Wasted Nights

by Timo Tuovinen

"When I lie down I say: 'When shall I arise?'
But the night is long, and I am full of tossing till the dawn."
--Job 7:4

Insomnia.

Millions of people have difficulty falling asleep and coping with this problem varies. Some eat sleeping pills like bread, others toss and turn around in their bed the whole night and face the morning with red eyes and a dizzy head.

The reasons for insomnia also vary. It can be an irregular life style caused by working night shifts, use of caffeine or other stimulants, or simply not knowing how to cope with the problem.

For some people the problem is not the lack of sleep but the FEAR of not getting enough sleep. Studies have proven that insomnia is more common among women than among men. Also physical and hormonal characters can explain the difference.

The amount of sleep needed is very individual. Eight hours a night can be too much for someone, or too little for somebody else. We know people from history who were happy with a few hours of sleep a night. Napoleon, for example, was efficient in his warfare with only three hours sleep a night.

When a person is just about to fall asleep, his pulse and body temperature fall. Because of increase of energy in the brain, his arms and legs might jerk suddenly.

When a person has been asleep for about ten minutes, the brain energy increases and the person's eyes move from side to side. However, even if his eyes were open, he would not see anything. If awakened, the person does not realize he was asleep at all.

How to treat insomnia?

The oldest medicine—a glass of warm milk—really works. Large amounts of amino acids, of which milk does have, have been found to act as sedatives. Amino acids nourish the brain and allows a person to fall asleep.

Did you ever feel like taking a nap after a turkey or chicken dinner? The reason for feeling tired is in the protein that these meats have in them. This same protein can be found in commercially produced drugs, such as Tryptophan. Tryptophan is safe to use and costs $6-7 for a bottle of 30 pills.

Alcohol is a stimulant, even though it makes a person sleep if consumed in excessive amounts. Problems for many alcoholics started out when they had a casual drink before going to sleep. Insomnia is, after all, relatively small inconvenience compared with alcoholism.

People with a good business sense have found out that they can profit from insomnia. Sleep clinics are meant to give personal treatment to people suffering from insomnia. "Tricks of the trade" can be applied at home, as well.

Relaxing all muscles, one by one is a good way to start. Gradually, relaxation occurs throughout the whole body and falling asleep becomes easier.

Yoga and meditation use similar means to relax the body and make it receptive to get influences from the mind, or give the body the will to fall asleep, for example.

Hypnosis has been used successfully to treat insomnia. However, before starting hypnosis treatment, one has to make sure that the reason for insomnia is not because of a health condition. It is advisable to consult a physician before applying hypnosis treatment for insomnia.

RALLY FOR RATCLIFFE—Harry Huey, Chairman of the Fresno County Board of Supervisors and Daniel Whitehurst, Mayor of Fresno, officially opened a $950,000 fund-raising drive to convert Ratcliffe Stadium to the Ratcliffe Sports Center. The ribbon-cutting ceremony was held last Thursday morning at the Rally for Ratcliffe's campus headquarters.

FCC News Service

Ratcliffe Rally Off and Running

by Sam Williams

Rally for Ratcliffe, a community fund raising project designed to raise $950,000 to convert the Old Grey Lady to a modern Sports Center was officially kicked-off with an unveiling ceremony Thursday morning at the Rally's headquarters on the Fresno City College campus.

Rally for Ratcliffe funds will be used to install a nine lane, all weather championship track at Ratcliffe Sports Center. Plans call for the football field to be realigned and enlarged to allow room for a regulation soccer field, plus a jogging lane on the perimeter of the field.

The plans also include the installation of a facade on the west side stands; redesigning and relocating the ticket booths, and developing an attractive mall entrance on Blackstone Avenue.

Clyde McCully, president of FCC called the project, "a new kind of thing." He said it shows the community is interested in helping community colleges fund improvements.

"This is an important first step," said McCully.

The unveiling was attended by many local dignitaries, including John Stremple, Superintendent Fresno Unified School District, Dorothy Rohlfing, President of the Board of Education, Fresno Unified School District, Ted Wills, Fresno City Council, Dan Whitehurst, Mayor of Fresno, Harry Huey, Chairman of the Fresno County Board of Supervisors, Hans Wiedenhofer, Director of Athletics at FCC, Colleen Hallowell, President of the State Center Community College Board of Trustees, and David Pinuelas, President of the FCC Associated Student Body.

