350 Educators Invade Fresno For Conference

Some 350 top level junior college educators will wrap up the three day fall session of the California Junior College Association at the Hacienda Motel today.

Four featured speakers addressed the assemblies of the group during the conference, including Dr. Max Rafferty, the state superintendent of public instruction.

Public Appeal

Rafferty first rocketed into public attention with his 1961 speech called "The Passing of the Patriot," which was reprinted in the Reader's Digest. He followed this with a best-selling book, "Suffer, Little Children," and a 1964 sequel, "What They Are Doing to Your Children."

Rafferty's topic will be "The State Superintendent Looks at the Junior College." He addressed yesterday's luncheon meeting of the association.

Today's Challenge

Dr. Robert Scalapino, a professor of political science at the University of California, spoke on "Academic Freedom: Challenge for Today" at the banquet Tuesday evening.

Assemblyman Gordon H. Winton, Jr. spoke to the convention at the 10 AM meeting Wednesday, and Dr. John F. Prince, executive director for the Arizona state junior college board, spoke on "Some Approaches to a State System of Junior Colleges" at the 2:30 PM opening session on Tuesday.

Business Dean Evaluates Role Of Local Help

"Without them we would be operating in the dark."

This is how a Fresno City College division head evaluates the role of 221 local business, industrial, and professional people who do an important behind the scene job at FCC.

The citizens are the impetus of 31 advisory committees working in close proximity with college officials. Their function, according to school officials, is to keep educators informed of the job needs of the community.

"They inform the school of the business and industrial needs of the community," said Gervase A. Eckenrod, associate dean of business division, "and we are able to change our classes to meet these needs."

Five citizen advisory committees, made up primarily of local business men and women, work closely with Eckenrod's division.

"We even have a judge on our real estate advisory committee," said Eckenrod, proudly pointing to the name of Harold V. Thompson. Judge Thompson sits in the county court house.

The most numerous committees — 24 in all — are situated around the FCC Technical and Industrial Division. Here the members surpass, in number, the faculty at the college itself.

"With these committees we are (See Dean, Page 3)

College Receives Grant For Sponsoring Program

A federal vocational education grant of nearly $61,000 has been awarded to Fresno City College for sponsorship of an advanced secretarial and court reporting training program.

Congressional approval of financial support for the project — called Occupational Centered Stenography, a Pilot Program — was announced by Gervase A. Eckenrod, dean of the FCC Business Division.

The funds, totaling $60,842, are provided under the Vocational Education Act of 1963. This represents a portion of some $7 million voted for California vocational education, Eckenrod said.

Eckenrod, who began work on the program last March, termed the project as "a honey" of a program. It will, he said, primarily introduce new teaching methods for speeding up learning time.

The highly specialized program will be centered around instruction in medical, legal and technical secretarial fields and court reporting.

It provides "complete specialization in one year leading to immediate employment for those persons who have prerequisites skill levels to enter the program."

The program will also provide the second year in the Associate of Science program for majors in these fields.

Teaching objectives are listed as:

— Highly specialized training and retraining for legal, medical, technical secretaries and court reporters.

— To train students in the care and use of equipment concurrently employed by many concerns.

The largest portion of the grant will be used for the purchase and maintenance of the new machinery, and the outfitting of a training room.

Included in the equipment, which Eckenrod said would cost about $25,136, will be 36 new IBM electric typewriters.

Also to be purchased will be a monitor stereo lab containing a six channel program system.

A section in the upper story of the Business division has been set aside for the project.

"We hope to get delivery in 30 days," Eckenrod said. He went on to predict that the equipment will be installed and functional "by the end of November."

While the college currently offers training in both secretarial fields and court reporting, the equipment will increase the specialization, Eckenrod said. Training will also be faster and more complete.

The new equipment will allow trainees to remain at desks for both dictation and transcription, he said. Normally the machines would have been at separate locations.

