All transfer or new students will be registered Feb. 4-6. Night classes will be registered Feb. 3-6.

FCC Evening Division Will Offer 109 Courses

The Fresno City College evening division will offer 109 courses during the spring semester.

Robert M. Kelly, the division dean, announced that currently enrolled students may preregister from now until January 22nd from 6:30 to 9:30 PM in the admissions office on the University Ave. campus. They may not preregister during their class hours.

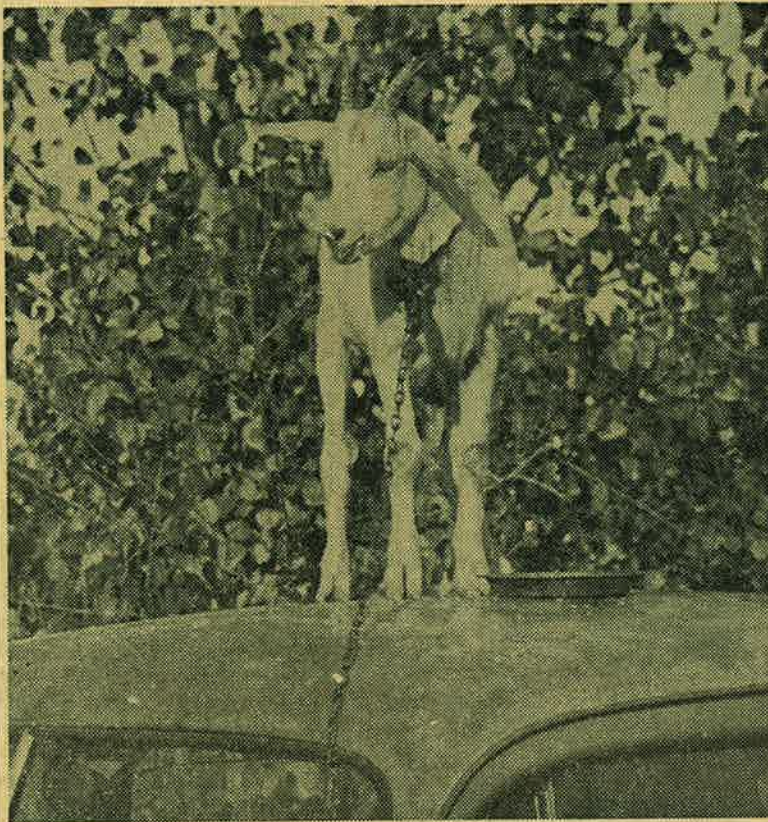

Kelly said all students now in night classes on the University Ave. campus should preregister. Students in the technical and industrial division with classes on the O St. and Edison campuses or at Continuation High School also may preregister. However, they may wait until January 19th to 23rd, when they will be processed in their classrooms.

Counselors will be available for students who need their help in the counseling center from 7 to 9 PM from December 15th to 18th and from January 12th to 15th. Kelly said night students who are candidates for graduation should contact his office for assistance.

Night students who have not taken the college aptitude and English placement tests may do so January 27th from 7 to 10 P.M. Kelly said all degree candidates who have not taken the examinations should plan to take them.

The evening division will observe the same spring semester schedule as the day students.

PEOPLE EATER ACTS—One of the best known actors in "Teahouse of the August Moon" is Henry, a white goat. Among the unusual features of Henry is the fact that he does not have whiskers as other goats of a year.

Rehearsals Reach Final Stages In Preparation For First College Play

The smell of grease paint is growing stronger as the first Fresno City College dramatic production approaches.

Teahouse of the August Moon, chosen by Clyde Sumpter, dramatic coach, depicts the tragic and humorous problems of the occupation forces in Okinawa.

The Pulitzer prize winning play will be given Dec. 12, 13.

Playing the leads in the play are Arthur Miyashiro, as Sakini. Sakini is an oriental Sancha Panza, a delegate without portfolio or an extra pair of pants. Sakini is a much needed friend to Captain Fisby, and a thorn in the side of Col. Purdy.

Captain Fisby, portrayed by Mike Parker, believes that democracy is not so much a uniform of the states but a state of mind.

