Board approves new child development center

By Donna Reese
Contributing Writer

A proposal to build a $425,000 child development laboratory on campus was approved at the State Center Community College District board meeting Tuesday night.

The proposal, which was first presented to the board during its January meeting, calls for a 64,000-square foot prefabricated metal building to be placed on one of two sites in the area of University Avenue and Calaveras Street.

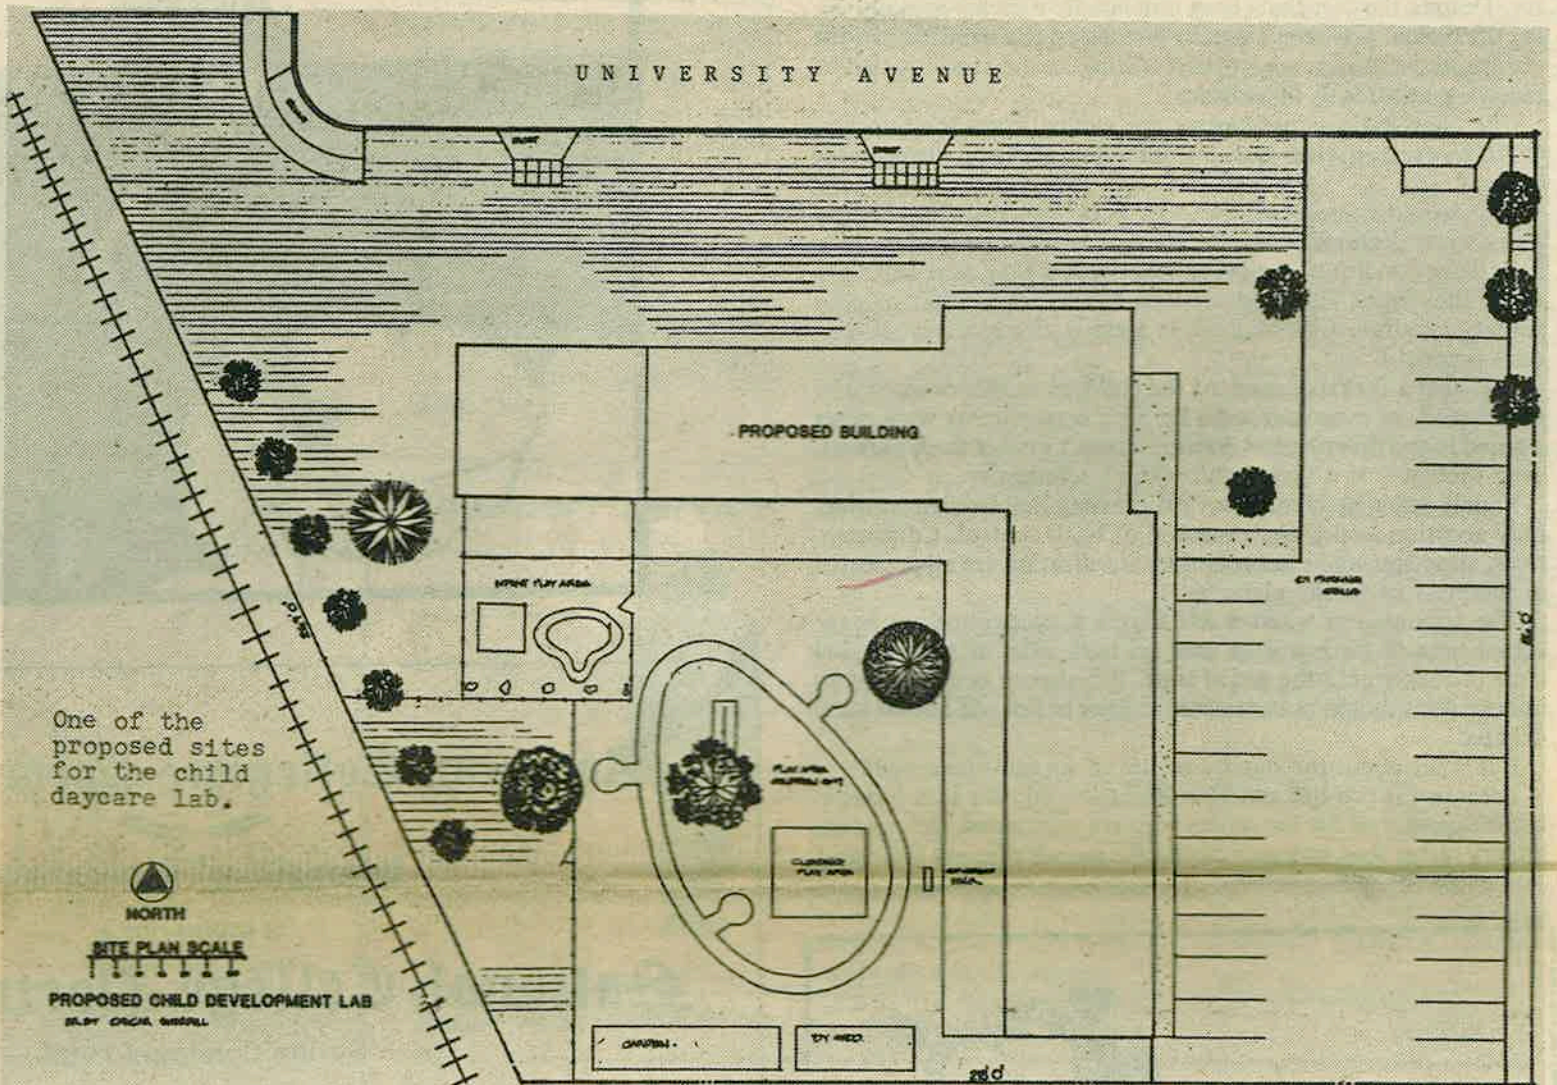

The facility will allow child development majors "to become adequately trained" in the area of child care. According to Gerald Stokle, associate dean of social science, child development majors are now required to obtain what experience they can in local day care centers. These facilities are not equipped to provide an appropriate environment for training students, he said.

The proposal calls for a self-supporting laboratory based on annual parent fees and the Average Daily Attendance (ADA) received by the college through student attendance.

Now that the proposal has been approved, Stokle said the next step will be to arrange for a bank loan of $425,000 to be repaid over a 12-year period with an approximate interest rate of 12 percent.

The bank loan is to be repaid by ADA, which is expected to generate $70,000 yearly. The annual bank loan payment is expected to be $67,000.

Having ADA generated back into an area of instruction is a first, said Dr. Arthur Ellish, dean of instruction. Normally the ADA received from each area of instruction is put into the general fund. The entire sum is then distributed to each area by need, said Ellish.

Ellish said the reason for distributing by need is because some areas of instruction generate more ADA than other areas.

"Once the (bank) loan is paid off the ADA (generated by the laboratory) goes back to the general fund," he said.

The operating cost will be paid for by the annual parent fees, said Stokle. The proposal estimates the operating costs at $301,601 per year and the parent fees at $302,508.

The annual balance is estimated at $4,765, which is to be used to pay off the bank loan, said Stokle, "at an accelerated rate."