Eckenrod pointed out that the new monitor lab would allow instructors to communicate with all or portions of the class. Similar instructors audit on a single channel.

Included in the program outline submitted to the review board were the results of a vast employment demand survey conducted by the business division.

The purpose of the survey, Eckenrod said, was to find out what kinds of jobs would be available so that students could be trained to fill needs of the community business force.

Interviewed were employment services, local businessmen and the State employment board. The division also evaluated employment positions listed in want ads.

Eckenrod said that the program would enhance the ability of the college to provide the proper training of specialized people for the community work force.

This, he added, was one of the prime purposes of the junior college.

Students Begin Drive For Blood Donations To Be Donated To Veterans

In honor of Veterans Day students of Fresno City College are sponsoring a Blood Bank Drawing. It is to be held Nov. 10, 10 AM to 1 PM, in the social hall.

All blood will be given directly to the patients at the Veterans Administration hospital.

Ronald Primavera, chairman of the drive, said that arrangements are being made to excuse students from class during the time they wish to donate blood.

Students wishing to donate must be 18 years of age and weigh at least 110 pounds. Their medical history must exclude any signs of jaundice, malaria, tuberculosis, diabetes, high blood pressure, syphilis, heart disease or undulant fever.

Pledge Cards

All unmarried students under 21 must fill out and present a pledge card to the doctor in attendance. They will be available in Room SC 230 and student body president's office.

Primavera urges students to consume nothing but black coffee at least four hours before the drawing.

Refreshments

After the drawing each student will rest awhile, then they will be offered refreshments. The Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary will supply the orange juice, coffee, sandwiches, cookies and donuts.

Doing the serving will be Miss Operation Lifeline, Sandra McClurg and hostesses Donna De Masian, Carol Dunaway, Donna Risconi, Phyllis Flemming, Peggy Bell, Darlene Cook, Lynda Davis, Pam Jackson and Joan Bybee.

The Central California Blood Bank and the VA hospital will assist by donating time, men and equipment for the drawing of the blood.

Nurses Aid

Each hour two members of the FCC registered nursing program will be present in uniform to aid hospital personnel whenever necessary.

The VFW Post 884, which is cosponsoring the drawing will provide trophies for the club and for the organization with the most members contributing and one to the club or organization with the highest percentage of regular members donating.

Show Gratitude

Primavera commented, "We conceived the idea of doing something for Veterans Day. We came to the conclusion that the best way to show our gratitude was by holding a blood drawing on campus."

"We know it takes some courage to give blood, but we feel the students will make the extra effort for the benefit of veterans in the hospital on this special day."

REGISTRATION WILL SPLIT STUDENTS TO 2 GROUPS

Two methods of registrations will face Fresno City College students for the spring semester.

Larry Martin, counselor, said currently enrolled students will follow one system and new students who have been assigned faculty advisors will follow another.

Martin said the two systems are essentially the same in the first and last phases.

The first step is the admissions office, where the student picks up his routing envelope. Second, the student reports to the counseling center to work out his tentative schedule with his counselor. And this is where the difference begins.

Instead of reporting to the counseling center, the student who has been assigned a faculty advisor will report to the instructor.

Thereafter the procedures remain the same.

In January, the student will report to the auditorium to have class cards pulled.

In February, students will pay their student body fee and file their registration books.

Program adjustments will be made during the first week of the spring semester only, Martin said.

Counseling for regular students will begin Monday. For students assigned to a faculty advisor, pre-registration will begin in December.

The counseling center is located in room 118 of the administration building. Students with faculty advisors should report to their respective faculty member.

Apprentices Will Get Certificates

Apprentices will receive their certificates of completion tomorrow at a 7 PM ceremony in the Del Webb TowneHouse.

A total of 117 will officially receive journeyman status at the 18th annual program during which Jacob Gold, a safety engineer with the United States Department of Labor in Washington, D.C., will deliver the keynote address.