The project enjoys support from all levels of the community.

Whitehurst called Ratcliffe, "An extraordinary place with a great history."

He said, "The wealth of our city depends on believing in the future and investing in it."

Whitehurst said the stadium has been used by the entire community and called Ratcliffe "a very important part of the communities history."

"On behalf of the people of this city, I lend my full support. Huey said "Ratcliffe stadium has served the community of Fresno for over 50 years."

"We should have the ability to hold championship track and field events."

"Once again," he said "we can establish the reputation of being where world records are broken."

Wiedenhofer said, "We in athletics are excited about this project." He said while Ratcliffe has served the community for 59 years, a world class event has not been held there since 1965.

"We have slipped well behind the times," said Wiedenhofer. He said a world class sports center would "serve not only the Fresno area, but the county and state as well."

Hallowell called the project, "a very creative way to do this." She said the board of trustees was "watching the growing enthusiasm. It's wonderful to see this new way to bring improvements to the district."

She said to date the SCCD has spent $2% million on stadium improvements.

Pinuelas said "students are pleased and honored to be involved in this project." He said the new sports center would benefit not only current students, but future students.

"We look forward to this development," said Pinuelas, "now and in the future."

Vehicle Theft, Costly Concern For Owners

by Delight E. Blackman

One of the most urgent concerns among students and Fresno residents is theft.

Petty theft and grand theft, plus burglary and other related offenses are on the uprise in Fresno, and there is no better way to realize how deeply a theft can affect the student than to experience it.

There were approximately 11 incidents of vehicle theft on or about the Fresno City College in 1981-82. The Rampage was given access to the police reports of these thefts, and some interesting facts may be drawn from these reports:

18 percent of the thefts were older vehicles (1970 or older)
34 percent were motorcycles or mopeds.
27 percent were late model cars.

81 percent of the thefts occurred on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

Lots "B" and "C", the intersection of Weldon and Glenn, and any close parking space close to the railroad tracks were the most likely locations for a vehicle to be stolen from.

Seventy-two percent of the vehicles stolen were recovered. Of that 72 percent, 37 percent were stripped and/or burned.

The value of a vehicle stolen averaged about $4,400 for a car, and about $600 for a motorcycle or moped.

It is a general rule for any kind of theft that most recoveries occur within a short period of time after the theft. These records uphold this general rule. The average time for a recovery is less than one week, with one exception. One vehicle was found burned and stripped 115 days after it was reported stolen.

The tendencies of thievery rackets reflect the modern societies problems, as is shown by the cars and motorcycles that were stolen. Most of the cars taken were economy cars. Obviously a motorcycle or moped would get even better gas mileage, but this type vehicle is much easier to steal, as they must be restrained by a chain or some other external device, and many owners do not use such devices on a regular basis.

The auto industry has often been questioned by the public as to why cars are so easy to steal. Unless people are willing to spend large amounts of money on sophisticated locks, devices and burglar alarms, there is not much that can be done to safeguard a vehicle other than locking doors and windows and removing all keys. The ignition locks are fairly easy to break, and ignition and door keys are re-issued in the same pattern by auto companies, hopefully distributed in different parts of the country. There is a large probability, therefore, that one car key will fit another similar car due to that fact. There has been, in fact, a thief that operated in this manner, using a large collection of assorted keys to enter and drive off with the vehicle. His technique was so shrewd and efficient that only a police officer eyewitness was able to realize that the man was in fact a thief and not the rightful owner of the vehicle.

Vehicles in general are stamped with an engine ID number on the engine block, but after that the identification of various parts can be haphazard. Some makes and models, such as a Mercedes Benz, have a dearth of identifying serial numbers, and this makes recovery more difficult. Also, the San Joaquin Valley is a prime spot for vehicles to be illegally shipped across the border to Mexico, and recently, authorities broke up a ring stealing Mercedes Benz vehicles and found that Border Patrol officials were also involved.

