

Rampage Moves Due to Lack of Access

by Sam Tull
Managing Editor

After 33 years in its familiar location above the bookstore and overlooking the Free Speech area, the FCC Rampage is being moved to one of the bungalows in the northwest corner of the campus.

The reason for the move is because the Student Center Building, which also houses the ASB office and the Ram magazine office along with the Allied Health and Nursing program offices, is not accessible to handicapped students and Darrell McCully, the Editor-in-Chief of the Rampage, is confined to a wheelchair.

Since there is no elevator in the building, McCully has to be carried up and down the stairs by members of the Rampage staff. This process is difficult and unsafe.

Rather than go to the expense of installing an elevator in the building so that handicapped students can get to the offices and classrooms upstairs the administration has opted to move the classrooms to an accessible location.

According to a school spokesperson the Rampage move is a stop gap measure to postpone solving the problem which is the inaccessibility of a building which contains not only two instruction classes, which do not meet anywhere else on campus but also the offices of the student government.

State and Federal law states that public colleges must

Rampage Editor-in-Chief, Darrell McCully, is being brought down the stairs by Sam Tull, background and Art Mehrtens foreground, because of no elevator provide access to classrooms for handicapped students. Since the law went into effect all new buildings have elevators and ramps and most older public buildings have installed them.

"I would rather they put in an elevator to make this building accessible but as long as they move everything on the upper floor then they are still within the law," stated McCully.

"The Rampage has been there for so long that it seems like a desecration to move it, but I have every right to attend that class so they have to move it if they're not going to put in an elevator."

The Rampage is due to be moved the day this paper comes out. The new location will be the bungalow which used to house the Extended Family program.

With the move to the bungalow the newspaper will be without access to its photography darkroom which is located down the hall from the old offices.

FCC President Clyde McCully was unavailable for comment so it is not yet known whether an elevator will ever be installed in the building and if so whether or not the Rampage will be moved back to its old location.

by Sam Williams

A Rampage investigation reveals a mass of misinformation and undisclosed facts regarding the use of the club table in the foyer between the cafeteria and the coffee shop. The table was used extensively in the last two weeks by a professionally-paid petition circulator to obtain signatures on a referendum opposing the reapportionment recently passed by the state legislature.

The hook used to entice students to sign the petition was the implication that the legislature had done something irregular or even illegal in passing the reapportionment bill without voter approval.

The pitch went like this: "Are you a registered to vote in Fresno County? Good. I have a petition I'd like for you to sign. You see, the legislature passed the reapportionment without voter approval and I'd like a chance to vote on it."

The legislature's power of reapportionment without voter approval is granted in Article IV, Section 6 of the Constitution of California.

The reapportionment, like any bill passed by the Legislature, is subject to a referendum by the people.

The petition being signed on campus was in fact just such a referendum.

The Rampage spoke to the circulator and obtained the name of his employer. He is Mike Corcoran, a local businessman who circulates petitions for profit. Corcoran said he would not take any petition that came along. He only is interested in petitions that deal with government issues. He would not for example, handle a gay rights petition, or a drug petition. Corcoran said that he doesn't care about the outcome but he does believe the citizens have a right to vote on reapportionment.

Corcoran also said that paid efforts traditionally have a much greater chance of obtaining the required number of signatures than do non-paid efforts.

When asked who was sponsoring the referendum and who was paying him, Corcoran simply said, "No comment."

Any group from off-campus involved in an action such as this should check in with the Dean of Student Services, Lee Farley. Farley's office clears posters and controls the campus release of off-campus information.

Farley said he had spoken to someone on the phone about the petition. He understood that they were to be affiliated with a club on campus. Farley was very surprised to hear that the reapportionment circulator was part of a paid organization. Farley added that he would have handled the matter much differently had he known the circulator was being paid. This is Farley's first year as Dean of Student Services.

Farley wouldn't go so far as to say they misrepresented the situation to him, Farley said the issue of pay just didn't come up in their conversations.

The Rampage also spoke to the chief of campus police Shrum. Shrum said the table was being used by a voter registrar. He was not aware that any petition was being circulated.

Another police source said that since the petition was being signed in unison with voter registration, it could take place legally in any public place.

