Teachers approve board's 'final' offer; trustee ratification expected Tuesday

Chief negotiator Rudy Kne confers with instructors committee Chairman Harold Sadler at last weeks meeting.

by Julie Benitez
Opinion Editor

Ratification was left up to the district when, last week, instructors voted to accept the proposed employment contract. The district board of trustees called for a special meeting to be held Tuesday in hopes of settling negotiations.

"If by some chance the district doesn't ratify the contract, the instructors will certainly strike" said Rudy Kne, chief negotiator for the teachers federation.

"However, there is almost no chance of that happening since we were all in agreement on the contract language."

He went on to say that although no contract is ever completely satisfactory, "this is a definite improvement over their last contract."

All this went on at a meeting held by the State Center Federation of Teachers last Thursday. The first part of the meeting was used for instructors to voice their feelings and to ask questions.

Afterwards there was debate on voting procedures, whether instructors not present had the right to vote, and if so, ways in which this could be accomplished. They decided only people present would vote.

At this point one political science instructor said, "I resent the fact that I have to vote to approve or to disapprove a contract without being told beforehand that that is the reason for calling this meeting in the first place."

Other instructors asked why a copy of the proposed contract wasn't made available to them sooner, in order that they may have had more time for review, but Kne insisted that the reason they chose not to was to keep the district negotiating on key issues.

"But if there is anyone here with the contract in front of you who does not understand it, keep us here all night until you understand the whole thing," he added.

Kne went on to explain the major changes from the previous contract, along with what he felt were the pros and cons, before the instructors were asked to vote.

Although most instructors voted in favor of the contract, there were some who felt they shouldn't have settled for it. When asked if he was pleased with what the instructors had voted for, Harold Sadler, Chairman of the instructors negotiating committee, stated that he couldn't answer that question.

Later he mentioned that he was looking forward to negotiations for next year's contract which should begin in about another month.

Only one senator ousted, not eight-- and he plans to fight ineligible ruling

by Sam Tull
Editor in Chief

Last week it was reported that eight ASB Senators were ousted from the Student Senate because of academic ineligibility.

It has been learned that actually only one current Senator, William Gore, was dismissed because of either failure to carry a required eight units or to maintain a 2.0 or better G.P.A.

Susan Sorensen, ASB President, said Al Canales, Phillip Kennedy, Al Cowings, Genaro Valverde and Marvin Wiggs all dropped out of the Senate last semester after they had missed at least four Senate meetings.

The terms of office for Paula Grigsby and Brett Rodger ended at the beginning of this semester.

In response to last week's Rampage story, ASB Adviser David Dickie stated, "As ASB adviser I am required by the constitution of the Associated Students of FCC to notify any Senate member when he or she becomes ineligible to serve as a Senator. The ASB officers by law do not have access to student records or they would be the ones to notify their fellow members."

In response to a quote by Rodger in the story, Dickie further stated, "I believe that the statement 'this was all planned to get rid of the people they didn't like' was ill-advised and very poorly reported. The only people the word 'they' could refer to is the ASB adviser. The only way there could be any improper action on my part is if I did not inform the Senate of the ineligibility of their members until after an election took place."

When asked his reaction, Gore stated, "As far as I'm concerned I'm still a Senator and will be in the Senate meeting next Tuesday."

Gore said he plans to challenge the validity of the ASB Constitution and by-laws.

"The administration abides by the constitution if it is to their benefit," Gore stated.

"If the constitution is valid, then the rules concerning a 2.0 GPA and eight units for Senators is right. But if the administration keeps manipulating the constitution, then who can say what is legal or not," declared Gore.

"The Associated Students of FCC are the only ones who can legally change the constitution, not the administration."

(Editor's Note: The Rampage does not edit or alter a direct quote attributed to someone in a story. Mr. Dickie's remarks of "ill-advised" and "very poorly reported" are not applicable to the reporter or the newspaper in this case.)

NEWS BRIEFS

Cal Grant deadline nears

Students hoping for a "Cal Grant" to help with the cost of tuition and other college expenses next fall have less than a month remaining to finish their applications and get them in the mail.

