Senate Erupts Over Task Force Picket

by Sam Williams

Student senate reaction to a noontime picket of the Fresno City College administration building by members of the Student Task Force for Equal Opportunity Education has been largely negative.

Members of the Associated Student Body Senate said the picket and the statements made by the picketers are inappropriate and premature.

During Friday's picketing, STF/EOE spokeswoman Pat Andrews granted interviews to local television and radio stations. Nine STF/EOE members carried signs reading "No fees" and "Fees are like rats — they multiply."

Andrews refused to grant the Rampage an interview.

During a television interview Andrews said the students were representation for the ASB is "undemocratic, unAmerican and counter-productive. It violates students' constitutional rights as citizens of this country."

Marcus has refused to discuss the lawyer issue with the Rampage.

Mark Suddjian, ASB treasurer, said the letter was presented in the senate last week and the senate refused to approve it.

Members of the senate said they were completely unaware of the picket by the STF/EOE.

They said they are planning to take action against Marcus and the STF/EOE.

Senate sources said they are considering writing a letter to the administration, the Rampage, and the board of trustees explaining the senate's position.

Task Force to the senate."

Riley said the idea of filing litigation against the district was "against the spirit and intention of the senate." He said the senate was to be informed, in advance, of any Task Force action. The senate was not aware of the pickets.

ASB senator Dan Olivo, who voted in favor of hiring the attorney, said taking legal action against the administration was "the farthest thing from my mind."

He said when Marcus made his presentation in the senate he was not talking about litigation against the district to stop the fee. He said Marcus' argument was to "investigate the application of the materials fees" and to insure that the district was administering the fees according to the law.

Olivo said he was sure the proposed fee was legal.

Teresa Sanchez, the other senator who voted to hire the lawyer, could not be contacted.

Suddjian said the senate would try to rescind the motion to hire the lawyer.

Dr. Clyde McCully, FCC president said he has refused to approve the allocation of funds for the ASB lawyer. He said the ASB senate can use county counsel if they have any questions about the legality of the fee.

Andrews said the county

He said the advice given to the senate would be the same advice given to the district. "It's our best legal opinion. The fee may be unpopular, but it is legal."

Riggs said McCully is justified in refusing to approve the ASB senate's allocation of funds for an attorney.

According to section 76063 of the Education Code and sections of the State Center Community College District Policies and Regulations, all expenditures of ASB funds shall be approved by the college president.

Riggs said, "This is not a matter of choice." He said every expenditure should be signed by McCully.

According to section 76060 of the Education Code, student body government "shall have as its purpose the conduct of activities on behalf of the students approved by the school authorities and not in conflict with the authority and responsibility of the community college's officials."

Regarding student rights, Riggs said the constitution guarantees the right to an attorney in criminal cases. He said while individuals have the right to hire an attorney to take action against the district regarding the proposed counsel is "their lawyer" and that McCully's denial is a violation of student rights.

Tom Riggs, an attorney with county counsel, has worked with the administration and district in preparing the proposed fee.

He said the fee proposal is legal according to the education code.

Riggs said while county counsel represents the district, the office is also available to the ASB senate.

materials fee, the ASB has no such constitutional protection.

According to district regulations, the authority of the ASB comes from the board of trustees.

Riggs said the ASB's filing litigation against the district is like the district filing litigation against itself. He said such action is inappropriate.

Riggs said there is no reason why the ASB could not hire an attorney, but the action must be approved.

VICTORY — The Ram baseball team carries coach Len Bourdet off the field after beating Modesto for Bourdet's 600th win. Bourdet is only one victory away from becoming the winningest coach in Fresno collegiate history.

600 Wins

by Bob Millar

Fresno City College's Ram baseball team defeated Modesto Junior College last Saturday 8-4 to give head coach Len Bourdet the 600th win of his career.

Bourdet in his 25th season as the coach of the Ram baseball organization was expected to surpass the milestone a few weeks ago. But due to the Rams' midseason slump, win number 600 was a long time coming.

After the game Bourdet was raised to the shoulders of his team and presented a 600th victory cake. He was congratulated by players from both teams.

The win boosted his career record to 600 wins and 263 losses, a respectable percentage.

tage of .681. With his next victory, he will equal the record of his former head coach Pete Bieden of Fresno State.

The Rams erupted for 14 hits and a five-run rally in the third inning, ignited by Darren January's two-run double with bases loaded.