Colonel Purdy, played by Dave Ruggeri, depicts a villain, but it is impossible for him to be a villain because they have to have intelligence in guile. That is not possible for Purdy.

Captain McLean, Sid Mossesian, plays a frustrated psychiatrist and a horticulturist on a foreign soil who is unable to suppress his desire for gardening.

The feminine lead and the romantic element is Lotus Blossom, played by Joan Obata.

The final main character, Os-kira, characterized by Dick Looney, is a peddler of lacquer ware.

Henry The Goat Is Leading Act

Have you ever encountered a goat with a personality all its own? Henry, the four footed star of Teahouse of the August Moon, has a unique one.

The goat will portray Lady Astor, the sweet potato brandy addict in the three act play by John Patrick.

"Henry used to be a woman hater, and a people butter," said Mrs. Florance Harper, the owner-manager of the goat, "We are crossing our fingers and hope for no mishap during the play."

The neurotic animal has the habits of a baby. He likes to play with cardboard boxes and eat the roses that his mistress grows in the front yard. Henry can be seen sitting on top of a dilapidated car surveying the land for choice eating spots.

Choir To Put On Program

The Fresno City College choir will present four Christmas programs during the Advent season.

C. Lowell Spencer, the director, said one will be an evening performance for the public in the FCC auditorium December 17 at 8 P.M. It will be the first public program the choir has ever presented in the school's history at the college.

Another program will be given in a student assembly at 11 AM the same day in the auditorium.

Choir Sings Elsewhere

The choir will also provide a Christmas program for the Fig Gardens Woman's Club December 10th at 1 P.M., and it will participate in the First Methodist Church's traditional early English plum pudding festival December 7th at 5 P.M.

Soloists will include Sonya Miller, Janice Ivey, Veloyce Rowe, Carol McIntyre, Caralee Blizzard, Deanna Miller, Hillard Streets and Roleen Patterson.

Fresno Musicians Featured

The pianists will be Judy Unruh and Gary Sexton, and the organists will be Sexton and Richard Cencibaugh.

In singing the carols, the choir will be accompanied by Mrs. James Paige, a harpist of the Fresno Symphony Orchestra; Barton Boni, a Fresno State College student, on the English horn, and Adele McQuillin, a city college student, on the violin.

The choir has 50 voices. Spencer said the public performance will be free.

In the plum pudding festival the waiters will dress in early English costumes and the audience will sit in candlelight at tables of 10 with a plum pudding at each table.

Stockton Representatives Visit Fresno City College

Dr. Allen Waldo and Miss Helen Danner of Stockton College and 14 members of the college student body officers arrived at Fresno City College at approximately 10 AM today.

The reasons for this visit are to discuss problems pertinent to student body activities such as the the relationship between students and faculty, the conduction of student council meetings, and an overall view of the FCC campus.

FCC Student Council advisor Joe King said, "We are pleased that the student body representatives from Stockton College have chosen to visit FCC in their study of student body activities and we anticipate that this opportunity to exchange ideas between colleges will be of benefit to both schools."

New Fads: Hula Hoop And Blowing Up Schools

The ingenious capacity of the American people for self-destruction is on the loose again. Not satisfied with the cultural phenomenon of the hula hoop, they have taken to blowing up schools.

The adolescently adult western is being slowly overshadowed by the thrill of this country's newest craze for blowing up the schools we worked so hard to get. But that's the democratic theory for you: the right never do anything half way.

It is an unfortunate habit of the average American to stick out his nose and let some form of society draw a ring through it. He allows himself to be led down the avenue of his life with hundreds of others as they all bellow their individuality in unison.

The situation in the South has been drawing a ring through many American noses. Like a herd of turtles, these so-called radicals fall in step behind their unseen, unheard, and unknown leaders. Now they are no longer the justice-claiming radicals they pose to be. They are now idiots conforming to stupidity, and they are happy in their native surroundings. These are the people that either don't have the ability or are too afraid to think for themselves.

But we cannot blame the blind for falling in the hole. Rather let us condemn more readily the blind that seek to lead the blind. Let us say that perhaps it is the wishy-washy society in which they have been raised. The enforcement of this society's morals, ethics and values has become lax. Here is the crux of the problem.