The laboratory is expected to care for 100 children at any one time, said Stokle. Parent fees will be at the rate of $1.50 per hour for children ages two through eight, and $2.25 per hour for infants. According to Stokle, they are charging the average rates of regular day care facilities.

The only question raised before the proposal was approved concerned welfare recipients. Trustee Warren Kessler questioned the idea of low-income people being excluded from the child care side of the facility. He proposed the idea of finding a way to guarantee that low income people are not excluded from the child care facility.

One of the proposed sites for the child daycare lab. The site is just south of the maintenance yard on the far east side of the campus.

Friends remember Dalva

Memorial services for Harry Owen Dalva, 56, a Fresno City College librarian, were held Friday evening, January 11, in the reference room of the F.C.C. Library. Over 250 friends attended the services.

Dalva died as a result of an accident suffered on January 6 while on vacation in Guadalajara, Mexico. For the past nine years he had spent his winter vacations at a resort spa outside of Guadalajara. Cremation services were completed there, and his ashes were scattered at the resort as per his request.

Dalva was the Aquisitions and Reference Librarian at F.C.C. since 1976. He previously worked for the Fresno Unified School District where he was head librarian at Edison and Hoover high schools. He moved to Fresno in 1963 from San Francisco, where he taught in public schools.

He was born in Priest River, Idaho, and obtained his B.A. degree from the University of Idaho, and his M.A. degree from Ohio University. He had completed post-graduate work for a library credential at San Jose State University.

At F.C.C. he had served on various library committees and was the faculty advisor to Alpha Gamma Sigma, the honorary scholastic society, during 1983.

Dalva was a past president of the Fresno Area Library Council and was currently on the executive board of the Central California Business and Professional Association in Fresno.

