Segal drops presidency, succeeded by Sue Martin

ASB President Steve Segal has resigned after one semester. Segal, who was elected last spring to serve for 1977-78, has left Fresno City College to join the Air Force Training Program at Fresno State University.

Douglas Peterson, dean of men, said Segal does not enter the Air Force reserve until fall, but must attend FSU during the spring semester to prepare.

Taking Segal's place will be Sue Martin, who was executive vice president last semester.

Student aid funds still available

Funds are still available for student aid during the spring semester, according to Director of Financial Aids and Placement Donald E. Watson.

Monies are still available in the College Work Study program, Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant program and Educational Opportunity Grant program.

Students also are reminded that March 15 is the preliminary deadline for fall semester financial aid programs.

Persons interested in applying for financial aid should contact the Financial Aids Office in the Student Services Building. Office hours are normally 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Those interested in spring semester aid should contact the office as soon as possible.

'Out of Blue' reflects ELO's consistent best

By Ken Enloe

Well, here I sit. Headphones on, playing ELO's new double release, "Out of the Blue." I know I'm supposed to say good things about it, but it's hard to say something good that hasn't already been said about the album, or the group!

Of course, you can say something about Jeff Lynne's writing, or the group's excellent blend of the classical sounds of strings and the modern, electronic music, but it would be the same thing reviewers from Rolling Stone to Good Housekeeping have said about every album ELO has released so far. Don't get me wrong, they are, without a doubt, the most imaginative group around! Well,

Because this is a double album, I'm not going to hit on each cut, but rather just touch on the strongest points (wish me luck!) of the album.

"Turn To Stone," which you have probably heard on the radio, is a good example of how the rest of the album shapes up. The always-fine background strings, plus good synthesizer work, help this one hang in there with some of their best works.

Their violin work is also well displayed on such cuts as "It's Over," "Sweet Talkin' Woman," "Starlight," "Sweet is the Night," and "Birmingham Blues."

For those of you who are familiar with the quality that ELO is known for, this album is a must! For those of you who are not familiar with their music, this album is a good way to find out what you have been missing. There isn't much more to say about it!

Classes in Solar Energy

The use of solar energy as an efficient means of relieving the energy shortage has been a topic of much recent debate and discussion and will be the subject of a course at City College.

The class, "Solar Energy," will be held Wednesday evenings from 7-9:50 p.m. beginning Feb. 22. Two units of credit are offered.

Both the values and the limitations of solar energy will be explored in the course. The course is intended to enable students to understand principles of solar utilization and to intelligently evaluate various solar devices.

Energy terminology, solar rights, legislation, insulation, costs and solar economics will be covered in the course work.

The course is one of several accelerated semester courses to be offered beginning in February.

Ram Report

Future looks good for cagers, matmen

By Dave Coulson

Anyone who has ever participated in organized sports knows it is more fun to win than to lose.

Both the Ram basketball and wrestling squads experienced plenty of the thrill of victory during the semester break, but each took different roads toward athletic happiness.

For the wrestling team, winning is more of a habit than a vice. And the perennial Valley Conference champs haven't found any competition able to break that habit.

The Ram wrestlers sit on top of the conference mountain with a record of 5-0. If the team continues its dominance of the conference, it will be the 10th championship for the Rams in the last 14 years.

Bob Grimes in particular has been outstanding in his 177 lb. weight class. Grimes, in top form, took first place in the DeAnza Classic last weekend. Marlin Royal came in second in the 150 lb. class.

On the other hand, the basketball team is just discovering how sweet winning is. Oddly enough, the script was different a month ago.

Things changed against Porterville on Dec. 23, when it looked like the Rams would go down to their ninth loss in 11 games.

Steve Groth didn't agree, and his steal turned a defeat into a victory. The Rams must have liked how the winning feeling as they have now won seven out of their last eight games.

Included in that streak was a victory over Modesto that gave the Rams the consolation title in the Hancock Basketball Tournament.

The Rams are now preparing for their first place showdown against Delta Saturday night in the FCC gym. The Rams are now 3-0 in conference and 9-9 overall.

"That win against Porterville was the first time we won a close game," stated coach Chuck Stark. "We had the talent to win all along, we just needed confidence."

Confidence, talent, fun or for whatever other reason, FCC is fortunate to be represented by two teams that are winners.

Don't be cheated

What is a Christian?