The Rampage also spoke to the Fresno County Elections Office. They told the Rampage that registering voters at the time they sign a petition is discouraged by their office. This is because the voter registration cards must be in the elections office and processed prior to the processing of the petitions. If a petition has one invalid signature then the entire petition is invalid. Once a petition, they continued, is ruled invalid, it is impossible to be re-validated. Due to the time element involved in most issues like this, many of the signatures will probably be ruled invalid.

The new voters who registered should be registered, however, providing the registration cards are handled properly.

The Fresno County Elections Office also said that the referendum is statewide and affects California's Congressional seats as well as the State Senate and Assembly seats.

According to the Fresno County Elections office, the proponent, or sponsor, of the bill is Tirso del Junco.

According to the Fresno Bee, del Junco is a Los Angeles Surgeon and businessman. The Bee also reported that Junco, born in Cuba, is the first Hispanic elected chairman of the California State Republican Party.

The Rampage was unable to reach Junco at his Sunset Boulevard office.

FCC's Dean Waddle — A True Speed Reader

by Suzanne Berry
News Editor

Dr. Carl Waddle, Dean of Humanities, is an amazingly fast speed reader who learned to read at an early age.

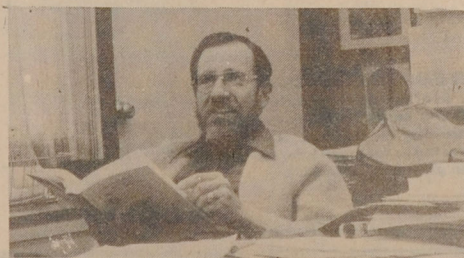

Waddle explained, "I really don't know how I learned to read. I have a peculiar way of reading. At the age of 3, I started reading words off of crystal wedding boxes, and many other items."

When Waddle was in the first grade he spent approximately 10 days in that grade and then his teacher sent home a note asking his parents if he could move up to the 2nd grade because of his reading ability.

While he was in the first grade, his teacher gave him the book called Prose and Poetry in England, but since he moved up to the second grade he didn't get to read it until then. This book was what twelfth graders were reading at the time.

He remained in the second

Dr. Waddle caught reading again.

grade so he wouldn't get too far ahead of his age group. He then skipped the third grade, but was in the third grade for only one week. By skipping the third grade, he had to learn the multiplication tables on his own.

Waddle recalls the family showing him off to relatives and friends because of his great ability to read at such a young age.

By the time Waddle reached the seventh grade, he was setting goals for himself to read one book a day. These books consisted of books such as Black Beauty, etc.

He increased his goal of reading books to two a day.

After Waddle finished the seventh grade, he took an achievement test and in the verbal area he received twelfth grade plus, which was outstanding.

Waddle said, "I believe the

Broken Down Buses Force FCC To Buy Another

by Suzanne Berry
News Editor

Fresno City College has two district-owned buses which have often broken down. These buses are used for field trips and transporting teams to other colleges.

According to both Dr. Arthur Ellish, Dean of Instruction and Mr. Gerald Stokle, Associate Dean of Social Science, Fresno City College will be purchasing a used bus but will not receive it until next January.

Stokle stated, "The transportation is in the red. We are having to charter buses for field trips, which is very expensive. I think that the field trips are of great educational experience to the students."

Stokle said that field trips are a costly form of education, but our faculty feels that they are worth it because of what the students can learn.

Stokle added, "Richard Cleland, Business Manager, does not want the buses the district owns to be going out of town in fear of having one of the buses breaking down."

Ellish explained, "We have been concerned about the buses' condition for a while now, but we haven't decided what to do about it. When the buses go out on a field trip or when they are transporting teams to and from other colleges they (the buses) go out on a safety check first."

The long distance trips and the trips which go into the mountains are having to charter the buses because the district buses are breaking down too often.

For instance, Stokle said, "One bus broke down in San Francisco on a field trip. The instructor got in contact with (FCC President) Dr. McCully who in turn told the instructor to get the students on an airplane to get them back home safely."

Ellish stated that the chartering of a bus to San Francisco costs anywhere from $600 to $800.

The district is going to have the two buses overhauled totally and then these buses will be used for in-town trips only.

Until that time, each division dean will have to set a priority on the trips that will get chartered.

"We do have league commitments, so the football team will be getting the priority, especially for the out-of-town games," explained Ellish.