The deadline is Feb. 1. Financial aid applications postmarked after that date cannot be considered for new 1979-80 California State undergraduate grants through the Student Aid Commission.

Last year about 7,000 students who applied for aid were disqualified because the commission was unable to determine from their incomplete applications whether they met the state's basic eligibility requirements of financial need and academic ability.

Of 70,145 students who applied for Cal Grants last year, 25,762 received awards ranging from $200 to $3,600 for the 1978-79 academic year.

Cal Grant applications are available from the Financial Aid Office and from the Student Aid Commission, 1410 Fifth St., Sacramento CA 95814.

225-2262 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. for additional information.

Registration

is extended

Registration for part time enrollment and for program changes at Fresno City College has been extended through Friday, Jan. 26.

Students who want to make program changes are reminded that they must obtain instructor permission cards from their teachers if the class is closed. Persons should go to the Admissions and Records Office in the lower level of the Student Services Building. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday.

Students who require further information should call the college at 442-8614.

Insurance plan for students

FCC's Insurance Plan offers a voluntary accident and sickness plan available to all current students.

The insurance provides on and off campus, 24-hour coverage at $58 for the spring semester and up to the beginning of the fall semester. Applications are available at the Health Office, SS-112. The enrollment deadline is Feb. 14.

'Odd Man Out' here Friday

The next film classic will be Carol Reed's "Odd Man Out." The film will be presented Friday, Jan. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in Forum Hall A.

General admission is $1. FCC students with ASB cards will be admitted free.

Evaluation

deadline

Feb. 2 is the last day to apply for a degree evaluation for May graduation. Students who did not receive a degree evaluation during the fall semester must apply for one at the Admissions and Records Office in the Student Services Building.

'Plaza Suite'

tryouts set

Auditions for the Theatre Arts spring production, "Plaza Suite," will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 23 and 24 in the theatre. Auditions for all seven male and female parts are open to any FCC student.

Power outage traps student

by Doug Hamilton
Staff Writer

Little did Sharron K. Heath realize, when she stepped into the elevator at the Business Ed building, that she would spend hours in there.

At 8:54 p.m. last Wednesday, the lights and power in some FCC buildings went out, trapping Heath alone in the elevator.

Heath was finally released from her private cell at 10:50, when the power was returned.

Night classes were dismissed due to the storm-caused power outage, and last week's Rampage was delayed a day.

Tandy Beal will return to FCC Saturday

by Nellie Shutman
Staff Writer

Tandy Beal who, says Los Angeles Times critic Lewis Segal, "may prove the most brilliant young dancer/choreographer working on the West Coast" will appear with Ron Taylor in an evening of dance and theatre Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Theatre.

General admission is $3, and $2 for students. It is the company's third appearance at FCC, where they were well enough received in 1973 and 1976 to be invited back.

Tandy Beal & Co. was recently selected to participate in the 1979-80 touring program of the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) and is currently on an eight-week tour of California, Oregon, Washington, and New York City, where they are scheduled for four performances at the Riverside Dance Festival immediately following the Fresno appearance.

After Beal's solo debut in New York City last July, she was described by New York Times critic Jennifer Dunning as "...a deft performer, a choreographer of taste and intelligence... (with) a sure sense of theatre."

Tandy Beal trained with Alwin Nikolais and Murray Louis, toured in the United States, Europe, North Africa and the Middle East before forming her own company in 1971.

She is on the dance faculties of the University of Utah, the University of California, Santa Cruz, and Cabrillo College. She has been artist-in-residence at colleges and universities throughout the country and she is a Movement Specialist for the NEA's Artists-in-Schools program.

The public is also invited to attend master classes, taught by Beal and Taylor on Jan. 26 at CSUF in WG-134 at 1 p.m. and at FCC in G-101 at 4 p.m.

The classes will be accompanied by Jon Scoville, composer/musician and co-director of the Company. Admission for either class is $2. The classes, are likely to emphasize improvisational dance, according to FCC dance instructor Janice Jansen.

Jansen, who organized the concert, points out the uniqueness of this event: "Since Prop. 13, there is no more money available for performing artists of this caliber. Fund-raising for this started in October, 1978. It is a community-based effort, sponsored by such organizations as the Fresno Musial Club, the Fresno Dance Repertory Association, Jean Woods Realty and the California Arts Council."