He was also a member of the American Federation of Teachers, the Y.M.C.A., the California Media and Library Association, and various other library organizations in the state.

He had a life-long interest in theatre arts and was affiliated with several theatre groups in San Francisco. He had a special interest in black theater and had been instrumental in getting many black students involved in theater work while teaching in San Francisco.

Survivors include a niece, Heidi Dalva, of San Mateo, and two nephews, Sean and Kevin Dalva, of Redwood City.

The family requests that any remembrance be sent to the donor's favorite charity, or to either the Harry Dalva Book Fund at Fresno City College, or to the United Negro College Fund. Donations to the book fund will be used to purchase books in the areas Dalva was personally interested with an emphasis on theatre arts and reference books.

Should the few dictate morals of the many?

By Denise L. Bartlett
Editor-in-Chief

Twelve years ago the United States Supreme Court passed a landmark decision making abortion a legal alternative in unwanted or unhealthy pregnancies.

Since that time, opposition to abortion has been voiced by religious and pro-life groups across the country, but recently that opposition has taken a violent turn.

Bombings and the threat of bombings of family planning clinics or hospitals which perform abortions have brought the demands of the "New Right" to headlines of newspapers across the country. Despite the fact that those individuals who are actually doing the violent acts aren't usually connected to organized pro-life groups, those groups are still capitalizing on the publicity they're receiving as a result of violence.

The New Right conservatives are calling upon the Supreme Court to overturn their decision and make abortion illegal in the U.S.

This would cause abortion to go back into the closet. Abortions were performed in illegal, and usually unsanitary and dangerous conditions for many years before they were sanctioned by the Court. Hundreds of women died as a result of poor surgery and poor treatment while seeking alternatives in those dark times.

It is also a fact that most of the children in this country who are abused, or even murdered by their own parents were never wanted in the first place. Adoption doesn't attract these parents, even though it is a "legal and viable" alternative.

Family planning clinics aren't suggesting that women consider only abortion as the single method of birth control. Contraceptives, adoption, and even voluntary sterilization are all presented as methods of family planning.

The argument of whether life begins at conception, or at the actual time of birth will be used on both sides of the abortion issue probably until the end of time. Whether or not aborting an unborn fetus should be considered murder or not will also be hotly debated.

But what about the quality of life of an unwanted child?

Perhaps the pro-life and New Right should look into improving the quality of life for others who are mistreated, sick and/or hungry rather than trying to dictate the morals of every individual in making personal choices.

Diet tips for winter sports

By Sue Hubbard
Special to Rampage

The cold weather requires the body to use more energy to keep itself warm, especially while skiing, skating, snowmobiling or just about any activity in the snow or the fog. There are certain foods that are high in energy and fiber, and nutritious as well as provide tasty, economical snacks.

Some examples of locally-grown snacks are dried fruits and nuts. Raisins, dried apricots, dried figs, and prunes are fairly inexpensive, especially if they are purchased in larger quantities and stored properly. They keep well in a cool, moderately dry area, and they may be found at many small, local roadside stands or farmers markets for cheaper prices than in the supermarkets. Raisins are being sold for less than $1 per pound in many places, and shelled almonds are down to $1 a pound.

Other inexpensive, convenient winter snacks are locally-grown citrus. Although oranges and tangerines are more popular, lemons and small grapefruits serve as great thirst-quenchers on the snow trails and slopes. Some of the locally-grown oranges are about 20 cents a pound in farmers markets, and tangerines about 45 cents a pound. That equates to about 10 to 15 cents for a bag of chips.

Great veggie snacks to include in the pack are carrots, broccoli, cauliflower and celery. A small container of cream cheese mixed with garlic salt or garlic powder makes a good complement for the vegetables as well as a portable hors d'oeuvres spread. The energy items are the carrots and cauliflower while the broccoli and celery provide lots of fiber but few calories or carbohydrates. Broccoli and cauliflower are being harvested locally, so they may be found at lesser prices.

Whether in a back pack or on a tray for watching the weekend sports programs, the abovementioned items can serve as convenient, healthy, economical and tasty treats for sports fans.

Community secrets

By Matt Weiser
Contributing Writer

One of the best-kept secrets at Fresno City College is the Community Services Program. It is almost a second college right on the campus!

The Community Services Program was started as a branch of the community college system in the 1940's, but did not really build up steam and get rolling until after 1965, and it's been going strong ever since.