With the limited ability of campus police to patrol the large parking areas and lots, the bulk of the responsibility of protecting a vehicle from theft lies upon the owner. Law enforcement agencies and insurance companies urge owners to always lock and remove keys from their car and to install locks that cannot be pulled up from the outside.

For identification purposes, serial numbers can be engraved on various parts, or an identifying piece of paper or plastic card can be dropped down inside a car door. The HOT-CAR program provides information and techniques to "thief-proof" a car or other vehicles so that hopefully, it will remain in the owner's possession.

Handicapped Have Their Day In The Sun

by Sam Williams

Handicapped students at Fresno City College had a chance to get acquainted and enjoy themselves Friday afternoon on the west lawn of the campus.

The lawn was alive with the sound of laughter. Fueled by a slight summer breeze, frisbees whizzed while students tossed a football and ate ice cream.

Ice cream? That's right, ice cream. And syrups and nuts and whipped cream. It was a real old fashioned ice cream social.

It was an afternoon of sheer joy.

Janice Emerzian, who heads the enabler program at FCC said the event was "a time to pause and give our students something sweet."

She said the ice cream was donated by the Knudsen company and the pastries by the enabler staff.

"This is a day to honor our handicapped students," she said.

About 150 handicapped students attended the social, joined by family and friends. There are about 600 handicapped students at FCC.

Mark Riley an Associated Student Body senator attended the event. He said it was an afternoon to get acquainted. He said the ASB and enablers are co-sponsoring a Handicapped Awareness Day, scheduled for the middle of October.

The event will include a handicapped band, a handicapped magician and an artist who paints with his teeth.

"What we hope to show," said Riley, "is how people make mechanical adaptations."

He said students and administrators will have an opportunity to experience the problems of handicapped students at FCC by spending the day in a wheel chair along side a handicapped student.

Richard Swengel, a handicapped student studying general education, said, "It's just a bunch of people joined together getting to know each other."

Swengel is still recovering from an automobile accident which claimed the life of his girl friend a year ago. He has had three brain operations and has a steel plate in his skull.

Now he walks with the help of a walker.

"I can't walk too good yet," he said, but hopes to be using a cane in the next few weeks.

"I like Fresno City College," he said. "They're all good people. They try to help you."

Swengel said the doctors told him he would be confined to a wheelchair for the rest of his life and never would talk again. But with the help of enablers he is recovering.

CSUF Counselor on Campus

Dr. Deryle Allen, counselor from California State University, Fresno, will be in the Counseling Center in the Student Services Building, second floor, from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon every Thursday. He will be here to give pre-admission information, answer questions, offer advice, and give the name and location of contact person at CSUF in the student's major or area of interest. This is a cooperative service offered by Fresno City College and CSUF to help transfer students solve some of the problems they think they might have in transferring.

Fee Is a Bargain

BY Dan Immel

Boiling in the kettle for months upon months, the fees issue has been prepared.

Regardless of how "unfair" it may seem, there will be an instructional materials fee at Fresno City and Kings River Community Colleges beginning the spring semester of 1983.

There has been a need at these two campuses over the last two years for the fee but administrative and student pressures swayed the opinion of the State Center Community College District Board of Trustees which voted down the measure last May.

It is certainly comforting to know that the ASB finally gave support for the materials fee during the SCCC last Wednesday.

What may seem unfair to some is in reality the beginning of fairness to all who attend FCC and KRCC.

More revenues will be generated by the fee allowing the continuation of many programs which previously faced the budget axe.

It must be noted, however, that the SCCC should never depend upon the student population to relieve their fiscal woes.

Fresno City and Kings River are community colleges where students are able to get a reasonably sound education without the rising tuition and fees cost that beleaguers the student at the university level. This is the concept of the community college.

Repercussions of the budget cuts were quite evident this fall than during previous semesters. Many classes were unavailable to students who also found it quite difficult to add courses and complete their curriculum. Had the materials fee been instituted as proposed, this problem may never have existed.

The maximum fee levied upon any student would be $30 per semester, or the average of two dollars per week. Compared to the cost of education at the university level, $30 seems quite a bargain.

There are amendments to the fees proposal. One, in the form of a waiver, is aimed at relieving the financial hardship of the low income student.