A one-time colleague of Beal's at Cabrillo College, Jansen studied under her for six months in 1974, and danced with her at a USF dance workshop for teachers last summer. She describes Beal as having "wit, clarity, and poignancy as a performer. Tandy is mostly interested in the nuances of changes in emotions and feelings. Almost all motivations for the dances she creates are abstract ideas. She investigates the intensities of motion, stage, timing and energy, much as an impressionistic painter is interested in reproducing the vibrations of color and light."

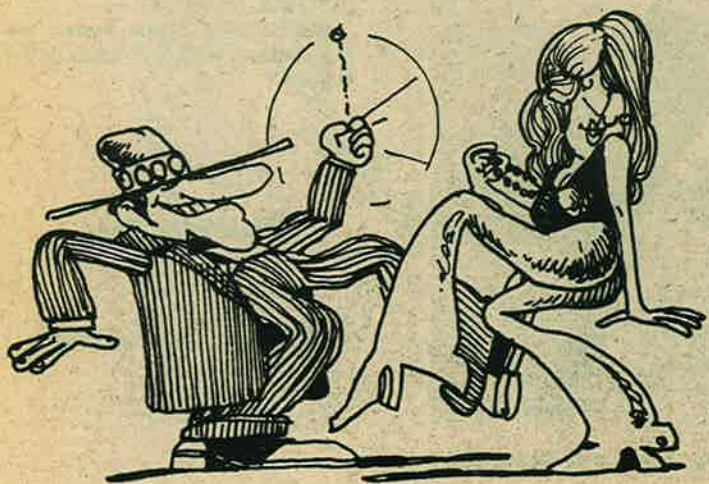

During the past few years, much of Beal's energy has gone into creating group works for her company, which used to consist of seven dancers and two mimes. The post-Prop. 13 decline in funds available for the arts in California has forced her to temporarily reduce the company to Ron Taylor and herself.

"In a way, this gives her a better opportunity to create solos for herself," says Jansen, who admits to looking for silver linings on the dark clouds that hang over the dance world.

Ballclub could be strong though green

"We like to think we have a chance at the Valley Conference title again this year, but you just can't tell. Everybody starts out at 0-0." So states Ram baseball coach Len Bourdet as he looks forward to his 22nd season commanding the team.

Bourdet and his coaching staff, Dick Selma and Fred Bartels, have a lot of work ahead to get the Rams, who lost eight of the nine starters from last year's championship team, ready for this season, which opens Feb. 9 at the FCC Tournament.

The Rams will be counting heavily on Randy Ward, the only returning starter. The sophomore right fielder figures to be the foundation for the 1979 season, hoping to better his outstanding performance of last year, when he swung for eight homers and a school-record 43 runs-batted-in.

Along with Ward, other power hitters include three All-City stars: third baseman Pete Delana from Memorial, shortstop Mike Hansen from McLane, and outfielder Nick Papagni from Bullard, as well as All-NYL left fielder Jim Ferguson of Madera, catcher Tom Cook, also from Madera, and Pedro Saldana, an ex-Marine out of Oregon.

Bourdet's rebuilding task will also be lightened by a new crop of pitchers moving up from the high school leagues. Most notable of the newcomers is Phil Flanigan, 1978 All-City Pitcher of the Year from Bullard, but there is also new talent and ability in Hoover's Steve Wilcox and Steve Ellsworth, another Bullard product. Returning pitcher Rory Sandoval will also be adding his left-handed strength to the mound.

Other returnees who will figure heavily in the starting lineup are second baseman Walt Robinson, third baseman John Troxell, and outfielders Steve Groth and Kevin Hirayama.

The Rams' 1979 schedule starts off with the FCC Tournament Feb. 9-10. Other teams participating in the event are COS, Merced, Bakersfield, San Mateo, and Laney of Oakland.

Making it look easy against Reedley-- hard work pays off for Ram quintets

by Mike McCormick
Staff Writer

Sitting in the stands and watching the FCC Rams basketball squads (men and women) dominate such opponents as the Reedley Tigers, one seldom thinks about what has been going on to reach this point.