Chairman

Mack O. Keister of the Auto Mechanics Lodge 1309 is chairman of the apprenticeship council, which combines courses on the FCC campus with on the job training.

Those completing apprenticeship are

Bricklayer — Gilman Hodge.
Carpenters — Kenneth W. Cumble, Enell O. Kenner and Phillip Conklin.
Carpet and linoleum fitters — Paul K. Strik and Russ Nicholson.
Cooks — Kenneth Alison, Jim Askew, Flossie Garvin, Pete R. Gonzales and Albert Williams.
Ironworkers — M. V. Anhorn, Donald Babb, William F. May, D. G. Medford and George L. Sandoval.
Machinists — Zenon Dominguez and Herman L. Hamilton.

'LIFELINE' DRIVE GIVES MEANING TO SPIRIT

Several of the members of student council appear to be the driving forces behind the biggest project ever to hit the campus, Operation Lifeline.

The Rampage would like to applaud the efforts of these students who are willing to devote time and energy to an excellent humanitarian cause — helping the less fortunate.

Too often school participation and spirit evolves into nothing more than a petty hassle over which club or organization can collect the most trophies or articles of commendation.

Working for a common goal creates the opportunity for cooperation among factions which normally would be competing against each other.

Project Lifeline immediately emphasizes the fact that the situation in Viet Nam is much more than just a verbal political disagreement. There is a full-fledged war going on!

This project is the largest charitable effort that has ever been attempted by any school or other agency. It involves not only the total student body, but the entire community as well.

In such a large scale operation all factions must work together in order to achieve ultimate success.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM POSES ELECTION CONTROVERSY

Students will soon be voting on a proposed judicial amendment to the student body constitution which will allow a student court at Fresno City College.

The amendment was sponsored by last semester's council, who recommended that the present council take action on it.

Council is scheduled to act on the amendment Tuesday and it will probably come before the students in a general election within three to four weeks.

The amendment could provide the important "missing link" in the checks and balance system at FCC.

Under the proposed court, justices, who will be appointed by the student body president, will have the power to review legislation passed by the council and, if necessary, declare it unconstitutional.

Further, a student may bring a case to this court for a ruling if he feels it is important.

However, there are other factors which should be considered before voting on this amendment.

Firstly, the court might just provide another social organization such as our present student council. Most members of the council have spent much debate over matter which are totally unrelated to student activities, except in regard to the social impact council members will make. For example, in a recent meeting, no less than one third of the debate was centered around the "official dress of the student council."

Secondly, once the judges are appointed, they can only be removed by impeachment or resignation. In this way, the decisions of the justices cannot be influenced by political pressure — only social pressure.

But in the same breath, it must be remembered that the selection of the justices has probably been given much careful consideration. If necessary, it would be possible to name first justices — the five most socially prominent members of council.

True, the student could add significantly to the government of FCC, but the thinking student should consider other factors in deciding his vote.

LITTER PROBLEM SHOWS LITTLE RESPONSIBILITY

The California state education laws require that anyone under the age of sixteen years go to school; enrollment in a college is required only of those who wish to assume the responsibility for themselves.

Walking across the campus, however, it is difficult to get the impression that the Fresno City College students have reached the height of responsibility.

During the day, a glance at any of the lawns reveals numerous students lounging on the grass, eating their lunches, snacks, sleeping, and some are even studying.

On the surface this seems perfectly all right since there is no student lounge, and talking and eating are not permitted in the library.

The problem presents itself when the students leave the lawn. The places they occupied are clearly outlined by the debris left behind.

The students who are littering the campus seem to not recognize the fact that their actions are giving the whole student body a sloppy reputation.

There are plenty of trash cans around campus, and they are placed so that it would not be much out of anyone's way to go by one on the way to class.

A little bit of responsibility shown on the part of the students in this issue would help to give a better impression of the school as a whole.