Confused by some, this waiver is not a form of welfare but a viable alternative that may be utilized by those who qualify. It would be unfair for a financially capable student to receive such assistance.

Contrary to the comments which were made by students against the fee proposal during the meeting of the board of trustees, the Rampage has given every opportunity for those individuals to voice their opinions, via the Rampage, to the student population.

As yet, there has been no written comment from those students who claim to be misrepresented by the Rampage.

It is not the intention of this newspaper to dictate the opinions of others including students of the staff.

The materials fee is recognized as the only feasible means of supplying enough funds to keep the Rampage in production.

Last semester there was considerable speculation that the Rampage would be published this year, thus eliminating a vital source of information that has spanned two and a half decades.

ASB Senator

Speaks Against Material Fees

by Delight E. Blackman

Mark Knipper, Associated Student Body Senator, has not abandoned his stand against the materials fee, but has renewed his position and is still opposed to fees.

The Rampage previously stated that Knipper had a "new understanding" of the issue. Knipper says that he "went into a stall for about two weeks." However, instead of resolving the conflict and questions in the various meetings he attended, including the Chancellor's meeting, more questions arose for him. He questions the school District relying so heavily on the materials fee, and he considers it a preconceived idea that is not appropriate for public education systems.

Knipper's main concern is that the fee will force low-income students to drop out. He feels that it is a vital point of integrity and a responsibility for him personally and as a senator to oppose the fee. He believes that the individual student's interests are at stake.

"We're starting a precedent... that can do nothing but escalate. Because the students are on the bottom of the social ladder they are being further taxed."

Knipper does agree that there is a serious and threatening problem faced by the education system in California. However, he disagrees with the administration's priorities in spending, such as the hiring of a professional fund-raising corporation to raise money for Ratcliffe Stadium. He feels that the students themselves could hold sufficient fund raisers to provide money as needed, and he thinks either this or another alternative that "does not shut the door to the people at the bottom" is needed. He does not want to see California's public education system become an exclusive property of only the people who can afford it.

"Everyone who desires an education... should be educated," says Knipper.

What double cigarette tax!

Valley Girl Fever

BY Rick Walden

Barf out. I'm sure. Gag me with a spoon. Grody to the max. Totally awesome.

You've heard it, I know you have. On campus, at home, in the shopping malls. It's a mental disease, worse by far than disco fever. It's name? Valley Girl Syndrome (VGS).

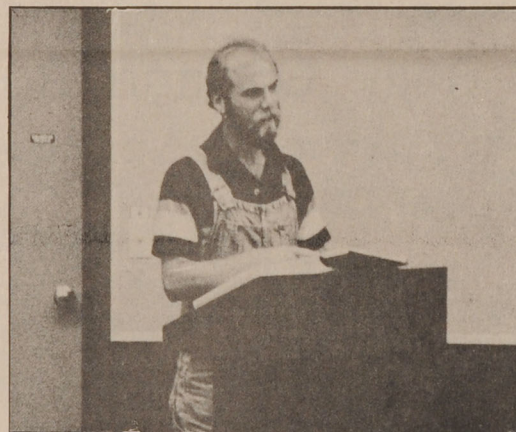

Our medical profession has remained sadly unaware of this epidemic, despite the fact that it is spreading across this once great land like a mid-July brushfire.

Tracing the history of VGS, we find that the first outbreak occurred in the San Fernando Valley. There it remained well contained, until it spread north and broke out in the vicinity of Fresno High School.

VGS seems to be a strange mutant strain combining elements of Prep, Punk, and mushymindedness in more or less equal measure.

Anyway, back to our story, VGS remained a quiescent tumor; watching and waiting in sunny southern California. Enter Moon Unit Zappa. OhmyGawd! See ya next ish.

(This opinion will conclude next week)

Budget Cutbacks Pick Veterans' Pockets

by Jesse Duran

Veterans are the latest casualty to fall under the Reagan administration's latest budget cutbacks.

The 1982-83 changes to the Pell Grant formula eliminate the applicant's VA educational benefits in the calculation of the SAI (student aid index).