All field trips are important. They are designed by the teacher to give students an educational experience. Ellish wants to promote field trips, but the cost for charters have doubled over the past two years.

Stokle said, "The Humanities Division took six trips which were mainly for music. The Health Arts and Science Division took 16 trips, mainly the sports teams. The Social Science Division took seven trips which consisted of history and sociology classes. The Science Division took two which were both biology, and the Technical and Industrial Division took six trips which were mainly the photography classes. The biggest user is the Health, Arts and Science."

Sexual Awareness

"How to Help your Child Establish Sexual Awareness" is the topic of Fresno Community Hospital and Medical Center's November 5, 1981, Public Health Forum. The event, which is free to the public, will be held at 7:15 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria at Fresno and "R" Streets in Fresno. Featured speaker will be Fresno Pediatrician, Harriet Hanson, M.D.

The purpose of the forum is to make parents aware of what is happening sexually in children at various age levels, and how parents can provide guidance to them in a positive way. The way sexual awareness develops, what causes it to happen, and a description of the degrees of sexual awareness at each age level will be presented. The concurrent development of attitudes and values toward sex, how children handle feelings and their own bodies also will be discussed.

Those attending will also have the opportunity to ask questions of Dr. Hanson. Telephone 442-6000, extension 5696 for complete information.

Office Relocations

There have been some changes in the Student Services building in the past few weeks. A few of the major offices have relocated.

According to Lee Farley, Associate Dean of Student Affairs, the relocation of the Placement Office and The Enablers and Veterans Offices was due to lack of space and inconvenient access for handicapped students.

The Enabler Office is now located on the second story of the student services building in room 226, thus enabling handicapped students use of the more than ample-sized elevator.

The placement office is now located downstairs in room 114, and the veterans administration is also downstairs in room 109.

Father Jesus Nieto speaking at CSUF

The Latin American Support Committee is sponsoring a visit by Father Jesus Nieto who is an official representative of the Council of Christian Base Communities of El Salvador. Father Nieto will be speaking at the CSUF Lounge at 12 noon. This will be followed by a press conference in room 314 at the CU Lounge at 1:30 p.m. Father Nieto will then be meeting with local ministers at Wesley United Methodist Church at 1343 E. Barstow between 3:00 & 5:00.

Father Jesus Nieto is a Diocesan Priest who has worked for over 13 years in rural parishes throughout El Salvador. Father Nieto was a close co-worker of assassinated Archbishop Oscar Romero, and has played an important role in the formation of the Council of Christian Base Communities. In the past months he has been working in the refugee camps along the Honduran border.

Father Nieto has been deeply involved in the evolution of the Christian Base Communities in El Salvador, and during his presentation he will speak about the history of these communities and the role which Christians have played in the liberation movement. He will also share his experiences in the refugee camps and speak about government repression of refugees which he has witnessed and suffered personally.

The Search for Alexander in San Francisco

The Exhibition, The Search for Alexander, will be in San Francisco at the DeYoung Museum during Spring 1982. The Exhibition includes material concerning Alexander the Great and the recent excavation of the tomb of Phillip II, the father of Alexander the Great.

The Division of Extended Education will offer a workshop which will study the Exhibition. The format will include a Friday evening lecture/discussion followed by a chartered bus trip to the museum in San Francisco on Saturday.

Cost, including field trip and tuition is $65.00.

Due to seating space limitation of the bus, class registration will be limited. To be assured of a reservation, early response with a $20.00 deposit (non-refundable) payable to CSUF Extension is recommended. Complete and return the application below. Registration deadline is January 15, 1982. Call the Division of Extended Education at (209) 294-2549 for further information.

Probation Students

Students on probation will be receiving a letter from the counselors asking that they make an appointment with a counselor as soon as possible. It is important that students receiving this letter follow the directions in the letter and come to the Counseling Center to make the appointment before the end of this month. The Counseling Center staff is interested in your academic progress and welfare. They are also interested in offering their services to all students who may need their help. Don't be shy! Future Dieticians FUTURE DIETICIANS, the Department of Nutritional Sciences at the University of California, Berkeley, is aware of the high student interest in their Coordinated Undergraduate Program in Dietetics. This unique dietetic program combines the academic and clinical practice required of a dietician in the junior and senior years of study.