A person is not a Christian because he adheres to a particular code of ethics. Neither is one a Christian merely because he acknowledges the existence of God and Jesus Christ.

Rather, a Christian is a person who has been joined in a vital, living union with Jesus Christ himself. You may ask, how can this be? How can a human being like me be joined in such a union with the very God?

It is written, "But he that is joined into the Lord is one spirit" (I COR 6:17) and "... that which is born of the spirit is spirit" (John 3:6B). These verses show us that the way we can be joined to the Lord is by being born of God's spirit in our spirit. Even the Lord Jesus said, "Do not marvel that I said to you, you must be born anew." This new birth is effected in simple faith by asking Jesus Christ to come into us. So it is, in this new birth, that God, in the person of Jesus Christ, enters into us to be our life. We as men can be indwelt by Christ himself.

Thus, a real Christian is a Christ-man, a man indwelt and mingled with the very Christ of God. God is calling man today to receive Christ for the fulfillment of his eternal purpose.

We challenge you to respond to this call. If you have any questions or comments come to:

Resurgent Rams, unbeaten in V C, face ARC, Delta

Though the Ram basketball machine sputtered against Modesto, it didn't stall, and FCC rolled to a 68-64 Valley Conference win Saturday night at home.

The Rams, now 3-0 in conference play, will put their first place record on the line in a pair of games over the weekend.

They travel to Sacramento to face American River tomorrow and play host to Delta in a first place showdown on Saturday.

"This was an important game for us to win," commented coach Chuck Stark. "It's been so long since we played on our home court, I was afraid we might be flat."

In the first 10 minutes of the first half the Rams were just that. But a change of tempo got the Rams rolling.

"We were slowing ourselves down by using a zone defense," stated Stark. "We had to go man-to-man to pick up the tempo."

With the Rams playing run and gun, they rallied to take a 30-29 halftime lead. FCC also was successful running a four-corner offense in the late stages of both halves.

Danny Adams, Woody York, Greg Purvis and Kevin Manley kept the Rams in the game with their long jumpers. The second half saw John Meyer and Ron Chatman take control of the boards for the Rams, but the Pirates wouldn't give up.

Meyer was the game's leading scorer with 21 points, most of them coming down the stretch. The playmaking of York and the hustling of Steve Groth also were important.

The Rams went up by six points with 57 seconds to play on a York pass and a Groth layup. But Modesto came back to score two points on a jumper and two more on a steal and layup.

With 19 seconds left the Rams held a 66-64 lead. The Pirates put on full-court pressure but York broke the press with a pass to Meyer, who was standing all alone for a layup.

The Pirates dropped to 0-4 in conference play but Stark was still impressed with them. "They aren't a last-place team. They will have to be reckoned with before the season is over."

Modesto has lost the four games by a total of 10 points.

Stark feels that this weekend will be the Rams' toughest all season.

"If we can earn a split this weekend we'll be in great shape," he said. Saturday's game in the FCC Gym will start at 7:30.

Wrestlers can win title with win Tuesday at COS

The Ram wrestling team rolled to their 13th straight home victory and tuned up for an important match by dropping Delta 34-14 Tuesday night in the Gym.

FCC, now 5-0 in conference play, can just about wrap up their 10th conference title in 14 years if they can beat COS in Visalia next Tuesday.

The last time that the Rams lost at home was during the 1975-76 season. The Rams are 10-3 for the season.

Coach Bill Musick was impressed by several of his wrestlers. "Delta isn't the strongest team around but we still wrestled well."

Musick added, "Tom Blanco did a good job considering it was his first match. John Diaz and Bob Grimes also wrestled well."

Blanco won 13-3 in the 118 lb. class while Diaz, the heavy-weight, won 5-1 and Grimes continued to wrestle in top form by pinning his opponent in the 177 lb. class.

The evening's most exciting match saw 167 lb. Don Johnston start off sluggishly and finish strongly. Johnston was down 6-1 going into the final period before coming back to win 8-7 on riding time.

Johnston ran his season record to 23-1 in spite of not being 100 per cent physically.

Musick said of the wrestler's performance "Don had a bad cold but he was determined to win anyway."

Coach Musick feels that the COS match will be a good tune up for the Rams before post-season play. "It should be a tough match and I think it will fire us up."