The Supreme Court, America's backbone of justice, has been ineffective in backing up its decision. If the backbone is weak, how can the man stand? The principles of the judicial system of this country should be clearly set down, defined, applied, and then enforced with the conviction by which they were set up.

There can be no two ways about it. There must be only one way, a way through which we cannot be led or pushed. America is at the cross roads of the future.

We are already stepping down the wrong road by handling the situation in the South irrationally. But that's the Democratic theory: the right to be irrational. At least that's what certain bombing artists will tell you.

One Sophomore Shows Up At Class Meeting

Are you that student? The one student who took the trouble to attend the first Sophomore class meeting of the fall semester. There are eight hundred students at Fresno City College who are Sophomores. These include part and full time students who have been attending a college for three or four semesters. An organization must have recognition, this can and will be achieved only if enough students show enough interest, and attend each meeting.

Many organizations are lacking in club spirit at Fresno City College. By coming to the meetings you show you are interested and wish to continue as a recognized group. By failing to come you are forcing your sponsor and others to think, why was this club organized? Let's get the ball rolling, students, and attend your clubs, let's have a one hundred percent attendance, not a one percent.

POST OFFICE PLEADS: HELP! Russian Offered In Night Class

The Post Office Department is once again asking the community for its full cooperation in making this a successful postal Christmas.

As Christmas is only 21 days away it is important that all cards and packages are mailed as soon as possible.

To assure prompt and proper delivery of cards and packages follow these tips: (1) Address all parcels and letters legibly; (2) Include a return address on each piece of mail; (3) Put the correct amount of postage on all cards and packages.

Fresno City College is offering a night class in elementary Russian this spring.

Mrs. Irene Ryzev, the Russian instructor, said the course will be four units. It will cover grammar, translations, and vocabulary.

A second semester course, Russian 1B, will be given daily at 3 PM in L-204.

The Office of Education reports 40 per cent of Russian high school students and 65 per cent of Russian college students are studying English—a total of 10,000,000. In contrast, fewer than 10,000 Americans are studying Russian.

ROVING REPORTER

Beards Bring Comments From Fresno CC Female Students

The roving reporter was turned loose again this week and interviewed six typical Fresno City College coeds.

This week's question was: "What is your opinion of the new trend in men of growing beards?"

Their candid opinions were recorded as follows:

Jean Holmes, general major,

"Personally, I don't care for the beards themselves, but I do like the guys underneath the brush. I would like to see their faces sometime; they may be really handsome, who knows?"

Rosalind Andrews, education

major, "As long as it isn't my own boyfriend growing the beard, they are all right. When it comes to trying to reach the guy through the beard, often times it's somewhat difficult and most unpleasant."

Deanna Miller, business ma-

major, "My opinion of the trend is very unfavorable. It's terrible, terrible. Of course I don't know, but it appears to me it would be awfully uncomfortable."

Judy Marden, art major, "It seems to me these guys are too lazy to shave. It sure looks like they need one. They look barbaric, and a little bit careless about their appearance. (Razor blades are cheap, boys.)"

Judy Brehe, business major,

"The days of the uncivilized have returned. We are regressing back into the caveman style. I don't like the beards."

Cindy Lawrence, business ma-

major, "Beards don't bother me one way or the other. It really does not make too much difference to me. However, some of you guys are handsome enough without beards, so don't grow them. Some look good; some don't."

Smith Announces Course

Phil Smith, the journalism instructor, announced that there will be a new course in journalism this spring.

Sam The Ram, Black Sheep

By SUSAN CYR

Traditions abound at Fresno City College, and memories linger on. Whether in memory or reality, though, there has always been a Sam the Ram. He is the cute little fellow, either grim or grinning, who adorns book covers, perches on the masthead of the Rampage, and rides (in style?) as a decal on the windows of countless cars belonging to FCC students.

The newest mascot of the Rambling Rams is the fifth in a long line of Sams. Sam V, who made his debut — and probably his finale — at the FCC-Porterville football game Nov. 7, is, contrary to the usual City College standards, a black sheep — with small white horns. He was apparently "borrowed" by a few spirited students for that one game.

The original Sam, a battling two year old, was purchased in October of 1948.