Centerfielder Scott Buss and first baseman Ken Rollans each went 3 for 5 to pace the Ram's offensive attack.

Defensively, it was third baseman Garrett Crough and pitcher Doug Nelson who carried the day. Nelson came in as a reliever and picked up the win. Crough made several outstanding plays. The Rams move to 3-2 in second-half Conference play and 15-14 overall. They will attempt to win number 601 this week.

protesting the administration's refusal to allow the ASB senate to use its funds for legal fees to fight the proposed instructional materials fee.

She said the fees were "oppressive" and that she would be unable to attend FCC next year if the fees are imposed.

Andrews said the administration has a lawyer and the students "want to be represented. Clearly and simply we want to be legally represented."

She said the students picked a lawyer. "He's real good," she said, "and he has a history of human rights cases."

She said the students will use their own funds for the attorney if necessary.

Andrews passed out a copy of a letter written by ASB president Grant Marcus. The letter said, "The ASB has allocated $300 for initial materials fee litigation."

The letter said the administration's denial of legal

They said they are also considering asking the STF/EOE to dissolve itself and let the senate lead student opposition of the fee.

They said it may, however, be too late to try a new approach.

Student Trustee Tamra Klienhammer, who made the motion to hire the lawyer in the senate, said she has no desire to take legal action against the district.

Klienhammer said, "I want a lawyer on campus for all students." She called the pickets "typical Marcus tactics."

ASB vice-president John Simmons said he is against the lawyer because he "can't tell us what's illegal about the action being taken by the district."

Simmons said the ASB has not hired an attorney. He said the ASB has "money set aside if it comes to the point where we need a lawyer."

ASB senator Mark Riley said, "Grant has misrepresented the senate to the Task Force and the

Indian Culture at FCC

by Dan Immel
Rampage Reporter

Traditional Indian dances and basket weaving highlighted last Friday's American Indian Cultural day at Fresno City College. The event was sponsored by the Native American Indian Student Association.

NAISA president Phillip Johnson, a Miwok-Paite-Chukchansi Indian, welcomed those in attendance. He said the purpose of the day's events was to "show more and more people what the Indian culture is like."

Johnson then yielded the microphone to various speakers who urged young Indians to join NAISA and spoke of local tribes and their culture.

The festivities were not limited to entertainment. Some Indian speakers took the opportunity to voice their opposition to the exploitation of sacred Indian monuments.

Jay Johnson of the California Indian Heritage Commission said Indians throughout California must together act against the rampant desecration of sacred Indian burial grounds that are disturbed in the name of progress.

40-Year Career to Close for Jo Nell Beal

by Nina Tinker
Rampage Reporter

JoNell Beal, English and Speech teacher at Fresno City College since 1957, is bidding farewell to faculty and students alike when she retires at the end of the Spring 1982 semester. Beal said she truly has loved her 40-year teaching career in Fresno at Winchell Elementary, Roosevelt High, Sequoia Jr. High, and for the last 25 years at FCC.

It is evident from the pictures, cards, and posters covering three walls in Beal's office that a great many students have come in contact with her during her career. Beal recently revised an estimate of students she has instructed. The new estimate is about 10,250 students including 8,000 at FCC.

Her college activities outside the classroom include service on 12 faculty standing committees, and three two-year terms on the curriculum committee. She has also served as vice-president of the faculty senate and the teachers union. Beal holds a 25-year membership with Alpha Delta Kappa, an international honor society for women teachers, and is a charter member and past president.

JONELL BEAL — 40 years of teaching.

Beal has also worked with the St. Therese church and school, La Paloma Guild and the Fresno City and County Historical Society.

Having already visited 45 countries, Beal is planning yet another trip. In September she leaves from Seattle with a New York group to fly around the world.

The itinerary includes Japan, China, Pakistan, India, Nepal, and Egypt. While in the East, she plans to visit with FCC political science and history instructor Gerald R. Farrington and his family who are living in Kunming, China.

Following Beal's return to the United States, she will reside in Carmel, where she plans to resume painting lessons. She said that she has exhibited paintings in six different cities and is anxious to get back to the easel. Beal is also taking a University of California, Santa Cruz extension class to be held in Monterey. There she will study travel writing and how to develop articles to be published in travel publications.

The retiring FCC instructor says it is exciting to approach new areas of endeavor. She says that the future looks most promising.