Upon graduation from this coordinated program, students are eligible for membership and registration in the American Dietetic Association, enabling them to practice as clinical dietitians. Because this program eliminates the need for a 5th year post-baccalaureate internship, many students are interested in transferring to Berkeley for the professional dietetics program.

In an effort to disseminate information, the Department of Nutritional Sciences has planned two meetings in October for students who are interested in applying to the Coordinated Undergraduate Program. These meetings have been scheduled this Fall in light of the early application deadline for the Berkeley campus: November 30, 1981 for admissions to Fall Quarter, 1982. They will be presenting information on career opportunities in Dietetics and how their program prepares Dieticians. Discussions will include prerequisite requirements, application procedures, and selection criteria.

The meetings will be held on Thursday, October 29 at 3:00 PM and Saturday, October 31 at 9:30 AM in Room 114, Morgan Hall, University of California, Berkeley.

Students interested in a career in Dietetics should plan to attend one of these meetings if possible. If more information is desired please contact Mrs. Easton, in the Counseling Center.

Scandinavian Seminar

Scandinavian Seminar is now accepting applications for its 1982-83 academic year abroad in Denmark, Finland, Norway, or Sweden. This unique learning experience is designed for college students, graduates, and other adults who want to study in a Scandinavian country, becoming part of another culture and learning its language. A new one-semester program, only in Denmark, is also now available.

After orientation in Denmark and a 3-week intensive language course, generally followed by a family stay, students are placed individually at Scandinavian Folk Schools or other specialized institutions, where they live and study with Scandinavians of diverse backgrounds. The Folk Schools are small, residential educational communities intended mainly for young adults. Both historically and socially, these schools have played an important part in the development of the Scandinavian countries. Midway through the folk school year, all the Seminar students and staff meet in the mountains of Norway to discuss progress and make plans for the spring. A final session is held at the end of the year to evaluate the year's studies and experiences.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, and all course-connected travels in Scandinavia, is $5,900. Interest-free loans are granted on the basis of need, as are a few partial scholarships.

For further information, please write to: Scandinavian Seminar, 100 East 85th Street, New York, N.Y. 10028.

'The Philadelphia Story' Opens

by Carrie Pettitt

This year's first production of the theater arts department, The Philadelphia Story, is a charming comedy set in the lavish era of the 1940's.

The play opened last night after six weeks in rehearsal. The effort was well worth it, as the actors and actresses were in fine form.

The classic, written by playwright Philip Barry in 1939, was first performed on Broadway. Originally it starred Katheryn Hepburn.

In 1941, The Philadelphia Story was captured on film and that film also starred Katheryn Hepburn.

Here at Fresno City College our rendition of The Philadelphia Story was directed by Dr. Donald Gunn. The set designer for the play is Tom Wright, and the lighting is being handled by Francis Sullivan.

The costuming for the show is in itself a delight. The period in which the play takes place is the 1940's, a time when fashion was at an all-time high.

The costuming for The Philadelphia Story was a task done well by costume design instructor C. T. Quinn.

In talking with the play's director, Dr. Gunn, I got the feeling he really enjoys what he does and enjoyed most of all seeing young people make the best of their talents.

"I'm really very proud of my students," said Gunn confidently. "They've done a fine job."

The cast is as follows:

Tracy Lord — M.J. Watts
Dinha Lord — Renee Manson

Margeret Lord — Kirsten Swanson

Alexander Lord — Mich 1 Lawler

Thomas, the butler — Al Smith

Uncle Willy — Richard Brock

Mike Conner — Robert Ruth
George Kitridge — Darryl Blair

C. K. Dexter Haven — Shannon Trimbale

Seth Lord — Ed Bielicki
First Maid, Elsie — Karla Keller

Max, the night watchman — Tim Guild

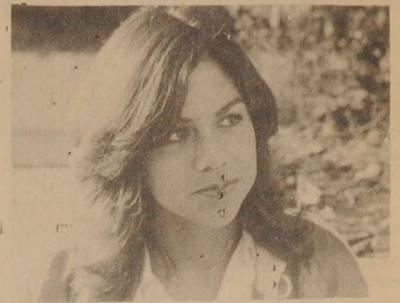

Second Maid, Mae — Brenda Stubber

Edward, the footman — Michael Taylor

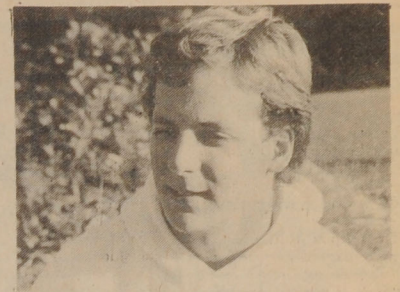

M. J. Watts as Tracy Lord

Do you believe in the Evolutionist or the Creationist Theory?