Lester Parks, who was with the Kaiser-Frazer Agency in Fresno, was a public-spirited man who had already bought a handsome ad for a football program. When he heard, however, that the Rams wanted a mascot he went into a huddle with his generosity to see if he could spare fifty dollars.

Mrs. Parks then stepped in and told the junior college delegation that if Parks didn't buy them a ram she would. Since he stood to lose either way, he paid for Sam.

Sam made his first public appearance at a rally Oct. 29, 1958 — shampooed, bleached, and pedicured, with curling horns crimson red and matching red hoofs.

His demise in May of 1951 was commemorated by the student body in a full scale ceremony with the flag dipped, taps played and a speech given.

The three Sams following him lived up to their parts, but they, too, are now only memories. Come what may, though, Fresno City College will always have a Sam the Ram.

Parking Problem Still Unsolved At City College

A stagnant situation — these are the only words which can describe the Fresno City College parking problem at this time. Absolutely nothing can be done right now to relieve the crowded mess.

Students who insist on bringing one car per person will have to realize that not everyone can park at the front door of the school. There are parking spaces three blocks from school, and students will have to leave home a little earlier mornings and walk those extra blocks to class.

Action Stopped

Stuart White, FCC president, said that action is at a standstill. He is now waiting for the return of some blueprints of the campus as it stood before renovation began. When these come in, work will start on a new set of blueprints for the present campus. Then the job will be taken on from that point.

There are some possibilities for the future, though some of them are not too probable. One of these improbable solutions, or partial solution, is the use of all the ground now occupied by the Botanical Gardens, the faculty parking lot, and the two old quonset huts, as a parking lot. Because of the good contributed by the Botanical Gardens, however, and also because those buildings are still in use, this suggestion seems rather farfetched.

No Buying

There is a possibility of buying property near to the school, if some can be found that is not too costly, but this will have to be investigated thoroughly.

The city has been consulted as to the possibility of tearing out the parking strips down the middle of University Ave. and making true parking places of them.

It seems that the only thing students and sometimes irate neighbors can do is wait — and while they are waiting try to cooperate.

New Vocational Courses Offered

New vocational courses designed specifically for women are being considered at Fresno City College. They are cosmetology and dental secretary, designed mainly to attract women students to decrease the 3 to 1 ratio of women students to men.

President Stuart M. White pointed out that all state junior college vocational courses are tailored to the needs of the individual community, and that requests have come in from several sources for both programs. White also mentioned that a new course for air stewardesses as an example of how the school is pushing for greater opportunities for women students.

FCC conducts the only accredited school of vocational nursing in Fresno County and provides a free three semester program in cooperation with Fresno hospitals. Students who do not attend an accredited school cannot take the required state examination for a vocational nurse.

Surveys are taken before a new course is offered to make sure the community can absorb the graduates. It also applies for the permission of the state's department of vocational education. Besides preliminary studies by the college's curriculum committee, there is a standing citizen's committee of Fresno businessmen which confers twice a year with college officials.

Law Is New Faculty Member, Recently UNESCO Employee

By DIANE NIXON

Sydney D. Law, a recent addition to the Fresno City College faculty, has been affiliated with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Law was hired by UNESCO in 1951 and again in 1956 as an advisor to Iranian Ministry of Education. His duties involved advising Iranian Ministry of Education regarding rural schools, especially secondary and teacher training schools.

Modern and Ancient Mix

"According to the Mohammedan calendar the people of the Middle East are living in the 14th century and by our calendar it is the 20th century, and in some ways the Middle East is almost as far behind as its calendar," said Law, "However, some of the newer cities like Teheran, the capital of Iran, are very modern."

The education program in the cities of Iran is based on an old French scheme of six years of elementary school, three years of junior high school and three years of senior high school. The rural school program differs as the students only attend four years of elementary school.

Rapid March of Education

"The education program is advancing in all of the Middle East. They are trying to modernize the school system from elementary clear through college," stated Law. "However, they are trying to do in a generation what it took European countries 600 years to accomplish."

Law received his bachelor and master degrees from the University of Minnesota in 1920 and 1921 respectively. He also attended the University of California and the University of Washington. Prior to 1925 Law taught in Minnesota and Canadian high schools and agricultural college.