Movie Review

Bizarre is Word for "Victor/Victoria"

by Julie Klenast
Rampage Reporter

Victor/Victoria is a film about a woman pretending to be a man pretending to be a woman. The film was written, directed and produced by Blake Edwards. It is playing now at the UA Movies.

Originally it was a 1933 film about a gay entertainer fired from his job after insulting his night club audience. In Edwards' version the part is played by Robert Preston.

Preston runs into Victoria, played by Julie Andrews, and treats them both to dinner — compliments of a cockroach taken from her purse and placed in the salad.

Preston takes her to his apartment where he convinces her his bed is safer than the couch, since he is homosexual. He then persuades her to become Victor, a female impersonator.

Julie Andrews' performance was well worth watching. The songs and music were very well done and the choreography excellent. With all her many talents, Andrews did not quite come across as a man, not even a very feminine one, not even when she ripped off her wig instead of her bra at the end of each performance.

Andrews carried the film through a romance with a wealthy club owner played by James Gardner. Gardner couldn't quite believe Andrews was a man, or accept the fact that he could possibly be attracted to another male.

Gardner went to every extreme to find out the truth, including hiding in her bathroom, but she still managed to keep her secret.

He was finally frustrated by his live-in girl friend (or wife, I couldn't quite understand which), played by Leslie Ann Warren. Gardner would rather do anything than be left alone with her. Warren in my opinion was badly cast. She was much too dumb and annoying to ever have captured the attention of a cool, collected wealthy club owner.

After a bar room brawl, alone in the alley with Andrews, Gardner decides he doesn't care if she is male or female.

When he finds out which, his bodyguard, taking the noise to be trouble, knocks down the door. The bodyguard then decides if his boss is sleeping with Andrews, a female impersonator. He too could reveal his true nature — gay.

This brings on a barrage of more gay revelations, while Andrews and Gardner try to decide how to work out their relationship. She wants to continue her work as a female impersonator and he doesn't relish the idea of being known as a homosexual.

Gardner doesn't seem comfortable in this role. His emotions are as cool as a private eye's instead of those of a man in a bizarre, controversial love triangle. He keeps his cool even when the mob decides to force him out of the clubs because it doesn't approve of his lifestyle.

The film seemed to be afraid of any real relationships, sticking to the light and ridiculous, with many references to faggots, queers, and old drag queens.

Andrews, the music, and choreography were excellent. Even though most of the picture consisted of close and medium shots, these established the story and action well. The editing was well done and the sound man captured all of life's little sounds from soprano voices breaking crystal to the latest love calls.

If you have an open mind, Victor/Victoria will entertain you. If not, it might give you fruit for thought.

Consumer Ed Program Serves Disadvantaged

by Nina Tinker
Rampage Reporter

Bruce L. Morris, Fresno City College Mathematics instructor and head of the Consumers Homemaking Education project, talked at length recently about the progress of the program for the education of the economically disadvantaged.

The program is in its sixth year at FCC. Morris said it is one of the few programs that goes where the people are and that has been a major factor in its success.

Margaret Schlegel, a home economist, has become what Morris calls the "strawboss" of the group and does all the contact work. This year, three other FCC teachers are involved in helping Schlegel: Juanita Stone, Hope Arroyo and Andrea Hendriz.

Morris said federal monies were placed under the umbrella of the home economics department at FCC to bring practical skills to the poor. The funds came to Mr. Gerald Fries in the administration office and were used to provide education in nutrition, diet, food preservation, family relations, home decoration, sewing and other matters of interest to the groups.

A series of workshops was set up at churches and senior citizen and neighborhood centers to provide experience in becoming wiser consumers and conservationists, according to Morris.

Morris said the aim of these mini-courses is to promote healthful living and distribute information on energy awareness and on improvement of personal life and home environment.

Morris said the program is innovative and has far-reaching benefits for the people and the college.

Morris said, however, this may be the program's last hurrah because funds which started at $15,000 have dwindled to $3,500 this year. He said, "We are continuing to bring these people what we can and to provide them with practical knowledge."

An 87 year-old student said at a class meeting, "This has been wonderful. I'm going to keep on learning new things."

More advanced planning, according to Morris, will bring new innovative ideas for the classes if federal funds continue.

Student Wins Truck

by Dan Immel
Rampage Reporter

Ever think how nice it would be to cash your payroll check and win a brand new truck because of it?

Fresno City College student Jane Buchbinder found out exactly how nice it is.

Buchbinder, a dental-hygiene student who also works at the Sahara, a Lake Tahoe Inn, recently won a 1982 Dodge Power Ram 4-Wheel Drive pickup in a contest sponsored by the famous hotel casino.