Community Service programs are a companion to most community colleges in California. Such programs are provided for by the education code and are used in evaluating how well a community college serves its community.

Robert Arroyo, the community service program administrator, states that there has been an unusually low enrollment in the program this semester. Peak enrollment has been upwards of 9,000, but average enrollment has been 6,000-9,000 students.

Enrolling in the program itself is a fairly simple matter. It involves merely identifying the desired classes, filling out a registration form, and paying the fee for each class.

Course credit is generally not offered in the usual sense. However, continuing education units are available in selected classes. These units help student by demonstrating to prospective employers a certain level of competence in the subject.

There are a great variety of classes offered by the community services people, ranging from wine tasting to tear gas technique classes. Others are involved in, but not limited to, licensing and relicensing in different fields, cultural arts, and even building your own home. Most classes are either of the preparatory or continuation variety.

Also offered are a variety of special tours. Examples this semester are a Death Valley tour and a trip to Los Angeles for music and shopping. The program also sponsors a number of community arts and music presentations.

Most classes are held on weeknights one night per week but some are held on weekdays and weekends. The average class takes from four to six weeks to complete, but some are offered in a series of several four to six week segments. Class durations are designed to fit the lifestyle of students who don't have much time to spend at school.

While the current average age of students is between 35 to 40, Arroyo encourages younger students to take part. Arroyo also states that student discounts are available for some program activities.

Arroyo goes on to say that the program is "available to any and all adults in the community. There is no restriction in terms of enrollment."

Some of the more popular classes in the past have been those involved with travel agent training, licensing, physical Subtle winning ways to tell someone they like you!

How to Flirt ON MONDAY

.....if you want a date for Friday. Nothing attracts people to each other like certain subtle signals. YOU can learn what they are and how to use them....with CONFIDENCE to make someone feel you're special. Benefit as you enjoy reading of the first-hand experiences of others, like yourself, trying to attract someone they like. No, you don't have to be beautiful, wealthy, popular or unique in any way ....these tested winning ways do work for everyone willing to try them.

We know how you feel about first encounters. Maybe you are afraid to approach someone -- scared you will be rejected, or worse yet, laughed at or put down. Perhaps you're missing your chance to meet someone that you find interesting because you don't know the right way to go about it. Worry no more.

"HOW TO FLIRT ON MONDAY" was written especially for you to overcome these fears and to give you new self-assurance. Discover how to make shyness work for you. Know why "acting out of character" is always the wrong thing to do. Learn how to use the "verbal handshake" technique plus many more subtle approach ideas you have yet to think of. Read how a mere glance, scent or smile can ignite a relationship and be sure that you're using them the right way. (You'll know you know how!) Chapters also uncover many sensitive areas no one ever tells you about but we tell it like it is.... with humor and warmth. If ever you've wanted someone you like to "want to" know you then this book is a must! You won't put it down til it's finished.

Money help available for pinched students

By Robert Adams
Staff Writer

Financial aid and scholarships are now available to eligible students in the Financial Aid Office.

Aid can be used to help students finance their college education.

The Pell Grant Program is a federal grant. The amount granted for two semesters is $1,075 for California residents, $1,900 for non-residents.

Another program is the Guaranteed Student Loans. GSL is a low interest loan eligible to students by a participating lender such as a bank, credit union or savings and loan association. GSL is guaranteed by the California Student Aid Commission. FCC students, if eligible, can borrow up to $2,500 per academic year. The interest rate for new borrowers is eight percent. Payments begin six months after the student leaves school or drops below full-time status.

Friday, February 15, is the last day a 1984-85 GSL application can be submitted and processed in time to meet most bank cut off dates.

Any student who wants to receive a student loan this semester must apply prior to the cut-off date.

Applications and detailed information on these programs are available at the FCC Financial Aid Office, Room 201 (upstairs) in the Student Services Building. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Also available through donations made by faculty, staff and community organizations, are approximately 135 scholarships readily obtainable to FCC students.

Students with a 2.25 grade-point average are eligible. The deadline to apply is March 15, 1985.

Various scholarships that require specific applications, offered by both national and community organizations, include:

Al-Anon lightens alcohol burden

Al-Anon is for families of alcoholics, or for those affected by some one who abuses alcohol or other chemicals.

Please feel free to attend the group's Tuesday afternoon meetings from noon to 1 p.m. in the ASB Senate Chambers (north of the Bookstore).

The topics covered help those close to problem drinkers deal with the daily stresses.