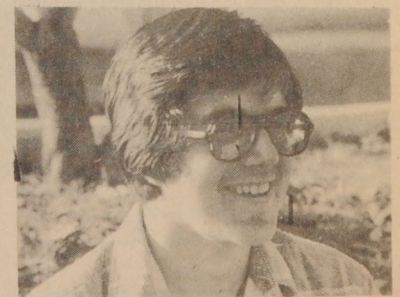

Lisa Sommers: Probably God's creation. I think of myself as a Christian, and that God created the world.

Jim Holmes: I think of them both as just theories. One is no more right than the other. They are just one person's theories, for all we know we could have come from Mars. They're both just possibilities, not facts.

Marina Mattucci: The creation theory. I don't believe in evolution too much.

Jim Osborne: I believe in a mixture of both. We only have little slivers of fact. I think when we have the whole picture both will mesh into a truth.

Michele Carmody: Evolution theory. It's more logical to me. Just the proof that's been shown is enough. It makes more sense than the Bible.

Help Available in Math-Lab

by Suzanne Berry
News Editor

In the Math-Science Building, here at Fresno City College, there is a math lab where students who are having problems with math can go and get help.

The math lab is located in the bottom section of the Math Science Building, room 60B. It is open everyday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with tutors available at all times until 1 p.m.

Mrs. Buhr, a math instructor in charge of the lab, explained that there are mainly two kinds of students who use the lab.

"First there is the person who takes a math course in the individualized manner. This is a student who takes the individualized course work at their own rate and must put in five hours in the math lab," said Buhr. "They also take tests, study their work and also get tutored," Buhr continued. "It is like an open-entry, open-exit situation. As soon as a student gets through with all his work he will take his final and be finished with the class."

Secondly, students enrolled in the basic computer course also use the math lab frequently. "These student can play computer games such as 'Star Trek,' which are easy to learn. They can play the games as long as space is provided," said Buhr.

Drafting and engineering and even some science courses also use the computers.

Buhr explained that "The lab can also be used for drop-in tutoring because there is always a tutor available until 1 p.m. It is a good place to do some studying, and anyone is free to come in and use the math lab." There are tutors anywhere from the lowest math level to the highest math level.

Rampage Women's Page to begin Oct 30

In the October 30 edition of the Rampage, the campus will see a new page devoted to women's issues and problems. The section, entitled HERSay and HERstory, will focus attention on the current issues and problems facing every modern woman today.

Being a feminist section, HERSay and HERstory believes in the social, political and economic equality of women and have recognized that strict sex-role stereotypes are demeaning and unproductive for ALL of humanity.

HERSAY HERSTORY

"Through communication, outreach and education we hope to promote a non-sexist attitude on campus and inform our readers of the current status of specific legislation concerning woman. Without this information, we cannot possibly know where we're going or what's in store for the future," says Judy Paredes, Rampage reporter and founder of HERSay and HERstory.

The section will focus on the past, present and future contributions of women in hopes to abolish the many myths that society has created and maintained with female inferiority always in mind. Like the Equal Rights Amendment, the section is devoted to an equality of sexes; not a superior inferior situation.

The page will include feature articles, activity update, poet's corner, opinions, humor, socio-political research and third world news.

ALL feminists (female and male) are invited to submit contributions to help this non-sexist section. For more information contact Judy Paredes, Melissa Chambers or Sam Tull at the Rampage Office.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT

Section 1. Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Section 2. The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Section 3. This amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification. (complete text)

Ancient Art of Fencing Recreated in PE Class

by Shelley Jeffers
Sports Editor

The fine art of fencing can be found on the Fresno City College Campus four times a week. This centuries-old craft may be just the diversion from the mundane academic schedule that many students crave.