Buchbinder says she will never forget her seven years dealing black jack at the Sahara.

"It was real exciting to win the truck but I don't know what I'm going to do with it," said Buchbinder.

She won the prize by cashing her paycheck at the casino.

Also included in the package was a brand new Remington 700 BLP rifle with a mounted scope.

Unfortunately, the high cost of interstate licensing and transportation fees has prevented Buchbinder from bringing her prize back to Fresno.

Since she has no real use for the truck she plans to sell it through a truck dealer in Tahoe at a very discounted price.

"Free Enterprise" Students Produce Tape

by Chris Comstock
Rampage Reporter

Fresno City College's chapter of Phi Beta Lambda recently produced a videotape called Free Enterprise at Work in Fresno as a community service project. Chapter member Ron Dustin said the tape not only shows how the American free enterprise system works but why it works, and how it affects everyone as individuals.

Featured in the videotape are various community leaders and businessmen including mayor Dan Whitehurst, supervisor Sharon Levy, Jeff Nagle, a public relations consultant, and stock broker Clint Thaxter of Dean-Witter-Reynolds.

The tape has been shown to classes at most of the area high schools and several junior high schools. Dustin hopes the tape makes younger students aware of the free enterprise system and what it means to them.

After the film was shown to the schools, an essay contest was sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda. Awards of $100, $75 and $50 savings bonds were given for the top essays.

Free Enterprise at Work in Fresno is also Phi Beta Lambda's entry for this year in their state competition. If it wins, it will go on to compete nationally.

The tape is being entered as a community service project.

Symphonic Band to Play Classics

The Fresno City College symphonic band will host a major concert Tuesday, May 11, as part of the college's celebration of "Community College Week," May 9-15.

The 8 p.m. concert will feature performances of works by Gershwin, Charles Ives, Josef Haydn and Shostakovich.

The concert will be highlighted by a performance of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" by noted Fresno pianist Sally Christian-Lorenz. Camille Saint

The organ has been dedicated to the memory of Lynn's husband Gilbert Rodriguez, who led the college's jazz and concert bands to numerous award-winning seasons. FCC music instructor Gary Deeter will direct the band. Admission to this very special concert is free.

The End is Near

by Sam Williams

Last year, just about this time, it crawled out of the ballot box. Had someone realized what was ahead, they might have stuffed in more votes and tried to drive the creature to the edge of campus by the railroad tracks, or at least into the technical classrooms.

This week a new ASB government will come out of the ballot box.

Now that Grant Marcus is a lame duck, let's take a look, in retrospect, at his administration. Perhaps we can get a feel for the remainder of his term.

Marcus had three main goals for his term. If you count them there's four, but he said three.

- He wanted to start an on-campus recycling center.
- He wanted to start a car-pooling system.
- He wanted to bring an energy expert on campus to help establish energy efficiency standards.
- He also said he wanted to start a day care center.

None of these came to pass. There is the ASB MARS program on campus, but it doesn't seem to be exactly what Marcus had in mind.

Besides, students would have a hard time stuffing all those wine bottles and beer cans among kids and fellow students in a VW bug while listening to an energy expert explain how to get a few more miles to the gallon.

Marcus also took up the cause of stopping Diablo Canyon. He was a blockader. He was arrested. He said anything that sounded good to sway public opinion. Facts are unimportant, he said, so why get "mega-picky?"

Then Marcus threatened to veto funds for the PASU Unity day. Marcus did not want the event to be scheduled in the lounge. He said there are three ghettos in Fresno. The west side, the barrio and the student lounge.

Marcus then took over the job of writing about the student government for the Rampage. To this day he is still upset that he doesn't get the kind of coverage he got when he was writing the story.

Remember the ASB budget freeze you never heard about? How about the $5,000 ASB surplus? Well...

It was then, in October, the Rampage started publishing stories about fees. Grant Marcus wrote several stories on fees way back then. Of course he would rather have you believe the administration just jumped out of the closet yesterday and stole our wallet.

Suddenly Marcus took up the cause of the Indians and arranged a press conference. He claimed student rights were being violated because the Indians were not allowed to have a fry-bread sale.

The administration said the students could have the sale; they just needed to comply with rules and regulations and follow procedures.

Marcus and the Indians boycotted the cafeteria. The boycott ended just as it began when FCC president Dr. Clyde McCully told the students to come talk to him and make arrangements.