Allowing veterans to get Pell Grants, former known as Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG), and other student aid on top of the veteran administration benefits is not fair to other needy students, according to Edward Elmendorf, educational deputy assistant secretary for student financial aid.

In the recently proposed Pell Grant family contribution schedule, Elmendorf suggested making permanent a one-year provision that counts VA educational benefits as financial aid when figuring how much aid a student should get.

Before the provision was added to the fiscal 1982 continuing resolution, an amendment which expires September 30, half of a student's VA benefits were counted as income in figuring Pell Grant eligibility.

If the current method were extended, veterans would lose about $27 million in Pell Grant money, and the entire $2.28 billion Pell Grant budget could be targeted toward the neediest students, Elmendorf told a joint hearing of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee and the Veteran's Affairs Subcommittee on Education, Training and Employment, last month.

This means many veterans who received Pell Grant last year will not receive it this year, according to Donald Watson, Financial Aids Director at FCC.

But according to Watson a veteran might still be able to get some financial assistance in the means of campus based funds such as supplemental education opportunity grant, and college work study.

FCC Booster Buses For Ram Fans

by Naomi Miranda

Community Services of Fresno City College is now offering transportation through booster buses for those who would like to follow and cheer their home Ram football team to their games.

Mark Aydelotte, Public Information Office, says this kind of service has always been available to students and non-students over the past few years, but didn't start getting into progress till last spring when two more buses were purchased. These buses are said to carry a load of 40 people each.

There will be a game against Bakersfield on September 18 and another on October 9 in Monterey. The cost for the Bakersfield trip will be $21 for non-students and $19.50 for FCC students. The Bakersfield trip includes the transportation, game admission, and an all-you-can-eat barbecue with the Renegade Boosters.

The fees for the Monterey Peninsula excursion are the same but does not include a meal. The Monterey restaurants will be available, as well as sightseeing and shopping time.

For registration information about transportation on the booster buses, call Bob Raroyo at 442-8256.

Insurance Available for Students

Students enrolled at FCC have available to them a 24-hour supplemental accident and illness health insurance plan in which they may enroll during the first 30 days of the fall or spring semester. It is available at a reasonable cost and is at the option of all students. It is an excellent policy and is well worth looking into! Contact Health Service for information at 442-4600, ext. 8268 or 8545, or stop by room SS-112.

The Rams are coming

by Sam Williams

SPORTS DESK

Just as the Fresno City College Rams were knocking off the Sacramento City College Panthers, (1981 National Junior College Champions and the Junior College Athletic Bureau's number one ranked team this year) in a scrimmage at Ratcliffe stadium a long white four-wheel-drive pickup was seen speeding south on Blackstone Avenue.

The driver, a scout of the Renegades of Bakersfield College was last seen shouting into his CB "Say hey, breaker break. This here's the Spy Gade and let me tell ya' good buddy...the Rams are comin', the Rams are comin, ya hear?"

FCC will open the 1982 football season Saturday, September 18 against the Renegades in Bakersfield's ultra-modern Memorial stadium.

And look out Bakersfield, the Rams are coming.

Renegade fans are worried. Already there is a great gnashing of teeth in Bakersfield. Many fans are already stomping and stamping their cowboy hats just pondering the possibility of the Rams in Bakersfield.

Some fans, a select few, are even disregarding the advice of Daniel Webster and trying to figure out some way to make a deal with the devil and win this game. Dr. Faust to the press-box, please.

But even a deal with the devil won't help the Renegades this year.

BC's typical game plan is to run straight ahead and wear out the opponents defensive front line.

The Rams defensive front this year is the biggest in FCC history. And this line shut out the state's number one ranked team in three separate goal-line stands.

When the Rams need to get tough they can really dig in.

If BC tries to run through the trenches, they're going to find that those trenches are awfully deep. BC may try to beat the Ram's with defense.

But even against an eight man rush by the state's number one team, Ram quarterbacks completed 10 of 34 passes for 215 yards and two touchdowns.

Ram completions averaged an astronomical 21 yards each.

Besides, the Renegades, with a reportedly weak secondary, will not risk such a rush and take the chance being out-numbered in the backfield.

So, Gaynor and company should have plenty of time to mix up a powerful batch of Gaynor-aide.