Student Raps Parking Critics

Editor of the Rampage; Sir,

It would appear that the agency or agencies involved in the current program of parking regulations for scooters must be either hungry for money obtained by tickets issued for violations, supplementing some desire arising from emotional disturbances, or trying to make themselves known.

It seems a shame when a few lines are printed in the student bulletin concerning scooter parking, and ten minutes later citations are issued.

Being a new student, I was not aware of rules regarding the parking of scooters in specified areas. On Monday I was passing in the hall and saw a bulletin on the wall. This was the first time I had known about a student bulletin. It has never been read in any of my classes. I went to the office of Dean of Special Services to obtain information. There I was treated politely but coldly and obtained a vague idea of where to park my scooter.

This student is not complaining about the regulations, only the methods by which it was enthusiastically reported to the possible violators.

In conclusion, I would like to add that the regulation has become well known among scooter riders and this student wishes to thank the person or persons responsible for enlightening the students about our present regulation regarding parking.

Swami Calls Editor's Plans

Editor of the Rampage; Sir,

In the past, and now, some student government personnel have criticized the policies of the newspaper and vice versa.

I have tried to understand both views because I believe each side is entitled to its own opinion(s). Also I believe that both parties have good reasons for their policies (no matter how strange they may seem).

It has, however, been brought to my attention that certain editors have rather strange manners in the way they choose policies. I understand (from an eyewitness report) that the editors consult a Swami, located between Madera and Chowchilla, before they make policies. How about it; is that how editors decide on their policies???

Curious

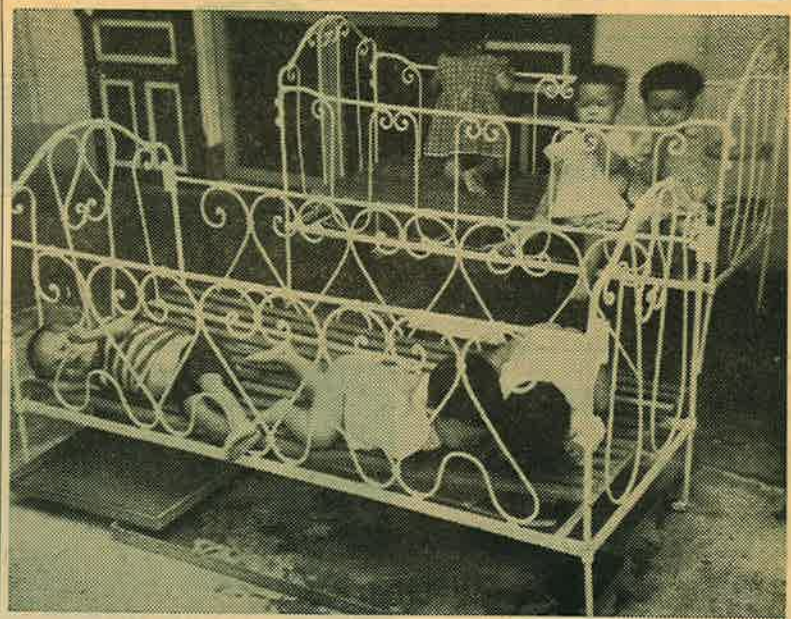

Swami says that is true — Editors.

The Rampage welcomes and will print letters submitted by students. All letters to the editors will be printed as space permits. Letter should bear the written signature of the author with student body card number. It is not necessary for the writer's name to be printed if he so desires.

All letters must be submitted to the Rampage office by Monday afternoon before the Thursday publication of the paper.

SIX IN ONE—Six Viet Nameese children lay on the mattress-less planks of cribs intended for one in the Da Nang orphanage. Fresno City College students are sponsoring a drive to raise clothing and other necessary materials for the needy children.

Viet Nam Tales Lead To Operation Lifeline

By SANDRA McCLURG
Rampage Staff Writer

It all started when Joseph Barela, president of the FCC Latin American Club, started describing his experiences in Viet Nam.