In the FCC gymnasium on a practice day the voice of Coach Chuck Stark echoes through the gym: "Today, I'm going to run your little tails off."

Sweat-breaking practices — stretching, scrimmages, and leg-tightening court-long sprints — are what caused the Rams to go floating past the Tigers with an impressive score of 108-65.

Led by Ron Chatman's 21 points and 10 rebounds and Ricky Ryan's 18 points, the Rams had a lead of 52-31 at the half. They more than doubled it to give them a run-away victory.

It was the same story with the women, who out-rebounded and out-classed the Tigers in a 65-25 win. They were led by returning Sarah Pinson, who sank 20 points, and Carrie Johans with 10. Mary Lou Jones put six on the board. The win has given the women an 11-5 mark for the season, 2-2 in league play.

The men are 11-9 for the season and 2-3 in the Valley Conference, "and the losses are by two points or less," adds Coach Stark.

After weekend losses to Delta, the FCC teams took on COS last night in Visalia and on Saturday the Rams will take on Sacramento at "City."

Stark feels that "we definitely have the potential and the talent if we can get the mental errors straightened out."

"The women's team is lacking in self confidence, whereas the men seem to have too much," said Stark. They also have been hurt by a poor free throw average, Coach Stark feels. This was especially evident against Delta where the men lost 89-85 to four free throws in final second of the game.

Five men for the Rams sank shots for double figures: Rick Ryan, 16; Ron Chatman, 15; John Langston, 13; Craig Cleveland, 13; and Keith Postler, 12.

The women were also defeated by Delta, 62-49.

Still, Coach Stark feels, "we can contend with any team in the league."

Ram grapplers seek VC title

Wrestler Paul Bolanos is continuing his winning streak, now standing at 27-1-1, as the FCC wrestlers go unbeaten in their league. The whole team is looking good and coach Bill Musick is optimistic about the upcoming Valley Conference Tournament, as the 1978-79 wrestling season nears its close.

Last Saturday, in the North-South All-Star Classic at Chabot College, the North All-Stars, coached by Musick himself and including FCC wrestlers Paul Bolanos and Larry Kaprielian, beat the South 20-18.

Bolanos, rated No. 2 at the meet, won his match against No. 1 rated Glover. Kaprielian, wrestling Jim Hamilton of Palomar, was beaten in a reversal the last three seconds of his match. There is a good possibility that Kaprielian will come up league champion in his division this Saturday.

There are other strong Ram wrestlers. Musick calls the team well-rounded — "All the wrestlers are doing a good job." Marlin Royal, wrestling now in the 150 lb. class after an injury that kept him off the mat during first semester, is expected to do well Saturday. Musick says Robin Green has a good chance to be league champion in his division, and Forrest and Frankie Scott will be contenders in theirs.

If the Ram wrestlers take the Valley Conference Title Saturday, it will be for the third time in three years. Still unbeaten this season with a 4-0 league record, Musick's wrestlers can tote up that third title by taking either first or second place Saturday.

This is not the first string of conference titles that Ram wrestlers have known, either. They dominated the conference four years from 1959-62, and again during 1965-68.

After the Northern-California Regional Tournament, one week from this Saturday, the team dissolves, but wrestlers have a chance to go on individually to the State Championships.

Fowler product

Small-town athlete plays big for Rams

by Henry Gutierrez
Sports Editor

Having risen from the grammar school, junior and senior high school system in south Fresno County to a junior college basketball standout was a stellar staircase for Ron Chatman.

Chatman hails from Fowler High School, where his accomplishments form an imposing list. In his sophomore year he was elected most improved on the varsity squad. His junior year led to captain, top rebounder, and most valuable player awards.