Fencing is offered in two night classes and two day classes each week, and although Coach Hans Wiedenhofer has taught the sport for approximately 15 years, its popularity has always remained constant.

Wiedenhofer attributes much of this popularity to the history of the sport. He said, "Many of the students are curious about the sport or want to try something different, and this has no carry over from any other sport."

In fencing you must learn from the beginning. Competence in other sports will not carry you through this one. Unlike racket sports, you cannot play one kind, for instance tennis, and presume you can also play badminton equally as well. Fencing has its own requirements and nothing else comes close.

The class is also recommended for theatre arts majors. Weidehoffer suggested that many of Shakespeare's plays include fencing in their plots. The sport also helps to bring grace and poise to many aspiring thespians.

One reason for its subtle popularity is because it is not a spectator sport, but a participant's sport. It is also not an American sport like football and baseball and has no large following. But it is a very vigorous sport and tops for fitness and keeping legs in good shape.

Wiedenhofer said the class has always had an equal ratio of girls to boys. There is foil fencing in the Olympics, and it is just as much a woman's sport as a man's.

There is some intramural competition within the classroom, but for the more serious fencer there is the Amateur Fencing Association, the governing body of competitive fencers. Since most of the competitions are held in San Francisco or Los Angeles, some traveling is required.

Wiedenhofer stresses the importance of the class structure. The beginning class is for learning the basic techniques and foundation of the sport. The other three classes offered are to practice and improve. "It's no different from any other sport. The student has to have patience and it takes time to perfect it." It takes at least one semester before you can begin to improve yourself.

Age is no factor in this sport. "As long as your legs can carry you," said Wiedenhofer. All the equipment is provided for, including a padded chest protector, and a face mask.

Valley Conference Curtain Raiser

Rams Romp Over West Hills Falcons, 52-0

by Sam Williams

If you are one of those folks that thought the hopes of college football in Fresno went down the drain when the Bulldogs started their losing streak last month, then it's time you checked out the Fresno City College Rams.

The Rams won their Central Valley Conference opener in a 52-0 shutout of the West Hills College Falcons Saturday evening at Ratcliffe Stadium. The Rams are now tied for the Conference lead with Porterville and Merced who both won last week. College of the Sequoias had a bye.

This Saturday the Rams will face Modesto Junior College in Modesto. The Pirates, who lost to Merced last week, were 11-0 last year. They went on to be the National Junior College Champions. Heavy graduation losses will slow them down this year, but they are still a team to beat. Pirate quarterback Larry Kasinger is sure to give the Ram defense some headaches. In one game this year he completed 30 of 50 passes.

The game Saturday against West Hills belonged to the Rams all the way. The Rams were never in trouble.

Doug Gaynor completed 10 of 19 for 168 yards and four touchdowns.

Don Antonetti ran the ball 12 times for 80 yards and one touchdown. Antonetti also caught two passes for 48 yards and two touchdowns.

David Fanning caught three passes for 74 yards and one touchdown.

Fred Gaines ran the ball for 39 yards in six carries. His longest gain was 26 yards.

Quarterback Tim Turpin made his first appearance of the year and completed four of seven for 86 yards and one touchdown.

There was even more proof of the Ram bench strength. Mario McArn, a freshman, made several outstanding defensive plays in his first action of the year.

Freshman Ed Gandolfo, scored a 27 yard touchdown, and gained 29 yards in three carries.

Three minutes into the game fans were scared into the realities of football as Edward Faagai of West Hills suffered what seemed to be a serious injury. He left in an ambulance but the Rampage learned that he later rode home with the team.

The Rams first score, late in the first quarter, was a Gaynor pass to Antonetti in the corner of the end zone. Brook Edmonds kicked the extra point and the Rams lead 7-0.

The Rams second score came early in the second quarter. It was set up by Gary Dimmick's recovery of a Ram punt. Antonetti ran the ball 31 yards for the score. The play started out looking more like a basketball game than a football game as Antonetti came out to the backfield dribbling the ball. Antonetti then showed his ability as a back and danced through defenders for the score. The extra point was no good.

The Rams scored again when Gaynor hit Fanning who was wide open in the left corner of the end zone for the score. Edmonds extra point was good and the Rams took over 20-0.