The one thing that remained in everyone's thoughts even after the discussion was over was the touching story of the Viet Nameese war orphans.

In 1962, a Capt. Sullivan, who was then serving in South Viet Nam, started organizing an orphanage for the children deprived of parents because of war. The orphanage is located in Da Nang, 300 north of Saigon.

Chaplain John Shea, serving as a captain in Viet Nam, continued the project with funds from a few churches in the United States and help from willing airmen. They worked on their days off in order to build the main structure and set up sanitary conditions. They built drying sheds, showers, wells and many things these children never thought existed.

In 1963, Father Shea took over the directorship, still relying on private donations.

War Orphans

The Da Nang orphanage is interdenominational. It cares for homeless and parentless children as well as war orphans. "They're welcome from the day they're born until the time they can fare for themselves," said Barela. "A few of the older ones prefer to stay on and help Father Shea with the other children."

Some are blind, some are crippled and most suffer from malnutrition.

About this time students started asking themselves what could be done and how.

Blood Drawing

Now the orphanage drive is in full swing. It is being held in coordination with the Blood Drawing.

Ron Primavera, cochairman of the orphanage drive and chairman of the blood drawing says, "We decided to start the drive the day of the blood bank drawing in order that Veterans Day be anything but forgotten on our campus. If you can't give blood, you can donate something to Father Shea's orphanage in Da Nang."

Canned Goods

Co-chairman John Vlahakis reminded students that canned goods, baby food, and clothing of any sort will be appreciated. Students are urged to bring what they can November 10th or any day after. They should take it to the council room in the student center.

Barela, who is advising the operation, comments, "I'd like to see this project grow into something very large. Father Shea deserves our help and those children truly need it."

Council Gets 3 New Members

Three new members were added to the student council at the Tuesday meeting. Two seats are still vacant with the middle of the semester drawing near.

Appointed are Jeffrey Lewis, who will serve as commissioner of athletics, Tina Gyer, commissioner of welfare and Ronald Brumley a representative at large.

Members Resign

The three were appointed after resignations were extended by several of the old council members. Joe Golden, a representative and Raymond Duarte, former commissioner of athletics, resigned because of work.

Commissioner of elections Wayne Martin dropped school and representative Ted Smith resigned because of his studies.

Applicants for council must maintain a 2.0 grade average during the semester and carry at least 10 units. Application blanks are available in room 229 of the student center.

Posts Open

Yet to be appointed for the fall council are one representative and the commissioner of athletics. Students interested in becoming council members are invited to attend the noon meetings.

Council meetings are held on Tuesday at noon in the new student government chambers. All meetings are open to student participation.

Nursing Director Attends Conclave

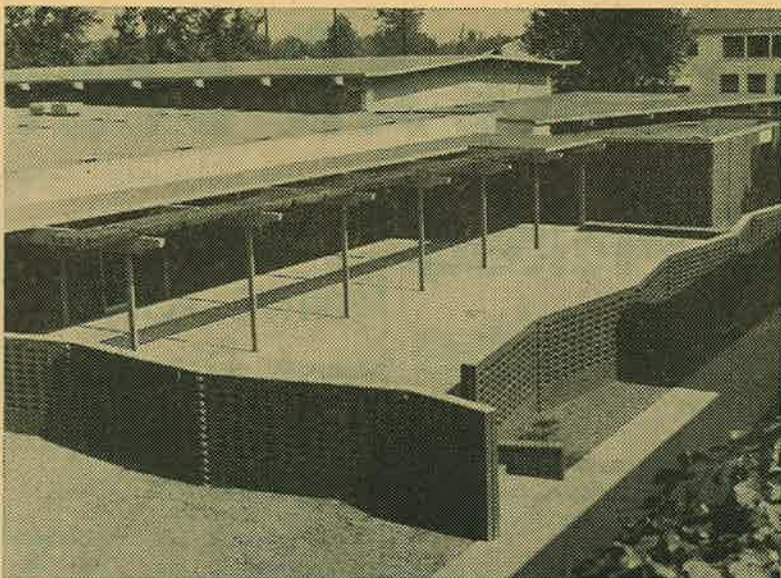

The Director of Nursing Education for Fresno City College will attend a two day session of the Western Council of Higher Education in Nursing in Phoenix this week.