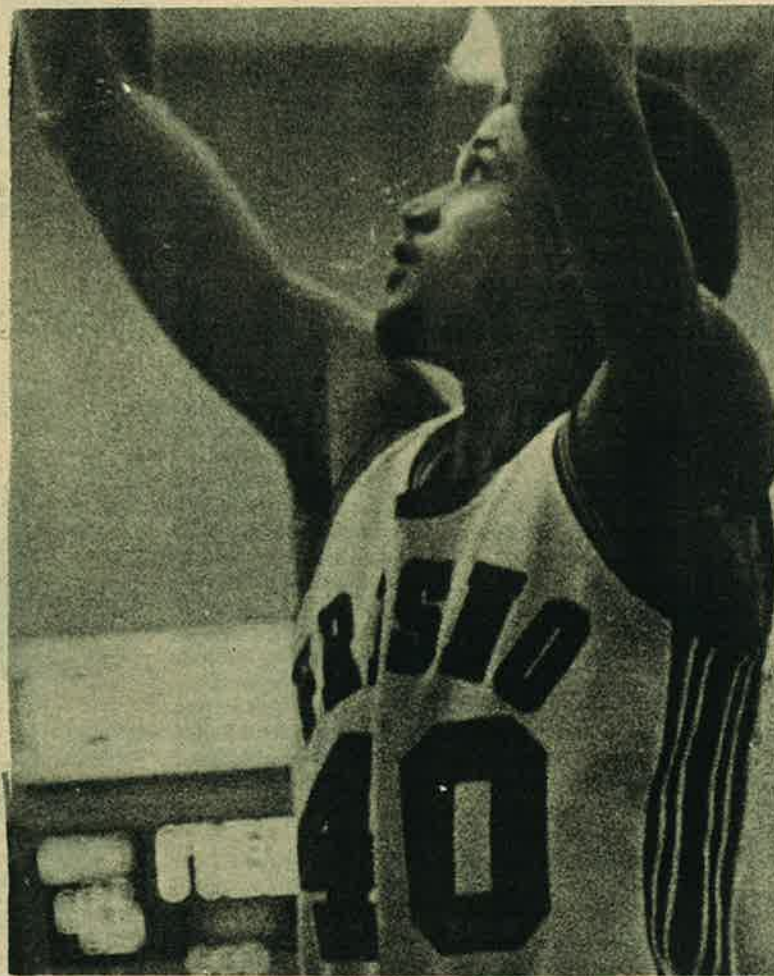

His senior year was filled with more honors. He again was captain, top rebounder, and the most valuable player. He was also chosen for the City-County All-Star basketball contest.

Queried on his possible college ball, Chatman is looking at the Jerry Tarkanian-coached University of Nevada-Las Vegas Rebels with an inquisitive eye.

"Coach Stark is a good coach and we have a team concept, meaning not just one person is dominant," Chatman said. He also commented on two of his teammates, Ricky Ryan and Craig Cleveland. "Both are good rebounders, top shooters, and play good defense. We have good team play. Our season is better than last year's, but we've had some bad officiating, so far."

With the emergence this year of Fowler High on the prep scene, the name Chatman has taken on a wider meaning. Ron has a pair of brothers on the Fowler squad and maybe in the near future they will be a part of the FCC scene.

"I had some friends and a couple of coaches talked to me before I came here," Chatman stated. "Last year we had a pretty fair season, one that I felt we could have done better," added Chatman.

JOCK TALK

Support basketball

By Henry Gutierrez

With the 13th Super Bowl history, the football season technically comes to an end. The Pittsburgh Steelers came out with a 35-31 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Even though the season may be over, the FCC Ram coaching staff is not sitting back waiting for new athletes. Last week coaches Bill Musick, Jack Mattox, and Tony Jackson were seen escorting certain high school athletes around the campus.

The sight of a Washington Union High School jacket indicates that the FCC memtors are trying to get top high school material. Washington Union won the Sierra-Sequoia Division Valley Championship last season.

Though the Ram basketball teams have dropped some key conference games, the FCC squads will hopefully rebound (no pun intended) to sweep the latter part of their Valley Conference schedule.

The Rams have given the people of the valley a boost in the wrestling season with the clinching of the Valley Conference in the dual matches. The steadiness of Paul Bolanos and Larry Kaprielian all year long and the emergence of other wrestlers into the spotlight have made the Ram grapplers one of the best teams in the state.

The swim team looks like a group of polar bears when one looks at them going for their early morning dips. The dedication of such athletes seems to go unparalleled in the Ram sports scene.