An interception by Mitch McGregor set up the next score. Antonetti broke through the line two plays later and threw off several tacklers and put his head down and ran into the right side of the end zone. Ed Gandolfo then ran around the left for a two-point conversion. The Rams extended their lead 28-0.

McArn broke up three consecutive pass plays and the Falcons found that just because a starter isn't in the backfield, the Rams shouldn't be underrated. The last of the three incomplete passes was on fourth down and the Rams took over on the Falcon 32 yard line.

The Rams showed they could move the ball quickly. In 36 seconds the Rams scored a touchdown and another two point conversion to end the half. Gaynor hit Dimmick in the left corner of the end zone.

Joel Bishop then ran the conversion up the middle to end the half. The Rams lead 36-0.

On the Rams next possession Edmonds kicked a 45-yard field goal, which was just short of the FCC record of 51 yards. The Rams lead 39-0.

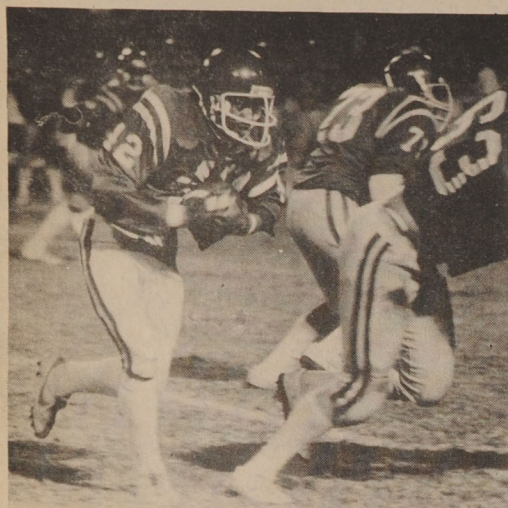

Half way through the third quarter Turpin took over as quarterback. Turpin played through the end of the third period.

Rob Martin then recovered a Falcon fumble on a completed pass to turn the ball over to the Rams.

On the Rams next possession Gandolfo showed he could run as he easily out-distanced the Falcon defenders and scored from the 28 yard line. The extra point was no good and the Rams lead 45-0.

With 44 seconds left in the third quarter Turpin hit Santos Perez who bounced off five tacklers and ran down the right side for a 48-yard score. Edmonds kicked another extra point and the Rams lead 52-0.

The Rams failed to score in the fourth quarter.

Clams Come of Age

by Tony Fornaro

The Clams are a prime example of how hard work pays off. They've paid their dues playing the club circuit; and last Friday they proved they can compete with the best by opening for The Motels at the Star Palace.

Fresno's potential hitmakers entertained the crowd with versatile finesse. Having to play a short concert set, upon The Motels request, The Clams demonstrated an ability to work well under any condition. Along with playing familiar tunes, The Clams showed a daring streak by fitting new songs into the half-hour set. One of them was lead guitarist Tony Negrete's slow melody "One Night," which kicked off the show.

The Clams sound could be described as a cross between Joe Jackson and The Knack. Spanning the music horizon, their set also included the snappy riffs and catsey harmonies of "Shark," a hoped-to-be released single. Adding some variety, rhythm guitarist Jim Carter penned the country-western "The More I Drink."

Despite the absence of a dance floor and a subdued audience, the Clams shined. They have polished up their sound, conquered the local club scene, and composed more than enough songs for an LP. They possess the key ingredients now. Linking up with the right producer and the proper radio exposure should assure them considerable success.

Waddle read so much because in his home town there weren't any young kids for him to play with so he took up reading.

He enjoys reading science fiction and fantasy science fiction the most. He reads theology for recreational reading. He says that reading is a compulsion to him.

Waddle concluded, "I enjoy reading very much. I read in my spare time or whenever I can find the time."

Qaddafi: Madman or Moslem Messiah?

by Darrell-Arthur McCuney
Editor-in-Chief

Now that all of the impact and emotion following the assassination of Anwar Sadat has died down, an examination can objectively be made to see what the effect of the event will be on the politics of the region and the world situation in general.

First on most everybody's mind is how his death will affect the Camp David Peace Accords signed by Presidents Sadat and Carter and Prime Minister Begin in 1977.