And Gaynor-aide sure is sweet if you're a Ram fan.

The Rams should score early, hopefully on their first possession, on a long pass play following some good runs by Ram backs, spearheaded by "Huck" Williams.

The Renegades won't shuck "Huck."

The Rams should be able to then set the tempo of the game and take FCC's second victory in 15 years.

And a victory in Bakersfield should show the rest of the Central Valley Conference just how good the Rams really are.

It should also set the mood for a spirited season by a spirited Ram Squad.

Not that the Renegades will be easy to beat, it will be a good football game, but the Rams are my favorite.

Hey Bakersfield, the Rams are comin, ya hear?

RAMSPORT DIGEST

Soccer

Bill Neal and Jim Standen are really excited about the prospects of the 1982 soccer season. With 25 players on hand the Rams have depth as well as talent.

The Rams will host their annual tournament September 24-25 and will kickoff Coast Conference play October 1 at Mission College.

Volleyball

Jane Shriner's volleyball team is idle this week but gets off to a fast start next week. The Rams will cross town to face Fresno Pacific College September 20 and then will host five teams in a tournament in the FCC gym September 22. The Fresno Pacific match begins at 7 p.m. while the FCC Tournament will start at 1 p.m.

Water Polo

Coaches Gene Stephens and Andy Schroeder will have a couple of extra players when the Ram water polo team opens its season this week. Recent newcomers to the team are Ryan Cox and Scott Sager, who competed for the Ram swim team in 1980 and still holds school records in the 100 (48.8), and 200 (1:49.0), freestyle events.

Both swimmers are transfers from Fresno State. Sager played one year with the Bulldogs.

The Rams are expected to have an excellent 1982 season and will take on Hartnell College at Merced College this Wednesday at 5 p.m.

FCC will compete in the Cabrillo Tournament in Aptos Friday and Saturday. Action gets underway at 9 a.m. both days.

The Rams set a school record for wins with 13 last year and earned a berth in the Nor-Cal tournament.

The Rams will play their home matches at Clovis West High School's outstanding swimming complex this season.

Rams on Radio

Football is looking up at Fresno City College. How far up will be determined to a large degree by how the Rams do when they face Bakersfield College in their season opener Saturday in BC's Memorial Stadium.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. The game will be broadcast live by Fresno's KTED (97.7 FM) with Gus Zernial handling the play-by-play. The broadcast will begin with a 7:20 pregame show.

Cross Country Invitational

Close to 400 runners are expected at Woodward Park when the Fresno City College cross country team hosts the FCC Invitational Saturday morning.

There will be two races this year. The women's race will start at 8:30 a.m. The men's race starts at 9 a.m.

Because Woodward Park will be the site of this year's state championship, many of the state's top teams will be on hand to get a chance at running the course.

Northern California powers American River College and West Valley are entered and 10-time state champion Grossmont College is expected back to defend its 1981 FCC Invitational team titles.

In all, approximately 30 schools should be represented in one of the biggest community college meets of the year.

The Ram men are expected to be right in the thick of the team race. Coach Bob Fries has an outstanding group including Roy Vinton, David Perez, Leroy Rivera, Luis Frausto, Richard Freeman, and Rod Marvin.

Carolyn Tiernan and Sylvia Santistevan will lead an improved Ram women's team.

Album Review

Go-Gos Got Up and Went — Went

by Rick Walden

The Go-Go's are back. And they are back in style. They have proven with their latest album "Vacation" that these girls are not to be grouped with the one-hit-wonder bands.

The Go-Go's are an all girl band hailing from the L.A. basin. The band consists of Belinda Carlisle-lead vocals, Charlotte Caffey-lead guitar and vocals, Jane Wiedlin-rhythm guitar and vocals, Kathy Valentine-bass and vocals, and Gina Shok-drums and vocals.

This album, sad to say, does not compare with their first, "Beauty and the Beat." Musically it is weaker, lyrically it is far, far stronger. Let's look at the bummers first.