The track team practices are in full swing with a host of Rams competing in a recent All-Comers meet at CSUF.

Lackluster attendance at the Ram home basketball games could be switched if the Rams had a better record, but this may be a poor reason for not going to the games. Maybe the high school teams lure most of the Rams fans away from the FCC Gym. If only the STUDENTS at FCC were out in greater numbers, the FCC teams might give a little more because of the support.

So the next time you are looking for something to do, see if a FCC team is playing and go out and enjoy some fine junior college sports.

EDITORIAL

No strike, fortunately

Last week the SCCC instructors and the board of trustees settled their contract dispute. They had been negotiating since last June without the instructors going out on strike.

The instructors may have decided to strike if the contract they wanted was not approved. Had this happened many classes could have been closed for lack of teachers.

Should the instructors have the right to strike?

Whenever electricians, operators or others in the work field strike, no one is really upset. But let instructors go on strike and the complaints start flowing.

Why is it that people disfavor instructors going on strike? Most likely because they feel the students will not get an adequate education.

Instructors have every right in the world to strike if they have a dispute, whether it concerns pay, class size or a contract. However, in this case an agreement was reached, and for this we applaud the instructors and the board.

Bad experience with Bookstore candy bar

I was in the Bookstore last week to buy some candy; I used to have a sweet tooth. While I was standing in line for the cashier, a girl came in with a half-eaten "My Buddy" candy bar.

She explained to the cashier that she had bitten into the candy bar only to find maggot eggs in it. On close inspection of the package I found she was telling the truth.

I don't know whether it's the Bookstore's fault or the company's, but I put my candy back.

Shouldn't the Bookstore throw away candy after a certain period of time? I, for one, am not going to buy any more candy from the Bookstore.

—Disgusted

Bookstore Manager James H. Stoner replies:

Any food or prepared food product is subject to spoilage or infestation by insects, particularly the now popular natural snack items with no preservatives.

The candy bar in question is sealed in a protective wrapper at the place where it was made. In all places between its creation and the time it comes to the retailer every effort is made to control the time a prepared food item is on the shelf. The product in question is stale-dated and had not reached its expiration date.

When spoilage is reported, the entire carton is removed from the shelf and destroyed. In the case of an item in a opaque sealed package there is no way to detect any problem before the wrapper is removed.

FILM REVIEW

Producer finally comes up with winner--'Snatcher Invasion'

by Richard Johnson
Staff Writer

I would like to thank the writer of "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," W. D. Richter, and the director, Philip Kaufman, for giving us something that has been lacking from the movie industry as of late, a good film with an established, easy-to-follow plot that wasn't geared toward a person with the mentality of a 3-year-old.

Yes, it seems that producer Robert Solo, in looking for an intelligent film, may have come up with a winner. After his two box office bombs, "The Devils," by Ken Russel, and the musical version of the Charles Dickens classic, "A Christmas Carol." This must be a welcome change of pace.

The actors do a good job. Sutherland, who plays Mathew Bennel, a San Francisco health inspector who gets caught in the mess, does a fantastic job. Brooke Adams (Elizabeth Driscoll) carries the beginning of the film excellently.

The two parts played by Jeff Goldblum and Veronica Cartwright as Sutherland's friends are short but sweet.

The only character I found hard to swallow was Nimoy's character, Dr. David Kibner. I'm not saying Nimoy can't act. On the contrary, I feel he is one of the finest actors we have around today, but with the throw-in part he was given he could have stayed home and sent them a video tape, which I think he just may have done.

The film, starring Donald Sutherland, Leonard Nimoy, and Brooke Adams, begins with a scenic view of some other planet on which the bubbly villains take flight and land on our wonderful Earth, in the one place nobody would notice what was happening until it was too late — San Francisco.

This all takes place in the time it takes to roll the opening credits. This I find to be the only tedious part of the film, but if you can ignore huge words plastered on top of it all, so much the better.

Despite the few flaws, I think this sequel — yes, it's not a remake — has a lot going for it, and is well worth the $3.75 I paid for it. (Don't be shocked, some places are up to $4 now.)