Taught At Exeter

Prior to Law's affiliation with UNESCO he was the vice principal and head of the science department at Exeter Union High School. At Exeter high school he taught chemistry, physics, biology, advanced algebra, geometry and trigonometry.

From Sept., 1954 to June, 1956, the time between his two terms with UNESCO, Law taught at the College of Sequoias in Visalia. He was the head of the chemistry department at COS and he taught chemistry, organic and quantitative analysis.

At FCC Law is presently teaching Chemistry IA and IB, Chemistry 55, and physical science.

Sophomores To Elect New Officers

There will be a Sophomore Class meeting in M-200 tomorrow at 12:30 PM. The business to be discussed will be the election of a temporary chairman, and social events for the fall semester.

FINE ARTS CLUB

The proposed publication of the student directories will not go on sale until next semester. According to Veloyce Rowe, publicity commissioner, there is too much expense and not enough time to get the publication ready.

A discussion for a Christmas caroling party and a weekend trip to San Francisco will be the primary reason for the meeting Wednesday.

PHI BETA LAMBDA

Two meetings were held simultaneously on the subjects business Wednesday at noon in B-8, and the student center committee room.

Paul Fansler, a representative of the Nebraskan Bankers Life Insurance Company, spoke on opportunities in management.

Charm, and how to achieve it were discussed by Mrs. Robert Mascn, who is employed by Harold Zinken's reducing salon.

"Students who are interested in organizing a Ski Club at Fresno City College are urged to come to a meeting Dec. 12, at 12:30 PM in M-200," said Miss Doris Deakins.

Mrs. Sara Dougherty, the advisor for the Women's Recreation Association modern dance group, encourages all women students who are interested in modern dance to attend the next Monday meeting at 3 PM.

"The purpose of the modern

GRUNTS AND GROANS—which you may hear coming from the men's gym are FCC's wrestlers, like the two above, preparing for the coming season.

Ram Wrestlers Open Season Saturday

By DAVE HANNA

Fresno City College's wrestling team will open their season Saturday at 8 PM when they will host the El Camino Junior College wrestlers. The match will be in the FCC gymnasium.

Coach Hans Wiedenhoefer said, "We should have a good team this year once everybody is in shape. Last year's team, with five wrestlers, finished seventh out of 18 wrestling teams in the state. This year we hope for a higher finish."

College wrestling is divided into nine weight divisions. Wrestling for Fresno in the different divisions are:

- 123 pounds, Joe Pulido from Roosevelt High.
- 130 pounds, Eddie Davies from Fresno High.
- 137 pounds, open at present.
- 147 pounds, James Moore from Illinois. Moore won the Illinois State Championship.
- 157 pounds, Al Cunningham, a returnee from last year's team.

Foot Notes

By RUSS FOOTE
SPORTS EDITOR

This week the college football players across the country are putting their shoulder pads in moth balls and are getting ready to start spending the money they've accumulated during the football season. (Football players, strangely, seem to have more money than most other college students, but then that's probably because they're busy Saturday nights and don't have time to spend it.)

Anyway, to keep college coaches and cheerleaders in jobs during the hard winter months, the bouncy sport of basketball has commenced once again. So now all the fans can go out to the packed gymnasium twice a week, root for the home team, socialize with other guys from their school, and spread all sorts of contagious diseases.

Basketball can be all kinds of fun to root for if you know what's going on. So here's a preview of basketball goings-on.

Pre-Season All American Choices:

Forward—Stretch Yardley, Slippery Rock State Teachers College. Stretch is so tall if he ever straightens up he'll suffocate; he has to wear an oxygen mask to rebound.

Forward — Iggy Inch, Harvard

Cunningham finished fourth in the state finals.

- 167 pounds, Jerry Kirkhart, a returnee from last year's team.
- 177 pounds, Bill Moore, a returnee from last year's team. Moore placed second in the state finals.
- 191 pounds, Don Wamhof, a returning veteran, from Fresno High.

Heavyweight, Ken Manser from Madera High. Manser may wrestle in the 191 pound division also. Wayne Cook and Ron Turner from the football team will compete in this division.