Mrs. Mabelclaire Norman will represent the FCC registered nursing program at the WCHEN fall conclave to be held October 28-29. The group meets twice a year.

Some 75 directors of nursing, together with selected nursing instructors, will attend. WCHEN is composed of college schools of nursing in the 13 western states.

FRONT AND REAR—The new FCC cafeteria (front view on left) was inspected last week by the Board of Trustees. The outcome of their inspection has not yet been announced, but their approval must be given before the work can proceed to complete this addition to the campus. After as much of the building as has thus far been completed has been approved, all that remains to be done is to install some fixtures and put in the furnishings. The cafeteria will probably open for service late in December or near the first part of January. The patio area (above, right) of the new cafeteria, as seen from an aerial viewpoint, will provide a secluded, yet open-air place to enjoy the food prepared in the modern kitchen. If the opening date for the cafeteria is not postponed again, within a couple of months FCC students will not be quite so crowded when trying to get a meal at school.

Dean: Rates Outside Aid

able to train our kids for the kind of jobs the employers will be able to offer after school," said Curtis E. Lackey.

With the college since 1950, Lackey is associate dean of the T and I Division, over 1500 strong.

The T and I advisory committees range from a nine man carpentry group to a single man who heads the wood, wire, and metal lathers committee.

The average group has seven members.

Lackey said that the committees allow the school to project ahead in its training programs. "They are able to tell us what we will need in five or six years," he said.

He also pointed out that in working closely with the local groups the school is able to guarantee employment for 90 to 100 percent of the students who complete two years training at FCC.

T and I advisory committees are made up of both management and labor people for the best overall results, Lackey said.

The committees are composed of about half labor, and half management. They meet at least once a month.

AMS Plans For Formal; AWS Installs Officers

Associated Men Students.
Plans and discussions for the Christmas Formal will be presented at the next AMS meeting. All male students on campus are members. In order to be considered active he must attend three consecutive meetings.

At the moment the main project, according to member Al Fox, is Operation Lifeline. That includes both the orphanage drive and blood bank drawing.

Fall officers include President David Turner, Vice President Forrest Weibert, Treasurer Ron Primavera, Secretary Karl Church, Sergeant at Arms Jack Martin and ICC representative Ted Smith.

Associated Women Students
An Installation banquet is scheduled for November in the committee room in the cafeteria. The new officers will be installed and presented with the pins of their office.

The officers are President Barbara Ehrenburg, Vice President Marihelen Thomas, Treasurer Diane Heller and Juanita Clark, ICC representative.

All women students are invited to the banquet. There will be programmed entertainment and plans for the Christmas Formal will be discussed.

The dinner will be free. Only a refundable 25 cent reservation fee will be charged.

Latin American Club
The Latin American Club is primarily a social, cultural and service club. Anyone interested in Latin American relations or culture is welcome.

The newly elected fall officers are Joseph Barela, president David Cortez, Treasurer David Pacheco, Sergeant at Arms Robert Franco. Cortez is also ICC representative.

An inter-club party is tentatively scheduled for Friday, Nov. 13. The purpose is to acquaint new and old members.

Operation Lifeline is now their largest project.

Drama
FCC's drama department will be presenting the stage play "Ah Wilderness!" sometime in December. It was stated that membership is now closed, but new members will be welcome at the beginning of the spring semester.

Present officers are President William Peterson, Vice President Francis Sullivan, Secretary-Treasurer Marcia Williams and ICC representative Christy Peterson.