"Vacation" suffers from many production flaws; mainly in the mix. Vocals are muddled and the guitars at times fade away into non-existence. Girls, please don't rush an album; we'll be listening to your mistakes for years. Also, some of the songs seem like they were written five minutes before the studio call. "Cool Jerk" and "Beatnick Beach" are the worse offenders. As the final downer, Charlotte Caffey still can't play guitar.

On the bright side, if Caffey can keep working the keyboards like she does on "Vacation", she can throw away her guitars. Awesome stuff. Also, they have started spreading around the songwriting duties. On the first album, almost every song was Caffey, or Wiedlin, or both. Now Carlisle and Valentine are contributing strong stuff, and drummer Gina Shok even gets her hand in on one song.

Listen to "We don't Get Along" by Kathy Valentine.

"You leave me broken and you don't realize everything is O.K. then you apologize. The things that really matter to me they just pass you by. Somehow, you always get me wrong. Somehow, we just don't get along."

And listen to "Everything but Partytime" by Jane Weidlen and Gina Shok.

"We're all looking for a good time but all we get is empty rhyme when everything's right and nothing's fine. It's everything but party time."

Pretty good stuff for a "bunch of airheaded girls," to quote an old New York Times review.

And speaking of airheaded, the thing that turns me on most about the Go-Go's, (other than the fact that four-fifths of the band is sexy, and one-fifth is moderately cute) is that this band has no social conscienceness whatsoever. No songs about politics, or war, or abortion. Thank You! The Go-Go's have discovered something that most bands have forgotten; music can be fun.

Film Award

A FCC student's film won first place at the Sixteenth Annual California Student Media Festival in Monterey this summer.

The award was made to James Clatcher who won first place for films produced by community college students in California. Clatcher's award-winning film was titled "Crawlspace."

Clatcher's first-place film will be entered in a national student film competition held by the Association for Educational Communications and Technology.

Womens Meeting

The Professional Women's Network will hold their first luncheon meeting, after a summer hiatus, on Tuesday, September 21st, at noon at the Del Webb Townhouse. "Women in Publishing" will be highlighted—and the program speakers will be Sandra Millett, owner of Needle Magic; and Gail Marshall, who is Life-Style Editor of the FRESNO BEE. Both women are authors of published books. The cost of the luncheon will be $6.50—for reservations, call 227-3582.

Board Meet Set

The Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges will hold their monthly meeting at Fresno City College this Friday. The board will be meeting in the theatre from 8:30-3 p.m. The meeting is open to the public. Agenda items include revisions of the community college statement of mission, minimum standards, and a Title 5 review. A public forum will be held at 11:30. For details about the Board of Governors, visit or contact the public information office.

Rams Rip Panthers

by Sam Williams

Proving that the best offense is a good defense, the Fresno City College Rams outscored the Sacramento City College Panthers in a Saturday afternoon scrimmage at Ratcliffe stadium.

The Rams scored twice while the Panthers scored only once in a controlled scrimmage.

	SAC	FCC
First downs	18	13
Rushes-yards	320	117
Passing yards	160	215
Return yards	0	0
Passes	9-33	10-34
Fumbles-lost	3-1	1-0
Penalties-lost	10-60	10-120

Each offensive unit had 90 plays, taken in six series. There were no punt returns or kickoffs.

The Rams defense, highlighted by three goal-line stands kept the 1981 National Champions out of the endzone. The Panthers are rated number one this year by the Junior College Athletic Bureau.

Linebackers Kevin Glenn and Nate Collier combined to stop the Panthers within the three-yard line on two separate plays.

The third goal-line stand ended when Greg Harris recovered a Panther fumble, again inside the three yard line.

All-American quarterback Doug Gaynor led the Rams air game completing 7 of 12 passes for 196 yards, and two touchdowns.

The first touchdown, on the Rams first possession was a 50 yard floater to tight end Brook Edmonds.

The pass was set up by an earlier completion to Edmonds and a 25 yard run by All-American running back Michael "Huck" Williams.

The Rams scored again on their last possession with a 11 yard Gaynor pass to Mark Fornaro.

Anthony Montanez kicked both extra points.

The Panthers used an eight man line that hounded Ram quarterbacks all afternoon, resulting in 12 sacks.

The offensive units of both teams were shut out most of the afternoon, depending on the big play to make any real gains.