Summer forest jobs available

The State Department of Forestry will be on campus Thursday, Feb. 14, to hold informational meetings at 11 a.m. and noon in the Student Services Building, upper floor, room 202C.

Students may sign up for either session and obtain applications in the Student Placement Office, lower floor, room 114.

Women and minorities are particularly encouraged to apply. Filing deadline for applications is March 1.

On Tuesday, Feb. 19, the River Way Ranch Camp representative will present a slide show and discuss summer employment at 11 a.m. or 2 p.m. in the Student Services Building, room 202C.

Interested students must sign up prior to the 19th to reserve a seat.

Applications for quick units

Fresno City College is continuing to accept applications for its spring semester short-term classes.

The classes are offered for full college credit, and begin later this spring.

A total of 46 classes are still open, with several sessions being offered in some high-demand subjects.

Students may apply for short-term classes as late as the first day of class.

The short-term subjects still open to students are: western civilization, macro economics, computer applications, computer accounting, psychology, cultural anthropology, archeology, algebra, mathematics, industrial science, political science, human sexuality, speed typing, word processing, and sociology.

Other courses are: The Vietnam War History, arson investigation, job preparation, television studies, roles of women, spelling, nutrition, tutorial training, auto mechanics, and police academy.

The college is also offering eight short-term physical education classes, five guidance studies classes, and five classes in child development.

Additional information about short-term class registration is available through the college's admissions and records office.

Additional summer session offered

Fresno City College will be offering a new pre-summer session from June 3 to the 21st. The regular six-week summer session will follow June 24 to August 2.

The new schedule was approved on January 17 by the trustees of the State Community College District, which determines policy for the college.

Dr. Arthur Ellish, FCC dean of instruction, states that between 30 and 45 classes will be scheduled between 8 to 11 a.m.

Depending on enrollment the program should generate from 90 to 120 average daily attendance. The college will receive as much as $125,000 in state funding, according to Ellish.

Officials estimate that a $35,000 expenditure by the college will provide the classes additional registration assistance.

Honor society calls members

Alpha Gamma Sigma, the FCC honor society, is now accepting new members for the spring 1985 semester.

To join you must have maintained a minimum 3.0 grade-point average last semester.

A.G.S. meets each Thursday morning at 7 a.m. in Forum Hall 103.

The club boasts fellowship and many scholastic and social activities for the spring semester.

counseling and other services.

Ellish went on to state that the courses offered will be of the "bread-and-butter" type, general education requirement courses which can be of use to transferring students, as well as returning students or students from the university level.

European vacations

The thought of vacationing in Europe entices many people, but is dismissed by most as a romantic fancy rather than a viable vacation idea.

The Fresno City College Office of Community Services is doing its best to build an accessible bridge to Europe. This summer they are offering two different trips to Europe. Both offer a wide variety of sightseeing tours and overnight stays in different cities and countries.

The first trip will leave on June 5 and is slated to return on June 25. Its first stop will be Lisbon, Portugal. It will then head for Spain, where it will stop in Seville, Costa Del Sol, Grenada, and finally Madrid.

The second trip is scheduled to leave on June 12, and return on June 25. Its first stop will be Lisbon, Portugal. It will then head for Spain, where it will stop in Seville, Costa Del Sol, Grenada, and finally Madrid.

Both trips will include coach transportation to and from the San Francisco airport, hotel accommodations, breakfast and dinner meals, health insurance, tour guides, and the possibility of upper and lower division college credit.

The cost of the first trip is $2,379, and the price of the second trip is $1,959. The money is due by March 1, so travel arrangements can be made. For more information, contact the Office of Community Services of Fresno City College at ext. 8254 or 8256.

Smith espouses value of education

By Robert Adams
Staff Writer

However, she is much more than just an accomplished board president. She is a person who has a genuine concern for the people of Fresno.

A graduate of Washington Union High School and a degree in child development from Fresno State, her credentials include degrees in elementary and secondary English, counseling and administration.

A good education and determination helped her to achieve what she has and she believes that education is of basic importance for today's students.

Smith said "knowledge opens many doors."

She reinforced her feelings by saying "I believe that education, whether it be in a form of academia, vocational or trades, is the key."

A life-long Fresnan who attended local schools, she has always had an active interest in her community. As a young girl she volunteered her services to many people, helping out to clean littered neighborhoods, paint weathered fences and tutor students. She holds a special place in her heart for Fresno, calling it "home."

Besides being board president, she is also an elementary school principal. She was a dean at Roosevelt Junior High in Selma for five years prior to this.