Rally Club
Students interested in campus activities are urged to join the Rally Club and help support FCC in its sports activities. Anyone interested is invited to attend the meetings Monday at noon in the back room of the cafeteria.

"Rooters' buses for the American River game in Sacramento are filled to capacity," stated Commissioner of Rally, Donald Owens.

A bus transporting rooters will be available for those who wish to attend the Stockton game in November.

Owens urges students attending games to root more and refrain from throwing paper airplanes. He said, "Confetti throwing is alright, but it becomes dangerous when paper airplanes start flying."

Marketing Club
The Marketing Club is now conducting a membership drive which will end tomorrow. Students interested in joining should contact any member of the club for information. All members must work a minimum of 15 hours a week, and most members are majoring in marketing in the field of distribution.

The club is sponsoring an employee-employer breakfast for the merchandising classes.

Officers are President Joel Popejoy, Vice Presidents Darrell Stotts and Kay Niiori, Secretary Marlene Allen, Treasurer John Wintemute. In charge of social affairs is Diane Heller, and the ICC Representative is Larry Krum. Club advisors are Dr. Gilbert Peart and Leneve Leatham.

Bowling League
The FCC bowling league meets every Thursday at 4 PM at Mid-State Bowl. Now in its second semester, the league is made up of members of various clubs and individual students who wish to participate.

At present there are 8 men's teams and 2 women's teams. They are AMS No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, Rally Club, Latin American, Pin-spotters, Surfriders, Loafers, PHI Beta Lambda No. 1 and No. 2.

League chairman Ron Primavera stated, "Every team is complete for this semester, but anyone interested should get four members together by the spring semester. New teams will form then."

— Mid Terms —

The Fall semester midterm examinations for the Fresno City College student body will begin on Monday, Nov. 2 and continue through Friday, Nov. 6.

Rams Roll Past Pirates, Engen Star

By DAVID PACHECO
Rampage Columnist

Saturday night FCC's footballers steamrolled over Modesto's Pirates.

Fresno was led by the heroics of Danny Robinson, Lincoln Marine, Ken Long, Larry Cormier, Fred Figueroa, Larry Willis, John Branson, and Bert Gugiere to crush the Bucs.

The Rams roared to a 24-0 lead at halftime. Thereafter Slaughter called in his second and third units for duty in the second half. The score would have reached astronomical proportions if the entire first string played out the game against the out-classed Pirates.

Robinson, FCC's brilliant passer, notched his ninth TD toss in the rout. Marini and Cormier led the Ram pass corps with two catches, and Ken Long and Figueroa led the rushers.

On defense, Marini and Bert Gugiere, being groomed for a possible shot as junior college All-American led the Suicide Squad to an impressive effort. Also, FCC's alert secondary the "Fearsome Foursome" nabbed three interceptions.

Crystal Ball Gazers

Statistician Jim "Stats" Anderson hit it right on the nose last Saturday night picking Fresno by 14!

"Stats" maybe had a little bit of luck working for him as the half time score indicated that a computer would have to be used to count the score.

Sports Editor Don Mencarini and this columnist will return to the crystal ball gazing wars to challenge "Stats" and his mathematics and predict the outcome of this week's game.

Cross Country

Coach Edwin Ginsburg's FCC cross country squad kept its unblemished Valley Conference record alive with a 20-43 victory over Sacramento City College last Friday afternoon on the three-mile Millerton course.

Ginsburg's tracksters will host the Delta College of Stockton Friday afternoon at 4 PM at the Millerton course in another Valley Conference dual clash.

Sacramento's Panther ace Terry Record preserved his unbeaten string in dual meets as he took first place in 16:59 time.