NEWS BRIEFS

Program scheduled Tuesday- 'Popular Myths About Rape'

"Popular Myths About Rape" will be the discussion topic in a Tuesday presentation featuring instructor Joan Newcomb. The film "Rape: A Preventive Inquiry" will be shown. The presentation will be from 12 to 2 p.m. in SS-202.

'Ikiru' to be shown

"Ikiru," a Japanese film dealing with the struggle of life against death, will be shown here Friday.

This is the story of a man who learns that he has only six months to live and how he spends his last few months.

The movie will be presented in Forum A at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $1, but FCC students with student body cards will be admitted free.

Rotary seeks candidates

The Rotary Club of North Fresno seeks candidates for Rotary Foundation educational awards, to study abroad in 1979-80.

Part of the Rotary Clubs' effort to further understanding and friendly relations among people of different nations, the program offers a unique study opportunity.

The educational awards include round-trip transportation, educational and living expenses for one academic year, as well as any necessary funds for intensive language training. Applications are welcomed from graduate and undergraduate students, teachers of the handicapped, technical students and journalists.

FSU deadline

The deadline for transfer students to apply for financial aid for the academic year 1978-79 at Fresno State is March 1.

If you need any information or assistance in applying for financial aid, contact the Educational Opportunity Center representative, Stella Moya, in the Student Services Center.

Persons trained in the area of divorce problems will be on hand to give professional advice on the various aspects of divorce. Free lectures will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall.

The series is co-sponsored by the Office of Community Services and the ADAPT program of Fresno.

Television Classes

Two classes will be offered by television during the spring semester and prospective students should register now.

"The Age of Uncertainty" and "The Growing Years" will be aired on local stations in the mornings and evenings on selected days.

Two units of credit are available for either class.

Saturday courses

Persons not able to attend weekday classes may be interested in the more than 20 courses offered at the college on Saturdays during the spring semester.

Classes offer from one-half to three units of credit and most are held in the morning. Interested persons can register for these classes on Jan. 21 from 9 a.m. to noon on campus.

Divorce will be discussed

Do you need aid in adjusting to the problems of divorce? If so, why not attend the ADAPT lecture series at FCC beginning Jan. 24 and continuing for four consecutive Tuesday evenings?

Terri Thacker— "I really hadn't thought about it. It's only my second day. I'd like to, though."

Eugene Rico— "I'm presently an officer in MECHA, and I'm planning to run for Student Senate. MECHA is planning on running a slate of candidates."

Sandy Plett— "Yes, I'd be more interested in clubs than the campus politics. I'd like to join a ski club, or an ecology group."

Naomi Dennis— "I don't know. This is my second day and I really don't know what's going on. I'm planning on getting involved later."

Student involvement?

As members of the student body, whether ASB or not, we all have come to this campus for an education to better our position in life. Why, we suppose, do we not merely relinquish our minds to the higher joys of seeking the answers to the Universe, and forget the lesser trivialities that surround us, even though they occur each moment?

To put it simply, why don't we all just sit back in our seats in Philosophy, Math, or Biology and settle down to a nice, long semester of studying? Shouldn't we just look at our texts, and accept that the world will turn with or without us?

Do you agree? Yes?

Then you are a fool who deserves no sympathy when your time comes.

Certainly, college is for learning, and that should be our primary objective during our stay, but the harsh reality is that too many people consider this the only objective and lose any semblance of true education.

A college is a gathering of individuals. The making of friendships or romances is a common occurrence that has a net result of exposing one to other individuals, thus expanding the awareness of human emotions and relations. Similarly, the involvement of each individual into some facet of the campus gives extraordinary insight into the workings of education, government, and whatever special interest the individual may have.

Turn back a few pages and read the student poll for this week. All those questioned were selected on a random basis, yet there are almost identical responses in each case...all would like to get involved in some way.

Those who feel there is nothing on campus to interest them are the ones who help foster the apathetic feelings toward activities and sustain the decline in attendance and participation in events. If these same persons would find the drive to seek others with the same likes, and try to establish an organization to meet their interests, it would be a start.

If persons who complain about ASB doing nothing, or who don't care, could realize that by failing to do something about it they are only hurting their own education, it would also be a start.

If we could make people understand that this is a time in their life that almost certainly can't be repeated, and that involvement would enhance their educations and possibly the way they live, it would be the best start anyone could make.