She feels that the teachers of young children should do their best to enhance the idea of learning. Being "facilitator's of knowledge" these teachers should do all they can to create an atmosphere where "children want to learn."

Smith knows all about the "beauty and power of knowledge." But she also knows that success does not come easy. She has spent the better part of 10 years taking college courses in order to reach her goals. On the subject of her demanding schedule she keeps herself motivated by pushing herself.

She believes that people have to push themselves. And also have faith. She has encountered obstacles with an attitude that she can achieve "what she wants to," and is not afraid to explore new challenges.

Being an active president is important to her, and she is going to try to be on the campus as much as she can. This will be a way for her to get a feel for the community so that she can have a "connection with the students and staff."

This is Smith's fourth year on the board. Prior to her unanimous election as president she was vice-president.

Comparing whether the standard of excellence is lower today than it was been in the past, she said that all generations have contributed something to mankind and that quality education remains.

MAKE THESE TWO COLLEGE YEARS REALLY PAY OFF.

Something has clicked. And you want to continue your education. Where will you get the money? Consider the Army College Fund. If you qualify, your two-year college education (60 semester hours) can help you accumulate up to $20,100 in a two-year enlistment. And you can enter the Army with a promotion.

While you're getting the money for college you'll be learning a valuable skill. You can choose from a variety of skills useful to the Army that could lead to a civilian career.

You'll also have a couple of years to experience the excitement and adventure of travel, doing new things and meeting new people.

The point: the Army has lots of ways to help you make the most of your two college years. Find out how. Call your local Army Recruiter.

Rams on rebound in 85

By Dan Bartlett
Staff writer

This season's Ram basketball team has surprised a lot of people. After being forced to forfeit 21 games last season, many expected them to play with a lack of team spirit. This year's Rams have been far from a pushover, using their opponents' apathy to jump to a fast start which has left most of their opponents reeling.

For the entire season, Fresno City College was allotted seven home games. So with their 18-7 record, that means the Rams have already won more road games than they will play home games this year. Some impressive road wins this year include a first place in the College of the Sequoias tournament, third place in tournaments in Modesto and Merced and a fourth place showing in the Delta tournament.

Three key players for this year's Rams are Kenny Travis, Darren Matsubara and Duane Crupper. Travis has been shooting 75 percent from the free throw line, 61 percent from the field, and averaging over 24 points a game. Matsubara has been averaging 17 points a game, and between the three they scored 62 points in a winning effort over Porterville.

The defense, coached by Chuck Stark and Ernie Shelton, has been extremely tough this season. The guards have been a dominating force in almost every game, and the rebounding has been outstanding. In the game against Porterville, the Rams came up with the ball 40 times.

There have been several games this season in which the back-court has kept the team out of the loss column. In their seven losses this season, the Rams have lost by a total of only 13 points.

One problem the team has had this year is inconsistency. When they jump to a lead, they have trouble putting the other team away. In the game against Columbia, they led by over ten points at times, but Columbia was able to fight back to a tie, and eventually win it in the last 50 seconds of the game.

This inconsistency has forced head coach John Toomasian to use a game to game lineup.

"Our front line is not a productive as it could be. We have fitness, wine tasting, emergency technician training and "classes involved in getting, keeping and improving the job," said Arroyo.

All the instructors involved in the program and part-time and have regular jobs in the community. Some are full-time instructors at FCC.

Instructors are selected based upon their own interests. A teacher has an idea for a class and proposes it to the program organizers and submits his or her resume. If everything looks good they give it a try.

One such teacher is Gary Austin. He teaches a real estate fundamentals exam class, holds a regular job in the community, and has been with the program since 1979. Austin also teaches a paralegal class and a real estate principles class.

He believes the program is valuable because "the competition charges a lot for the same service." The "competition" includes private organization that provide the same continuing education service and strive to make a profit.

Arroyo believes the goal of community services is to "help people already in the job market improve their opportunities." He also believes that the goal of the community college is to serve the community.

two positions open in the lineup waiting for someone to come forward and claim them for themselves," said Toomasian.

Fortunately, this years problems have been confined to the basketball court. Coach Toomasian had deemed last years a "washout" after a ruling that the Rams used an ineligible player forced them to forfeit 21 games. He called the incident unfortunate, and said that he felt that this years team could not be discredited for that oversight.

Administrative support has been a plus this season, with new athletic director Emery Luck providing continous support, even providing for new uniforms when they were needed.