Soon after, Marcus decided if he did not like what was written in the Rampage he could take an exact knife and cut it out.

So Marcus found out about prior restraint.

He then came out in favor of the mandatory ASB fee. But he didn't want anyone to know, least of all Rampage readers.

He led the picketers to the board of trustees meeting in March and asked them to form the Task Force. The trustees didn't want any part of it — so he formed it himself.

He went to the April board meeting and told the trustees he had formed the Task Force and would they please recognize it. They said no way.

Now he says the ASB wants to sue the district. The ASB says it doesn't want to sue the district.

Members of the Task Force refuse to be interviewed by the Rampage. They didn't invite the Rampage to their last press conference.

This is nothing new. They think it is.

The Rampage was not invited to the press conference when Marcus claimed the senate endorsed the blockade of the Diablo Canyon. In fact, the senate did not make such an endorsement — but someone might have figured that out.

The Rampage was not invited to the press conference where Marcus expressed his opposition to the rates charged by PG&E.

The Rampage was not invited to the press conference about the Indian boycott.

The Rampage knew that all the Indians had to do to sell their bread was talk to the administration. So did Marcus.

The Rampage was not invited to the press conference announcing the formation of the STF/EOE.

We weren't invited when the STF/EOE picketed the administration building.

I guess what amazes me is that the Rampage gets the story anyway, somehow. We find out about these press conferences and cover them.

It seems crazy to refuse comment and act like the Rampage is unimportant. We reach students.

But students aren't Marcus' top priority.

The picket demonstration for example was a media event.

Students painted slogans on the back of ASB placards ripped off the wall somewhere. At the direction of the television crews they marched around in circles.

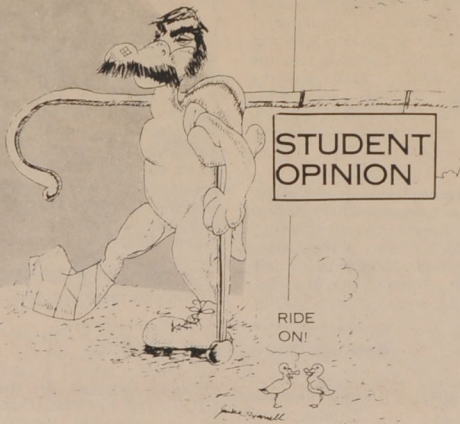

One picketer was only interested in how many television stations showed up.

What was really interesting was that the picketers kept marching while the radio newsmen were conducting interviews — as if they could be seen on the radio.

Several of those interviewed by radio newsmen asked me what the hell was going on.

I guess the real key to the Marcus administration is that you do things your own way. Don't confuse me with the facts. I crawled out of the ballot box.

Quack, Quack, Limp, Quack! Don't confuse me with the facts! Students have a constitutional right to legal representation in administrative meetings, on the racquetball court, in the cafeteria, and in the restrooms! No student should be denied an education because of race, color, sex, creed, religion, national origin, income, sexual preference, shoe size, brand of deodorant, bra size, hair color, college major, favorite rock band, date of birth, astrological sign, social security number, number of units completed, Quack, Quack, Quack.

Ground Zero at FCC

by Dale J. Cahill
Rampage Reporter

Ground Zero Week was observed nationwide for the first time the week of April 18. To make the public more aware of the destructiveness of a nuclear war would cause, observances, ceremonies, and peaceful demonstrations were held.

Although Fresno City College had no such observances on campus during this week, other colleges in the area did take part. Pacific College planted hundreds of crosses on the campus to dramatize the effects of a nuclear attack.

Richard Cleland, FCC business manager, was aware that this was ground zero week but said he knew of no plans to make any formal observances on the FCC campus.

Cleland said that in the event of a nuclear attack in the Fresno area FCC has an evacuation plan. This same plan would be implemented for an earthquake, fire, flood, or plane crash at FCC.

Cleland said, "In the course of a nuclear attack this plan would be called upon." Cleland said the plan would coincide with the county evacuation plan combined with the efforts of health, fire, and police services. Cleland said, "This plan is theoretical. It's never been tested." He added, however, "I don't think it would do any good."

One administrator said his advice during a nuclear attack would be to "crawl under your desk and scream real loud."

In view of the increased concern about nuclear war, Cleland said, "It may be that national leadership may come down from state emergency and disaster agencies and look into the possibility for a nuclear evacuation plan."