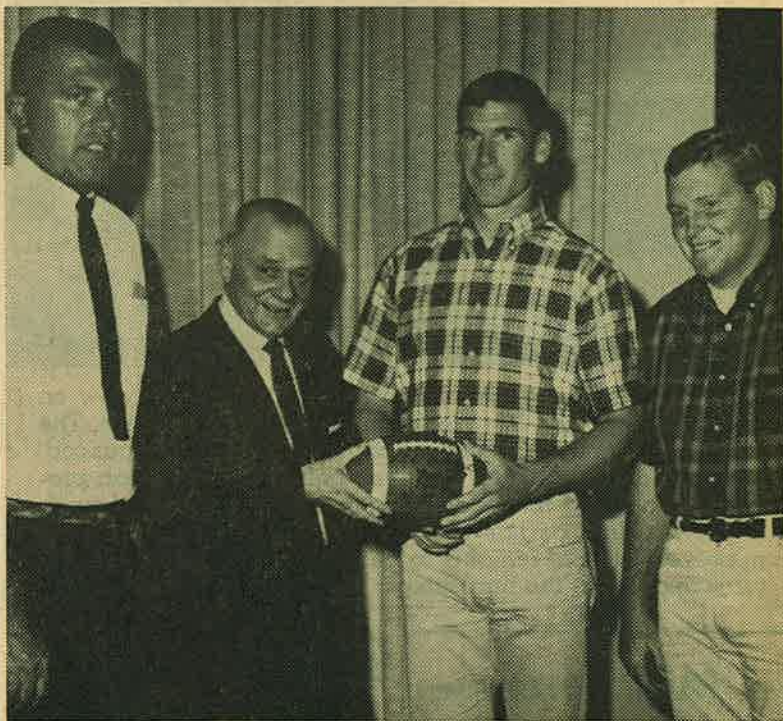

Bob Van Ingen, only three seconds off the school record, placed second behind Record with a 17:13 time.

Ron Smith and Steve Garcia, placed third and fourth, respectively.

Other Ram scorers included, Rich Torers (5th) and Fred Ramirez (6th).

Water Polo

Coach Gene Stephens' water polo squad, 3-7 in Valley Conference competition, will be idle this week. Last week the aqua men scrimmaged Sanger High School. The Rams toppled the Apaches 17-6.

Predictors Are Tried By 'Great Pumpkin'

By JOE ARMAS
Rampage Sports Writer

Today we will take a trip to the never-never land and visit the "Great Pumpkin." A banquet is now in progress so let's listen in.

"... We salute these three beings for their raw courage, intestinal fortitude and undying stamina." That is the great pumpkin talking. "And here they are, the men who brave the ever constant danger in the world of odds."

Wonder Boy

"Don Mencarini, wonder boy sports editor, will you please stand up. Several weeks ago Don, you foretold a 22 point win spread for FCC."

"Impossible!" shouted a ghoul from the audience.

"But he did it. Didn't you Don?"

"Amazing," gasped the goblins. The audience applauded him. Don isn't bashful.

Stats

"And now we have Jim (Stats) Anderson. This mathematical wizard predicted we would beat MJC by 16 points.

"Never!" shouted some of the trolls who were sitting in the back of the room.

But FCC beat MJC by 16 points and Jim saw it all. Jim blushed and kicked at the ground. Jim is bashful.

Again bewilderment and disbelief swept the ghouls and the trolls.

Pacheco

"Dave Pacheco, will you please stand up now. Dave has not accurately hit a winner. But he's been sick. Perhaps next week. "You may sit down Dave."

A ghoul raised his paws and then said, "But isn't it true that even though one was right the other two have been off by as much as 14 points. And don't forget that there are three people making these predictions. The law of averages will always give at least one an easy chance to guess the score."

"Boo! Boo!" someone shouted.

"No wait," said Dave Pacheco who had remained standing. But the ghouls and the goblins and trolls would not wait. And they started stoning our fearless prophets. Even the "great pumpkin" was forced to flee.

Before we leave our crystal ball gazers in never-never land, let us not quickly forget the moral of this sad misadventure.