When a man lives in a town and says he doesn't care what goes on locally, he only sets himself up for the day...let's say, the fire department goes on strike. By not being aware of the reasons, and thus, by not acting on the reasons, he has no one but himself to blame when his home goes up in smoke.

Involvement on this campus is just as important to each student. By not being aware or involved in the situations around us, we only have ourselves to blame when the bookstore is shut down, or the Board of Trustees forces students to pay $20 for unnecessary insurance, or all students of one specific minority are suspended for the actions of just one person.

You have no one but yourself to make decisions, and as a consequence, you can only blame yourself when you are wrong. But being wrong is part of being human and personality development; a part of learning to be a member of the human race. If you don't take the responsibility of getting involved, then you are really giving up on being a person.

Get involved, whether by being informed or actually participating in activities, and not necessarily on campus alone. The whole world is waiting for people who care enough to make th. quality of life just a little bit better...yet too many of us walk away, concerned as only narrow-minded people can be.

CONCERT REVIEW

Mixed fan reaction on return of 'The Dead'

By Mike Hoffman

Last Sunday the Grateful Dead played to a dedicated crowd at Seland Arena. They had been a long time in returning to Fresno and the crowd gave them an enthusiastic welcome.

The crowd exhibited a camaraderie, a singleness of purpose, that is lost at most other concerts. They were there to hear one band only, a band they had grown up with.

Twelve years ago the Grateful Dead started playing in San Francisco. They gained the reputation for playing a particular form of acid rock after appearing at experimental concerts sponsored by Ken Kesey, who helped make psychedelic drugs popular on the west coast.

Though psychedelics were not in evidence at the concert, there were a myriad of others to choose from. Walking on the floor was a scene from the past. Two people tossed a frisbee across the floor before the concert started.

The longhairs were out in force, wearing the requisite work shirts and jeans or overalls, sat next to small children. Teeny boppers were noticeably absent. Most of the crowd was in their mid-twenties or early thirties. They waited for the concert to start.

After waiting 15 minutes, the crowd began to chant, "The Grateful Dead! The Grateful Dead!". When the performers appeared on stage the crowd erupted in applause. The concert started 20 minutes late.

The band opened with "Bertha." They moved flawlessly into the next number, the last of the easy transitions. For the remainder of the 45 minute first set, the stage blacked out between numbers while guitar players Jerry Garcia and Bob Weir, with occasional help from bass player Phil Lesh, decided what to play next.

The first set consisted of several short numbers, including "Mexicali Blues," "Playing in the Band," and "Must Have Been the Roses." Garcia's vocals were weak. His voice appeared strained and several times faded in the midst of a line. Weir provided strong vocals, especially in "Mexicali Blues." Donna Godchaux, wife of piano player Keith Godchaux, sang backup vocals and a solo of her own during the second set.

The band members worked together with machine-like accuracy. The sounds were well mixed and amplified to a proper level. Vocals could be heard clearly over the instruments. Garcia's penetrating guitar work rewarded every listener. Godchaux provided excellent counterpoint on the piano, though he was occasionally underamplified.

Godchaux played an electric piano. The electric piano lacks the depth and resonance on its acoustic brother, though it is easier to transport. He sounds much better on an acoustic piano.

The band improved during the second set. They displayed the quality that makes a Dead concert unique. A lengthy, melodic, symphonic instrumental followed the recently released song, "Terrapin Station." Throughout the instrumental the performers introduced variations on several motifs, providing an exciting interplay between instruments.

Not everybody enjoyed this part of the concert. Several people became restless and jeered the band. No doubt they failed to find any connection in the notes and longed to hear the more familiar songs. The band ended the evening with "Sugar Magnolia."

They did not return for an encore.

Course in music careers offered

A course in songwriting and a course in possible careers in music will be offered this semester.

The songwriting course, two units, will be held Tuesdays from 4:30 to 6:20 p.m. The class will deal with the art of songwriting through analysis, evaluation, discussion and demonstration.

Composition techniques, composition practices, lyric writing and the business of selling songs will be covered in the class. Kenneth Wayne Carlton will instruct.

The study of possible careers in music will be examined in another class. "Music Careers" is the title and also an apt description of the subject matter. The two-unit course will be held Mondays from 4:30 to 6:20 p.m.

Careers in broadcasting, recording, film, journalism, publicity, performance, composing and arranging, manufacturing, merchandising, and education will be part of the course material.