FCC geology instructor Richard Brown said, "If a nuclear bomb were to hit in this area, you wouldn't need a plan." He emphasized the destructiveness of a nuclear warhead.

Brown said there are few escape routes from the city and there would be major problems in evacuating over a quarter-million people from this area. Brown said, "Radiation is a case of how much you get hit by and where in the body, and for how long a time you are exposed. If you survive the initial blast the next trick is to get out of the irradiated area."

Brown also compared a natural disaster such as a major earthquake with a nuclear explosion.

He said, "A natural disaster affects people right at the time of the disaster. You don't have a thing like radiation that hangs on for a long period of time afterwards. In this situation (natural disaster) the best thing to do is stay put in one place. In a nuclear attack you must get out of the area as fast as possible, if at all possible."

Cleland said, "I think there's a tie between nuclear energy plants and nuclear energy used for warring purposes." He pointed out how easy it is for terrorists to get weapons-grade plutonium.

Cleland said, "The fear I have is that some terrorist group or small country will use the bomb in a fit of anger or rage." Cleland said what could follow is a domino effect which might pull the two major powers, Russia and the United States, into an all-out nuclear war.

Cleland went on to say, "I was in Japan shortly after World War II. The destruction I witnessed was almost beyond description. It horrifies me to think anyone would use this weapon. However, I'm also enough of a realist that I see the bomb as a deterrent against war."

The bomb that destroyed Hiroshima is "a small one," Brown said.

"More countries now hold nuclear devices so there is a greater chance of a nuclear war. There's always the chance that some nut will push the wrong button at the wrong time, and the more bombs there are the better the chance."

Considering the possibility another country might use nuclear bombs on nuclear power plants, Brown said, "A nuclear bomb on a nuclear power plant makes the bomb 'dirty.' It increases the radioactivity level because the nuclear bomb spreads the energy of the power plant as well as what was in the bomb. If you want to be nasty in the area of radioactivity for longer periods of time, in other words what we call a dirty bomb, you would shoot at other countries' nuclear power plants."

After the speeches, local Indians performed traditional dances before an audience of 200.

Amid the cheers and obvious delight of the crowd of elementary, high school and FCC students, the young dancers demonstrated several ancient ritual dances to the rhythmic beating of drums and solemn chanting.

NAISA organizers were pleased with the turnout.

Senator Resigns

Due to the apparent lack of enthusiasm by all members of the Senate to attempt to negotiate any kind of working relationship, I have found it in my compelling interest to vacate my appointed position as senator.

I have been somewhat disillusioned by the prospects of being part of a very important part of this school system, one which contains the essential elements as a voice of the emassed student population.

The senate, however, only vindicated the self-serving attitudes of its participants. I was truly amazed to find myself ridiculed for my attempts to maintain my position. Even though I was unable to attend all of the meetings, my interest was sincere, my effectiveness was diminished by the aimless attempts of our "president" to suspend my position on the Senate.

I feel my position can best be served as a member of an organization that has the genuine interest of perpetuating the students' interests here at Fresno City College. If in the future, we can in some way set aside personal vendettas, then I feel the ASB will be an effective organization, rather than a "LOAN-LENDING JOKE."

Instructional Materials Fee

The State Center Community College District Board of Trustees released a copy of the proposed Instructional Materials Fee. The proposal is supported by the district administration. It is written as an addition to existing district regulations.

The district still needs to write additional regulations to implement the second paragraph.

The fee is expected to generate $400,000 district-wide.

The trustees are expected to vote on the fee May 4.

Proposed Addition to SF 5122

Instructional materials fee

There shall be a mandatory instructional materials fee chargeable to each student enrolled, the fee to range from $1 to $20 per section per semester, not to exceed a maximum total fee of $30 per semester for any one student. Each college will utilize a six-category fee schedule ($2, $4, $8, $12, $15, and $20) and determine an amount for groups of courses based upon the least cost course in that group. The fee will be payable at the time of registration, except as provided in district administrative regulations.

For the purpose of assisting low income students to pay or to be excused from the district's instructional materials fee, district administrative regulations shall be developed to alleviate hardships placed on students by this policy.

A 100% refund of an instructional materials fee will be available for students withdrawing from classes through the end of the fourth week of instruction. No refunds will be available thereafter. The amount of money refunded will be determined by the cost of the classes that remain on the student's schedule (not dropped). Actual payment of the refund will be made within 60 days from the time classes were dropped.