Fortunately for everyone concerned, the peace process seems to be going along smoothly. New Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak has stated that, as far as Egypt is concerned, the agreements and treaty will not be harmed by the death of Sadat. The Israelis, however, have a problem that Mubarak doesn't, and that is the many Israeli settlers in the Sinai that don't want their homes to be given back to the Egyptians. Under the terms of the Peace Treaty, the Israelis are supposed to give back all of the lands they rolled over in the past two wars with their neighbors to the west. But the settlers understandably don't want to move after having carved their homes out of the desert, and fear that, as Egyptians, their rights will be violated and they will be treated with something less than equality. Fortunately for the Israeli leadership, this group seems too weak to influence policy, but unfortunately is strong enough to cause trouble on the domestic scene.

Another variable in the peace equation is the Moslem factor, or the presence of a fanatical Moslem "lunatic fringe". This group is present in most of the nations in that region, but the problem with the Egyptian group is that few people, if any, know just how strong they are or how much power they have. They were the factor that finally threw the equation out of the Shah of Iran's favor and into the hands of what is now the Islamic Revolutionary Party. They are also the people that attacked the Great Mosque at Mecca, and the ones that dispatched Anwar Sadat.

One of the more interesting parts of the puzzle is Libya and His Accidency Mohammad Qaddafi. Many people think that as soon as the time is right, Qaddafi will attack either Egypt or the Sudan. While he will very likely continue to launch the occasional air raid behind someone else's borders, it is highly doubtful in my opinion that he will not want to start a war right now. On the one hand, he was internationally embarrassed by having two of his planes shot down by the "pirate" United States Navy, so he has to keep using the planes to demonstrate to his own people and to the world that the Libyan Air Force is not powered by rubber bands and flown by pilots who must have their flight instructions written in braille before they can read them. On the other hand, Egypt is too ready, and the United States too watchful, for him to pull a stunt like an invasion. In the words of the man in the Lunatic Asylum, "I'm in here 'cause I'm crazy, not stupid." Qaddafi is dumb like a fox. He knows that to engage Egypt on the battlefield right now, or Egypt's neighbor the Sudan, would have several adverse effects:

First, it could split the Arab world into two factions, those backing Egypt and those backing Libya. We saw this happen during the Iran-Iraq war, and it is still going on. While most of the Arab leaders pay lip service to Qaddafi, if forced into a me-or-them confrontation (which he would most certainly do), then the more moderate Arab states would elect to choose a more moderate partner rather than the radical Libyan. Even now many of the previously alienated Arab countries that were incensed at Sadat are making peace overtures to Mubarak. They didn't hate the idea of peace with Israel as much as they felt betrayed by Sadat. So it wasn't Egypt as a whole and Egypt's position to Israel that they objected to as much as they felt betrayed by Sadat personally. Now that he is gone, many Arabs are again interested in peace.

Second, he would risk war with the United States as well as Egypt and possibly even Israel. There is an anti-Qaddafi sentiment in Israel and a pro-Egypt one, so much so that Israel might very well come to the aid of its new friend. And as for the United States, even though we would not join wholeheartedly in a foreign war so soon after Vietnam, even the Libyan Lunatic must realize that we would surely give "our side" all of the arms, ammunition, and aid that they could ask for.

Third, and very important to him, he would risk the destruction of his country's oil fields. Again we see from the Iran-Iraq war that any country who has a large oil industry would surely leave itself open for economic rape because oil is so pretty when it burns. The other guys just can't resist one little teensy weensy air raid on a field. While it is true that Egypt has some oil, it is nowhere near as economically dependant as Libya is on its oil. So, all things considered, oilwise, Qaddafi loses.

Fourth, and this one could be a biggie, he risks losing the cooperation of the Soviet Union. Right now they are nervous about having a maniac for an ally. Of course in a war he could count on their verbal support, but maybe not much more than that if he starts the conflict.

Fifth, (last and least) he would risk alienating some of the countries that feel neutral toward him, and possibly drive them as far as the other side.

While not all of these contingencies are likely to come true, if there is a war a lot of them will. Qaddafi faces destruction of the Libyan economy, defeat by the Egyptians and their allies, loss of Arab backers, and alienation of potential friends. In short, he has everything to lose and only war glory to gain. But to a madman like Qaddafi, that just might be enough.