Rugged Schedule Ahead

In college wrestling, a team is awarded five points for a pin and three points for a decision in each of the divisions.

This year's schedule includes many of the big colleges and universities such as the University of California, San Jose State College, and Cal Poly, plus many of the junior colleges in the states that have a wrestling team.

Law School. Inch is 5'4", a lousy shot, and his father contributes $30,000 a year to the Harvard athletic fund.

Center—Clyde Klod, Klod University. "He's a great player, he can play on my squad anytime. He may have weaknesses, but he's sure to improve," states Coach Klod.

Guard—Leo Nomelini, San Francisco 49ers.

Guard—Lorence Spectenburger, First National Bank.

Basketball Terms Defined:

Jump Shot: What an offensive player does when a defensive player, in over-guarding him makes a very personal type foul.

Stall: What offensive team does to run out clock but mainly because they can't find opening in defense to make shot.

Dribble: What the referee will start doing if he keeps the whistle in his mouth for the duration of the game.

Basketball: A game in which ten tall men spend the better part of an hour marching from one end of a gymnasium to the other, shooting foul shots.

It's all very well to know the players, the slang terms, and the rules of basketball, but a fan can derive the most enjoyment at a game by bringing his own referee's whistle and use it at appropriate times.

This whole thing has been out of bounds.

Gridders Conclude Season; Ram Hoopsters Take Over

Rams Win; Meet Bakersfield Next

FCC Wins First Sequoia Bowl

By IRENE BRIETIGAM

Coach Joe Kelly's Fresno City College Ram basketball team will travel to Bakersfield Friday to participate in the Bakersfield Invitation Basketball Tournament. The Rams will meet San Jose Junior College in the first game of the two day elimination tournament.

Bakersfield College won the tournament championship last season. This will be the fourth annual tournament; FCC lost both games they played in last year's affair.

The Rams initiated their campaign Saturday, Nov. 29 at Azusa with a 73 to 60 victory over Citrus Junior College. Frank Johnson dumped in 19 points for the Rams; Darnell Mikel had 17, and Chet Bishop had 10.

Rebounding Disappoints

Fresno led 32 to 27 at half-time. But the Citrus quintet evened the score at 51 all late in the game, before Fresno pulled away to stay. Coach Kelly was somewhat disappointed by FCC's rebounding, or rather the lack of it. Lee Stark picked up four fouls early in the game, that also hurt the Rams.

Most of the boys on this year's squad are newcomers. However, they are playing together well. The probable starting line-up for the opening game of the Bakersfield Tournament for the Rams will be drawn from Frank Johnson, Chuck Lowe, Darnell Mikel, George Sarantos, Chet Bishop, and Lee Stark.

Fresno finished with a 14 won, 16 lost record during the 1957-58 season. Last year's leading scorer John Hampton is not eligible for the team this semester, but he could give the squad a great boost if he is eligible in February.

By MONTE HORNER

The Fresno City College Rams took advantage of the breaks and smashed their way to a 27-19 win over the Sacramento Junior College Panthers in the initial Sequoia Bowl contest last Saturday in Sanger. The game was played for the benefit of the Valley Children's Hospital and sponsored by the Sequoia Guild of Sanger.

The fans were no more than partially seated when Vestee Jackson brought them up again, with an electrifying 59 yard touchdown gallop the first time he handled the ball. Jackson broke off tackle and easily outdistanced the Panther secondary behind the sharp Ram blockers.

Moments later Don Oberg recovered a Sacramento fumble on the Panther 29 yard line. The Rams were on the scoreboard two plays later. After the recovery Dick Lubic bulled his way to the 18 yard marker and on the next play took a handoff from Stan Bush and scored standing up behind the blocking of Bush, Jackson and guard Chet Rooters.

Bush To Lopes

Bush set up the Rams' next score when he intercepted an errant Panther aerial on the Fresno 40 yard stripe and returned it to the Sacramento 36 yard line. Bush then faked a bootleg and instead fired a pass to Ronnie Lopes, Ram end, on the 10 yard line and Lopes crossed the goal line unscathed. Little Gene Bamberg was stopped short on the two point conversion try by Panther halfback Jimmy Yee who made the touchdown pass a success by slipping to the ground in his effort to cover Lopes.
